NCC Chemistry lab goes high tech

Computers now play a big role in chemistry classes at Northland Community College in Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Last fall, NCC purchased the IBM Personal Laboratory Software to use in the chemistry labs. Instructor William Moeglein spent one quarter on sabbatical setting up the equipment and automating data taking in the lab.

"There's a whole new series of topics we can discover," said Moeglein.

The tedious process of data collecting is now done by the computer. Once the information is gathered, students are able to quickly access the information both statistically and graphically with the data being far more precise.

"Students are able to spend less time collecting data and more time analyzing it," said Moeglein.

Most students enrolled in Introduction to Chemistry at NCC have never had chemistry in high school. According to Moeglein, the automated lab eliminates the number crunching part of the course that really used to slow the class down.

"We accomplish a lot more in class and twice as much in our labs," says Moeglein. Moeglein added that he is now able to introduce topics in his Introduction to Chemistry class that were formerly considered upper division material.

"We're reinforcing computer skills in the lab," said Moeglein, "and more importantly, we are preparing students for the business world. This is how it's done professionally."

Moeglein plans to apply for grants to offer workshops for other instructors interested in automating their science labs.

Ramanathan hired as Northland business instructor

Gajen Ramanathan was recently hired as the new business instructor at Northland Community College.

Ramanathan holds master's degrees in accounting and business administration from the University of Toledo, in Ohio. He taught accounting at the University of Toledo and Owens Technical College.

Ramanathan worked as a graduate assistant in the Department of Management at the University of Toledo.

Ramanathan also has extensive experience in the computer field. He served as computer consultant and lab-assistant at the University of Toledo. He was also the Assistant Comptroller and Data Processing Coordinator at American Mills, Inc., in Jackson, Tennessee and was a programmer for Software Alternatives, Inc., in Toledo, Ohio.

He is the executive committee member of Teaching Resources to Encourage Excellence (TREE), and a member of the Institute of Internal Auditors, Inc. He is the founding member and president of The Tamil Society and Central Representative Council Member of the International Student Association.

Ramanathan, originally from Sri Lanka, is fluent in the Tamil language.

Wiseth has been teaching part-time in the science, math, and physical education fields at NCC for the past six years. He has also been head baseball coach at NCC since 1988 and assistant football defensive coordinator since 1987.

Wiseth holds a masters degree in general science from North Dakota State University and a bachelor's degree in biology from Dana College.

Never too old to learn: Going to NCC

Eunice Udstrand

Thirty years of life experience separated Eunice Udstrand from her last day of high school and her first day of college class.

"I was so nervous. I thought everyone would be wondering what someone my age was doing in college," said Eunice.

The fear of fitting in is quite common for nontraditional students. A nontraditional student is classified as any student over the age of 25.

Despite her fears, Eunice took the first step and visited the Financial Aid office at Northland. "I felt uncomfortable but the staff was unfailingly polite and friendly and gave no indication of surprise or amusement at someone my age being interested in returning to school," she said. Eunice even admitted that if she was stopped in the hallways she would act as though she was a visitor and not a potential student. Once Eunice found out she was financially able to afford college she began taking steps to register. Once Eunice found out she was financially able to afford college she began taking steps to register.

First she had to take the assessment test which is mandatory for all new full-time freshman entering Northland. Even though this is a test you can not pass or fail Eunice was terribly nervous.

"I began worrying about the ordeal 40 miles before Thief River Falls. It was tempting to drop the idea, but I didn't. Somehow I mustered up enough courage to go," she said.

As Eunice sat in the parking lot at Northland, she realized this was it. She could no longer pass herself off as a visitor. Everyone would now know she was a student.

Much to her surprise the testing and registration went fine that day. "The counselors who assisted with the testing and registration were, like the staff I had previously met, helpful, courteous and mater-of-fact," commented Eunice. "No one acted differently towards me even though I was the oldest one in the room," she added.

Everything was now complete. Eunice had taken all the steps to register and even bought her books. Now came the tough part, the first day of class.

Eunice recalls that first day of class quite vividly. She remembers strolling down the corridor seeing hoards of young people who seemed to know where they were going and what they were doing. "I had hoped everyone I met would think I was faculty," said Eunice.

As she sat in her first class tense and uncomfortable, she began to notice no one seemed shocked or amused at the fact that she was a student. More importantly, as class started she began to relax and focus in on the subject matter rather than the age discrepancy. Eunice said that by the end of her first quarter at NCC she really started to enjoy her experiences and classes.

"The instructors and staff have been great. They seem to realize how I feel and have been supportive and caring," remarked Eunice.

With fall quarter just around the corner Eunice's advice to non traditional students thinking about going back to school is GO FOR IT.

She concluded, "I enjoy the courses I am taking and feel I am gaining much from this experience. After all, the pursuit of knowledge should be a life-long project and not the exclusive prerogative of youth."

Eunice is a freshman at NCC. After Northland she plans to continue her education at UND where she will major in computer science.

Xcerpts from the Xtreme past

The Children's First Reader
by Ellen M. Cyr
1892

Little Jessie had a new pink dress. She and Harry were out at play. An old gander was walking by the yard. He saw the pink dress through the fence. The old gander wanted that pink dress. He put his head through the fence. He caught the dress in his big bill. Poor little Jessie was afraid. "Oh, Harry, come!" she said. "There is a big bird here. He wants my new dress." Harry got a big stick. He said: "Let go, you bad bird! You cannot have Jessie's dress." The old gander let go of the dress. He ran away from the yard.

1893 - One Hundred Years Ago

Jan. 4, 1893:
"The St. Hilaire village school should have opened last Monday but will be closed until after indications of diphtheria have disappeared."

June 21, 1893
"School closes in St. Hilaire this week for the summer and the teachers Prof. F. H. Gambell and Miss Lizzie Zarracher will leave Friday with the knowledge that they have given the best of satisfaction to all."

July 19, 1893
"The annual school meeting was well attended last Saturday evening. It was voted to hold eight months school the coming year commencing on the third Monday of September for 14 weeks; on the second Monday in January for 12 weeks; and on the fourth Monday in April for 6 weeks. The sum of three hundred dollars was voted for current expenses."

Aug. 16, 1893
"The school has secured the services of Prof. A. D. Wishard as principal of the village school the coming year. Prof. Wishard comes with the best credentials and will, we think, prove to be an excellent teacher. He carries a first grade certificate and has had several years experience."

Sept. 13, 1893
"The village school will commence the fall term next Monday morning. It is important that all children who expect to attend school the coming year should commence at the beginning of the term and we hope all parents will see that their children attend from the start."

Oct. 18, 1893
"Miss Lizzie Zarracher and Prof. A. D. Wishard are attending the state teacher's institute at Crookston this week and the school children are enjoying a three days' vacation."

1918 - Seventy-Five Years Ago

Aug. 8, 1918

"The school board of District #18 held its first meeting after the annual election Monday evening and proceeded to organize for the season of 1918-19. Dr. O. F. Mellby was elected president, this being a merited promotion. The school directors have all been singularly fortunate in securing all the teachers required for the school's next term. Competent instructors are a scarce article and are being sought by boards all over the country. A considerable number of those chosen are graduates of the Thief River Falls schools who have been teaching in the Dakotas and other places since leaving here."

"In harmony with the general trend throughout the country, the board of education has decided to eliminate the teaching of German in the Thief River Falls schools, for the duration of the war at least. The only languages to be taught now aside from English are Latin and Norse. No elaborate plans have been made for athletics this year owing to the fact that many of the high school boys who in the past have taken a prominent part in these activities have joined the forces of Uncle Sam and will be absent during the term."

1943 - Fifty Years Ago

"An army of approximately 1,500 children will march to Thief River Falls public schools next Tuesday morning for the opening of the fall term. Supt. Philip L. Fjelsted announced today that the faculty posts are all filled with the exception of the teacher training department instructor, and that all school buildings have been renovated during the summer recess."

"Mr. Fjelsted stated that a teacher training instructor has not yet been engaged, although one is available, for the reason that only seven students have registered for the course, while a minimum of eight is required in order to secure state aid for the department. He expressed the hope that the eighth student would be enrolled by the end of the week."

1968 - Twenty-Five Years Ago

"Northland state junior college will increase its activity fee from $10 per quarter to $1 per credit up to a limit of $15 per quarter. The increase will aid the student body to more adequately fund such activities as drama, varsity athletics, convocations and social activities."

"Classes which will be starting Tuesday, September 3 for the fall term of the Area Vocational-Technical school will be aviation mechanics, nursing, auto mechanics, carpentry, radio announcing and business courses. In operation since this summer vacation earlier this year were cosmetology, auto body, welding and drafting."

"Papa, may we have the big flag?" said James.

"What can my little boy do with such a big flag?"

"Hoist it on our tent, papa. We are playing Fourth of July."

"Is that what all this noise is about? Why not hoist your own flags?"

"Oh! they are too little."

"You might spoil my flag."

"Then we will all join to pay for it. But we will not spoil it, papa."

"Take it, then, and take the coil of rope with it."

"Oh! thank you. Hurrah for the flag, boys!"

Time to Work

"Oh, look!" said Father. "See what time it is. It is time for me to go to work. I must hurry." So Father said good-by to all the family. And away he went to work. "Come, Dick," said Jane. "It is time to help Mother. We must hurry and take things [dishes] out to [the kitchen for] her." In and out went Dick and Jane. In and out! In and out! At last Dick said, "Come, Jane. This is all we can do now. It is time for us to go to school." So away ran Dick and Jane. "Look! Look!" said Mother. "It is time for me to go to the store. My family must have something good to eat. I must buy things for dinner. I must hurry and buy things for dinner." Sally said, "Oh, Mother! It is time for me to work. Please let me do something, too." Mother said, "Here, Sally. Here is the basket. You can go to the store with me. You can take the basket and get something for dinner." Little Sally was happy. She said, "I can work, too. It is time for me to work now. I can take the basket to the store for Mother."

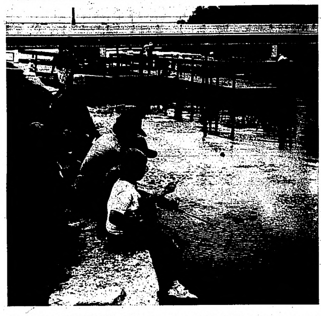
The Second Section



About 41 youngsters from Thief River Falls participated in a free fishing clinic called MinnAqua in Thief River Falls Wednesday at Red Robe Park. MinnAqua is a state-run aquatic education program that provides hands-on activities such as fish identification, pop can casting, food web tag and fishing. Participants also learn sportsmanship, safety, the basis of water ecology and techniques of fishing. MinnAqua was created by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources in 1990. The program is run in cooperation with Minnesota Extension Service 4-H program and is funded through LCMR, RIM, and the Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration Act. Several volunteers and the Thief River Falls Park and Recreation department also provided assistance.

Several agencies investigate illegal sale of game fish

United States Fish and Wildlife Service announced Friday that it has been participating in a multi-agency investigation into the possible illegal sale of game fish. Several charges are expected to be filed in state and federal courts as a result of the investigation.

Conservation officers from the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and Minnesota and Wisconsin have been cooperating in an investigation that has revealed the apparent illegal sale of game fish for commercial use. Also cooperating in the later stages of the investigation were the Bureau of Indian Affairs and North Dakota officials.

According to a news release from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the ongoing investigation began about two years ago, due in part to complaints about the unlawful commercialization of game fish. Officials said the problem stems from the fact that there is an illegal market for game fish.

The multi-agency approach was adopted because the problem of resource commercialization is multi-faceted and regulated by many different jurisdictions.

Federal and state charges are pending against several fish wholesalers, restaurants, and individuals connected with alleged illegal commercial fish sales in the United States and Canada. Alleged violations also include taking an over-quota of game fish in Canada and Wisconsin.

The full extent of the violations and charges to be filed won't be known until all evidence is examined. Most charges are expected to be filed in Canada and U.S. Federal courts. Some charges might be filed in state courts in Wisconsin and Minnesota. Alleged violations may also result in Tribal charges being filed against Native Americans.

Officials cannot speculate about the possible total quantity of fish unlawfully purchased. In Minnesota, investigators said some of the fish were apparently caught lawfully in Leech Lake and Red Lake, but sold unlawfully in Minnesota, Wisconsin and North Dakota.

The investigation is continuing. Enforcement officials said that they will pursue regulatory changes to make it more difficult to unlawfully commercialize game fish.

Bald eagle population increases

The bald eagle population in Chippewa National Forest has increased in 1993.

Based on a recently completed aerial survey of eagle breeding areas on the 1.5 million acre National Forest, wildlife biologist John Mathisen reports 186 breeding pairs of eagles, up from 175 pairs in 1992.

The survey showed that 108 of these pairs were successful in raising at least one young, with a total of 171 eaglets observed in their nests. Five of the nests surveyed included triplets, a rare occasion with eagles.

The reproduction rate of eagles continues on a downward trend, although slightly higher than that recorded in 1992.

A total of 1,000 bald eagles have been banded since the program began in 1969. Eagles banded in the Chippewa National Forest have been recovered as far away as Glacier National Park in Montana and the gulf coast of Texas. The most recent return was from a bird banded 15 years ago as a nestling and found dead in Colorado.

BIBLE STUDY

How to get out of a mess

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

A mess is generally made up of many parts. The first thing to do is realize that you are part of it. Whether you are the party of the first part or the party of the second part, it makes little difference. Messes are the result of sins, and the good life is the result of righteousness. If you want a mess, continue to sin. If you want the good life, then start being good by doing good (Rom. 12:21; 1 Peter 3:10-11). It's the only way to solve your problems.

Now, if you do good for anyone except God, you will get puffed-up and think you are a pretty nice person, and that's sin again. God says your righteousness, if not done to please God, is as a dirty menstrual cloth (Is. 64:6, original Hebrew). Since Jesus Christ said He wasn't good, and yet all He did was good, it would be blasphemy for us to think of ourselves as good, except through Jesus Christ (Luke 18:19; 24:19; Acts 10:38; John 21:25). Paul understood this, because he said, "I am convinced that there is no good thing in me" (Rom. 7:18; 8:1).

Now, there are some other directions to follow. You've got to care to get there, and you must start to finish. You must keep your eye upon the goal. You must persevere to win your soul (Luke 21:19). The more good you do, the better you'll feel. The better you feel, the more good you'll do. It's an endless glory race that makes you wear a happy face. Jesus said it is easy, pleasant and rewarding (Matt. 11:30; 6:33).

Jesus Christ wants you to come to Him (Matt. 11:28-29; 2 Tim. 2:7). This is why He came. Will you study His word daily so you can be taught by Him? Will you live to please God every day, in all that you think, do and say? If you do, He will please you, and bless all you do, and answer your prayers when you pray.

God can help you get out of the mess you are in if you will obey Him and live for Him daily.

Several agencies investigate illegal sale of game fish

About 41 youngsters from Thief River Falls participated in a free fishing clinic called MinnAqua in Thief River Falls Wednesday at Red Robe Park. MinnAqua is a state-run aquatic education program that provides hands-on activities such as fish identification, pop can casting, food web tag and fishing. Participants also learn sportsmanship, safety, the basis of water ecology and techniques of fishing. MinnAqua was created by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources in 1990. The program is run in cooperation with Minnesota Extension Service 4-H program and is funded through LCMR, RIM, and the Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration Act. Several volunteers and the Thief River Falls Park and Recreation department also provided assistance.

United States Fish and Wildlife Service announced Friday that it has been participating in a multi-agency investigation into the possible illegal sale of game fish. Several charges are expected to be filed in state and federal courts as a result of the investigation.

Conservation officers from the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and Minnesota and Wisconsin have been cooperating in an investigation that has revealed the apparent illegal sale of game fish for commercial use. Also cooperating in the later stages of the investigation were the Bureau of Indian Affairs and North Dakota officials.

According to a news release from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the ongoing investigation began about two years ago, due in part to complaints about the unlawful commercialization of game fish. Officials said the problem stems from the fact that there is an illegal market for game fish.

The multi-agency approach was adopted because the problem of resource commercialization is multi-faceted and regulated by many different jurisdictions.

Federal and state charges are pending against several fish wholesalers, restaurants, and individuals connected with alleged illegal commercial fish sales in the United States and Canada. Alleged violations also include taking an over-quota of game fish in Canada and Wisconsin.

The full extent of the violations and charges to be filed won't be known until all evidence is examined. Most charges are expected to be filed in Canada and U.S. Federal courts. Some charges might be filed in state courts in Wisconsin and Minnesota. Alleged violations may also result in Tribal charges being filed against Native Americans.

Officials cannot speculate about the possible total quantity of fish unlawfully purchased. In Minnesota, investigators said some of the fish were apparently caught lawfully in Leech Lake and Red Lake, but sold unlawfully in Minnesota, Wisconsin and North Dakota.

The investigation is continuing. Enforcement officials said that they will pursue regulatory changes to make it more difficult to unlawfully commercialize game fish.

Bald eagle population increases

The bald eagle population in Chippewa National Forest has increased in 1993.

Based on a recently completed aerial survey of eagle breeding areas on the 1.5 million acre National Forest, wildlife biologist John Mathisen reports 186 breeding pairs of eagles, up from 175 pairs in 1992.

The survey showed that 108 of these pairs were successful in raising at least one young, with a total of 171 eaglets observed in their nests. Five of the nests surveyed included triplets, a rare occasion with eagles.

The reproduction rate of eagles continues on a downward trend, although slightly higher than that recorded in 1992.

A total of 1,000 bald eagles have been banded since the program began in 1969. Eagles banded in the Chippewa National Forest have been recovered as far away as Glacier National Park in Montana and the gulf coast of Texas. The most recent return was from a bird banded 15 years ago as a nestling and found dead in Colorado.

BIBLE STUDY

How to get out of a mess

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

A mess is generally made up of many parts. The first thing to do is realize that you are part of it. Whether you are the party of the first part or the party of the second part, it makes little difference. Messes are the result of sins, and the good life is the result of righteousness. If you want a mess, continue to sin. If you want the good life, then start being good by doing good (Rom. 12:21; 1 Peter 3:10-11). It's the only way to solve your problems.

Now, if you do good for anyone except God, you will get puffed-up and think you are a pretty nice person, and that's sin again. God says your righteousness, if not done to please God, is as a dirty menstrual cloth (Is. 64:6, original Hebrew). Since Jesus Christ said He wasn't good, and yet all He did was good, it would be blasphemy for us to think of ourselves as good, except through Jesus Christ (Luke 18:19; 24:19; Acts 10:38; John 21:25). Paul understood this, because he said, "I am convinced that there is no good thing in me" (Rom. 7:18; 8:1).

Now, there are some other directions to follow. You've got to care to get there, and you must start to finish. You must keep your eye upon the goal. You must persevere to win your soul (Luke 21:19). The more good you do, the better you'll feel. The better you feel, the more good you'll do. It's an endless glory race that makes you wear a happy face. Jesus said it is easy, pleasant and rewarding (Matt. 11:30; 6:33).

Jesus Christ wants you to come to Him (Matt. 11:28-29; 2 Tim. 2:7). This is why He came. Will you study His word daily so you can be taught by Him? Will you live to please God every day, in all that you think, do and say? If you do, He will please you, and bless all you do, and answer your prayers when you pray.

God can help you get out of the mess you are in if you will obey Him and live for Him daily.

Not Fishing for Complements

by David Hill
Associate Editor

One of the odd results of a state lottery is funding for a program that brings together the resources of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and 4-H division of the University of Minnesota Extension Service and encourages fishing. The program, MinnAqua combines and element of education with fishing — respect for the environment along with entertainment, sportsmanship, safety, the basics of water ecology and techniques of fishing. The program is funded through the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources, part of which is funded from the state lottery, Re-invest in Minnesota (RIM), and Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration Act.

Now, I would have a difficult time praising the lottery, but not so MinnAqua. The program provides thousands of youngsters an opportunity to fish, something which even in Minnesota — many would not otherwise have an opportunity to do.

Ideally, parents should be able to find the time to provide the kind of instruction and entertainment found in fishing. In our somewhat fractured society, however, where many children come from broken families or both parents have to work to keep food on the table, MinnAqua fills an important void.

On Wednesday, Dick Fihn, MinnAqua region 1 representative, conducted a fishing clinic for about 41 youngsters in Thief River Falls. By the end of the year, Fihn expects to have watched 1,800 youngsters complete the program in his district. With so many youngsters participating in the program you might expect a little chaos. For the most part, however, the children in Thief River Falls were intent on catching bullheads and pan fish. Some were there because parents needed a cheap babysitter, yet I believe they learned something anyway. Fihn also received assistance from several other groups and individuals.

As with so many programs, the support of the community, businesses, and various other organizations is vital to success. The program in Thief River Falls was a success because of Dick Fihn, MinnAqua, the DNR, 4-H division of the University of Minnesota Extension Service, several corporate sponsors, and local support, which came from the City Park and Recreation department, volunteers, and several businesses, which provided food for lunch and door prizes to maintain the interest of the youth and their desire to participate.

Hartz Foods Has "Tough Row To Hoe" Ahead

If the climate has ever been right for Hartz Foods of Thief River Falls to forge a recovery, this is probably the time. There seems to be a strong will for survival and the narrow brush with dissolution last Thursday may have been the solidifying factor that gets management, members and employees on the same track to recovery.

Despite optimism and enthusiasm and a positive viewpoint which will be directed toward recovery, the board of directors and whoever becomes the chief executive officer have a monumental task at hand to achieve profitability and hopefully growth and strength. But Hartz Foods has a long area tradition and strong loyalties to draw from in the effort.

We would encourage the leadership of the cooperative to be willing to share with a concerned and understanding public some of the efforts that are being made as the rebuilding task continues. We believe an outflow of such information from the company to the news media and thereby the public would do much to build confidence and support in the community.

Klingon Language Study Not An Alien Effort

Opening ceremonies of the hastily arranged Klingon language camp at Voyageur's View near Red Lake Falls Monday morning were rather impressive. The ceremonies were in fun, of course, and staged more for the benefit of the TV and other news cameras than the participants themselves.

The impressive part was not necessarily the costumes nor the planned territorial take-over of Voyageur's View by the Klingon nation, but the fact that a totally artificial language created for a television series—"Star Trek"—could have been contrived so completely and cleverly as to attract serious study.

For camp organizer and instructor Glen Proechel of Red Lake Falls, who already spoke 12 languages, Klingon was, as he explains it, "a lucky thirteenth." He first heard of the language in May and a short time later became intrigued by it. The language camp at Red Lake Falls has brought together several experts in the language who knew of one another but had never met in one place before.

Artificial languages are not new, Proechel said in remarks at the opening ceremonies. The most commonly known one has existed for about 100 years. Klingon was developed by Dr. Marc Okrand for Paramount Studios to add realism to the "Star Trek" series. He did such a complete job of it that students of language were inspired by his efforts.

As a result, while motivation varies among the 15 students registered for the Klingon camp in Red Lake Falls, much of the involvement is by rather scholarly people who have taken up study of the language as a hobby or an adjunct to their professions. But they are willing to have a little fun with the language as well, as evidenced by the opening ceremonies and such diversions as the Great Klingon Softball Wars. A Klingon flag has evolved, along with a battle song and national anthem. There will probably be more to come.

We're not interested in learning Klingon; we're still struggling with English. But we can see where linguists could get hooked on it and, who knows, Red Lake Falls may become the part of this planet where the alien nation vacations in the future.

Not Fishing for Complements

by David Hill
Associate Editor

One of the odd results of a state lottery is funding for a program that brings together the resources of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and 4-H division of the University of Minnesota Extension Service and encourages fishing. The program, MinnAqua combines and element of education with fishing — respect for the environment along with entertainment, sportsmanship, safety, the basics of water ecology and techniques of fishing. The program is funded through the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources, part of which is funded from the state lottery, Re-invest in Minnesota (RIM), and Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration Act.

Now, I would have a difficult time praising the lottery, but not so MinnAqua. The program provides thousands of youngsters an opportunity to fish, something which even in Minnesota — many would not otherwise have an opportunity to do.

Ideally, parents should be able to find the time to provide the kind of instruction and entertainment found in fishing. In our somewhat fractured society, however, where many children come from broken families or both parents have to work to keep food on the table, MinnAqua fills an important void.

On Wednesday, Dick Fihn, MinnAqua region 1 representative, conducted a fishing clinic for about 41 youngsters in Thief River Falls. By the end of the year, Fihn expects to have watched 1,800 youngsters complete the program in his district. With so many youngsters participating in the program you might expect a little chaos. For the most part, however, the children in Thief River Falls were intent on catching bullheads and pan fish. Some were there because parents needed a cheap babysitter, yet I believe they learned something anyway. Fihn also received assistance from several other groups and individuals.

As with so many programs, the support of the community, businesses, and various other organizations is vital to success. The program in Thief River Falls was a success because of Dick Fihn, MinnAqua, the DNR, 4-H division of the University of Minnesota Extension Service, several corporate sponsors, and local support, which came from the City Park and Recreation department, volunteers, and several businesses, which provided food for lunch and door prizes to maintain the interest of the youth and their desire to participate.

Hartz Foods Has "Tough Row To Hoe" Ahead

If the climate has ever been right for Hartz Foods of Thief River Falls to forge a recovery, this is probably the time. There seems to be a strong will for survival and the narrow brush with dissolution last Thursday may have been the solidifying factor that gets management, members and employees on the same track to recovery.

Despite optimism and enthusiasm and a positive viewpoint which will be directed toward recovery, the board of directors and whoever becomes the chief executive officer have a monumental task at hand to achieve profitability and hopefully growth and strength. But Hartz Foods has a long area tradition and strong loyalties to draw from in the effort.

We would encourage the leadership of the cooperative to be willing to share with a concerned and understanding public some of the efforts that are being made as the rebuilding task continues. We believe an outflow of such information from the company to the news media and thereby the public would do much to build confidence and support in the community.

Klingon Language Study Not An Alien Effort

Opening ceremonies of the hastily arranged Klingon language camp at Voyageur's View near Red Lake Falls Monday morning were rather impressive. The ceremonies were in fun, of course, and staged more for the benefit of the TV and other news cameras than the participants themselves.

The impressive part was not necessarily the costumes nor the planned territorial take-over of Voyageur's View by the Klingon nation, but the fact that a totally artificial language created for a television series—"Star Trek"—could have been contrived so completely and cleverly as to attract serious study.

For camp organizer and instructor Glen Proechel of Red Lake Falls, who already spoke 12 languages, Klingon was, as he explains it, "a lucky thirteenth." He first heard of the language in May and a short time later became intrigued by it. The language camp at Red Lake Falls has brought together several experts in the language who knew of one another but had never met in one place before.

"Artificial languages are not new, Proechel said in remarks at the opening ceremonies. The most commonly known one has existed for about 100 years. Klingon was developed by Dr. Marc Okrand for Paramount Studios to add realism to the "Star Trek" series. He did such a complete job of it that students of language were inspired by his efforts.

As a result, while motivation varies among the 15 students registered for the Klingon camp in Red Lake Falls, much of the involvement is by rather scholarly people who have taken up study of the language as a hobby or an adjunct to their professions. But they are willing to have a little fun with the language as well, as evidenced by the opening ceremonies and such diversions as the Great Klingon Softball Wars. A Klingon flag has evolved, along with a battle song and national anthem. There will probably be more to come.

We're not interested in learning Klingon; we're still struggling with English. But we can see where linguists could get hooked on it and, who knows, Red Lake Falls may become the part of this planet where the alien nation vacations in the future.

—The chairman of the Democratic national committee, in Minnesota last week, proposed a marriage of the Democratic and Farmer-Labor parties, but he didn't bring a shotgun with him.

—Mussolini, they tell us, can blame it all onto his fellow countryman, Christopher Columbus.

—Unfortunately, a nation's financial stability can't be judged by the amount of money in circulation.

—If the Nazis continue their strategic withdrawals, they will all be back in Germany before long.

—Shotgun shells, we hear, will be released only to shoot farm pests this fall, which suggests that a lot of hunters will undertake to prove that ducks are pests.

—We trust those Negro soldiers who are helping out in the North Dakota harvest fields don't spend their time looking for cotton bolls.

—Back in the depression years, when the government handed out relief money with a lavish hand, a lot of the recipients accepted it as a personal gift from a certain man in Washington, but they don't seem to hold the same gentleman responsible for steadily mounting federal taxes.

—Our readers, we are confident, are charitable enough not to judge the Times by the standing of its team in the Victory Golf league.

—Maybe the fact that the world is out of shape can be blamed onto the girdle shortage.

—Anent, that deal to cut down the supply of gas in the midwest to correspond with that along the East Coast, an observer notes, somewhat obliquely, that folks in Florida consume more oranges than those in Minnesota.

—Now we can breathe a sigh of relief. Another Friday the 13th is safely past.

—Remember way back when a married woman school teacher couldn't get a job?

"Food was never cheaper than to-day but still appeals are being sent out from the large cities asking for aid for working men who cannot obtain enough work to keep their families from starving. We are told in this part of the country that the reason for the low price of farm products is that we have an over production. Over producation and people starving. Surely something is radically wrong. Who is responsible? The republicans say the democrats and the democrats say the republicans. We say both. The present administration has adopted precisely the same policies as the former. Democrats instead of republicans holding the offices is the only difference up to date."

Mrs. Orlando Chervestad

WHEREAS, Pennington County has developed an application as an Administering Entity for the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency Rehabilitation Loan Programs; and

WHEREAS, Pennington County has demonstrated the ability to perform the required activities of the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency Rehabilitation Loan Programs;

Delton Schultz, County Engineer and Ernest and Adelaide Moe met with the County Board to discuss some land that Pennington County had purchased from the Moe's. The deed on this property includes a triangle of property that is actually owned by Mr. Jim Hayes and part of the property that Pennington County actually purchased from Ernest and Adelaide Moe was omitted. Mr. Schultz is requesting that the deed be revised to include the property that was actually purchased and remove the property that is owned by Mr. Hayes. Mr. Schultz is also requesting that a meets-and-bounds survey be performed to identify the correct boundary lines. Mr. and Mrs. Moe will split the cost of the survey with the County with Moe's portion of the survey not to exceed $500.00.

Moved by Commissioner Comstock, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to authorize the change in description on the deed and abstract to describe the actual land that was purchased from Ernest and Adelaide Moe. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Commissioner Jensen, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to authorize the County Engineer to have a meets and bounds survey performed on the land that Pennington County purchased from Ernest and Adelaide Moe. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Commissioner Murphy, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to authorize the 1993 land payment to Ernest and Adelaide Moe in the amount of $7,500.00 with the County cutting Moe's share of the cost of the survey off their 1994 land payment. Motion unanimously carried.

Gerald Moe, County Sheriff, then met with the Board to discuss the problems at the Law Enforcement Center that may cause possible OSHA citations. An electrician has been called to handle the electrical problems. The other possible citation has to do with the security camera in the garage of the L.E.C. the Inspector from Meadowbrook Insurance Co. had told the Sheriff to hold off on correcting this for now until they find out exactly what needs to be corrected.

Moved by Commissioner Jensen, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to direct the custodial staff to start painting at the L.E.C. on the morning of July 28, 1993. Motion unanimously carried.

Sheriff Moe then asked that he be authorized to hire an additional part-time dispatcher at the L.E.C. in order to cut back on the overtime. Moved by Commissioner Murphy, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to authorize Sheriff Moe, to advertise for an additional part-time dispatcher for the L.E.C. Motion unanimously carried.

Ken Olson, County Auditor then discussed the insurance on the machinery building at the Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village. It would cost approximately $530.00 to carry property insurance on the new building and general liability for the Pennington County Historical Society. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded Murphy to authorize payment of property insurance on the machinery building at the Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village and general liability insurance on the Pennington County Historical Society. Motion unanimously carried.

The following resolution was moved by Commissioner Murphy, seconded by Commissioner Comstock and upon vote was unanimously carried.

WHEREAS, Strata Corporation desires to annex the following described property to the City of Thief River Falls:

2. The City is more capable of providing for concerns related to environmental pollution;

3. That the annexation of this property will not affect Pennington County.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That Pennington County does support the Petition of Strata Corporation for the annexation of the unincorporated property requested.

Commencing at an iron monument at the northwest corner of said Government Lot 1, Section 2; thence South 00 degrees 30 minutes 42 seconds East, assumed bearing, along the west line of said Government Lot 1, Section 2 a distance of 33.00 feet to an iron pipe monument being the point of beginning of the tract to be described also being on the south line of Greenwood Street; thence South 89 degrees 39 minutes 50 seconds East along said south line 131.25 feet to an iron pipe monument; thence South 42 degrees 21 minutes 41 seconds East 284.43 feet to an iron pipe monument; thence South 89 degrees 39 minutes 50 seconds East, parallel with the north line of said Government Lot 1, Section 2 a distance of 975.81 feet, more or less to the centerline of Trunk Highway No. 59; thence South 40 degrees 27 minutes 00 seconds East along said centerline 33.02 feet; thence North 89 degrees 39 minutes 50 seconds West, parallel with the north line of said Government Lot 1, Section 2 a distance of 871.80 feet; thence South 00 degrees 30 minutes 42 seconds East 64.27 feet; thence South 89 degrees 59 minutes 59 seconds West 565.76 feet to the center line of County Ditch No. 1; thence North 25 degrees 11 minutes 04 seconds West along said centerline 326.18 feet to the said south line of Greenwood Street; thence North 88 degrees 42 minutes 22 seconds East along said south line 255.45 feet to the point of beginning, containing 3.79 acres, more or less, subject to easements, restrictions or reservations of record, if any.

WHEREAS, Pennington County supports the Petition for Annexation for the following reasons:

1. The Township of Rocksbury in which the property is located is not capable of supplying water and sewer services required by the property owners and the County does not desire to supply water and sewer services;

2. The property is undeveloped brush land and does not provide value to the County. The land is best suited for development of City needs and the Township and County are not capable or providing services needed for that type of development;

3. The property is adjacent only to the City of Thief River Falls and there are not other communities or townships affected by the Petition.

4. That the annexation of this property will not affect the ability of the remainder of the Township and County to continue.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That Pennington County does support the Petition of the property owners for the annexation of the unincorporated property requested.

The County Auditor then informed the County Board the Ford Tandem Truck that the Highway Department ordered has been delivered without the snowplow equipment. Thorson Inc. Bemidji, MN $184,431.36

Crookston, MN $159,364.60

The County Engineer returned to the meeting at this time with property owners on Johnson Drive. After some discussion the County Board agreed that if the bids were rejected by North Township that the project could be readvertised at a later date with this project to be included in the bid of another project. This would put the project construction back to the spring of 1994. North Township Supervisors will be reviewing the bids at their meeting 8-2-93.

Delton Schultz and Godfred Svir then discussed the flooding problems that property owner near C.D. #1 were having due to the cattails. The cost to clean C.D. #1 would be more than the amount of funds available in the C.D. #1 account. Moved by Commissioner Murphy, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to authorize the County Highway Department to clean C.D. #1 and borrow funds from other ditches. Motion carried.

The County Engineer then reviewed the County Highway Departments 1994 budget and answered any questions that the County Board had.

Scab causes slight to severe damage to crops in area

Marshall county wheat producers are not only contending with standing water from excessive rain, but also from a multitude of disease organisms, especially scab, reports Ray Thompson, Extension Educator.

Yield and quality loss due to scab in the county will range from slight to very severe on a field by field basis. Scab is present throughout the entire 400,000 county wheat acreage.

Exact damage will be determined in the next several weeks as harvest of wheat gets underway.

Head Blight (Scab) of Small Grains

Scab or head blight is a fungus disease that can occur on all small grain crops. Yield losses form scab are due to sterility of the florets (flowers) and to formation of shriveled, light test-weight kernels, some of which may pass out the back of the combine.

Scabby grain may be downgraded at the market. Scab not only causes yield losses and poorer grade, but may also be associated with fungal toxins, (mycotoxins) that are hazardous to livestock.

Symptoms

Any part or all of the head may appear bleached. These white heads are very conspicuous in a green field. Frequently only part of the head (often the upper half) is affected by scab. If scab is suspected, look for these half-and-half heads.

Stem maggots and root rot may also cause white heads. If the damage is caused by stem maggots, the heads can be pulled out easily from the sheaths, and the end of the stem will appear to have been chewed. White heads caused by scab may be distinguished from those caused by the prematurity blight phase of common root rot in that the upper leaves below scab-killed heads remain green, but root rot kills both head and leaves.

Some scab-infected kernels are shriveled, light-weight and a dull grayish or pinkish color. Other scab-infected kernels may be normal sized, although they may have a dull appearance. In prolonged wet weather, pink to orange thread-like strands and spore masses of the fungus are often seen on the scabbed spikelet/heads. Seedling blight may occur when scabby grain is planted and result in weak seedlings and a poor stand.

Survival and Spread

Scab is caused by fungi in the genus Fusarium. The fungus persist and multiplies on crop residues of corn and on infected grain heads. During warm, moist weather, spores of the fungus are windblown or splashed onto the heads. Insects have also been shown to transfer the fungus from diseased to healthy plants.

Infection occurs primarily during pollination when the fungus becomes established on the exposed anthers and then grows into the kernels, glumes or other parts of the head. The disease level increases with prolonged periods of high humidity, especially when temperatures are 75 to 85 degrees.

These infections may produce airborne spores which are responsible for short to long distance spread. As scab development depends on favorable conditions during flowering, the disease is sporadic and the severity varies from year to year according to prevailing weather.

Control

No resistant varieties are available. Seed treatment and the use of quality seed will protect against Fusarium seedling blight but not against Fusarium head blight. A fungicide spray program for control of leaf diseases may reduce scab damage somewhat, but this has not been well documented. No fungicides are currently registered for control of scab.

Proper crop management techniques include use of tillage practices that bury crop residue, as the fungus survives best on surface residue.

If scab was a serious problem in previous years, crop rotation to a non-host crop should be considered, especially under no till or reduced tillage practices. Planting of small grains on or near corn land should be avoided.

Use of corn-wheat or corn-barley rotations greatly increases the risk of scab infection. Species of Fusarium that cause scab also attack corn and survive on corn residue. At harvesting the combine may be adjusted so that light test-weight scabby wheat kernels are not so easily removed in the combining process.

Mycotoxins

Visible scab damage is considered a part of total kernel damage by the Federal Grain Inspection Service and, if excessive, will lower the market grade. Severely affected grain may be graded "feed" rather than "milling."

Scabby grain may contain fungus-produced toxins called mycotoxins. Their presence in the scabby kernels is dependent on weather conditions and the species of fungus present. Toxins are not always present in scabby grain. The mycotoxins may cause vomiting and feed refusal in nonruminants and estrogenic effects in breeding animals.

Scabby grain should not be fed to swine, young poultry, horses, dairy cows or breeding beef cows. The diagnostic lab at the University of Minnesota is equipped to test samples for a fee. Livestock producers may want to call the Extension Office for a list of certified labs.

ODC accredited for three years

Occupational Development Center, Inc., of Thief River Falls has received three-year accreditation from the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities, according to word received by the ODC from Donald E. Galvin, president of the commission.

In a letter to Peter Lavalier, president and chief executive officer of the ODC, Galvin said the organization "has successfully met high standards for performance and has been accredited for a period of three years from the following programs and services: Vocational evaluation, work adjustment, job placement, work services and supported employment.

"This significant achievement," the letter continues, "is a further indication of your organization's dedication and commitment to improve the quality of the lives of people with disabilities. The tenure of this accreditation award will extend through June 1996."

Lavalier said that the commission's accreditation followed a visit and survey by evaluators and issuance of a report citing recommendations for implementation by the ODC. A report on that implementation is to be submitted to the commission in the next 90 days. Lavalier said he was pleased by the full accreditation and with the few recommendations brought to the center's attention.

"Everyone involved in your organization can take pride in the unique distinction of achieving accreditation," Galvin stated in his letter. "The commission encourages your organization to continue to fully and productively utilize the standards on an ongoing basis and to maintain your knowledge of the accreditation criteria, and possible changes in the Accreditation Policies and Procedures section of the Standards Manual.

"We commend you for your performance which has resulted in accreditation and your consistent efforts to improve the quality of your program," he concluded.

Prior to expiration of the accreditation in 1996, the commission will conduct a resurvey to assess the continuing conformance with the standards.

Lavalier said that this is the fourth accreditation of the ODC by the commission and all have been for the maximum three-year period.

Pennington adopts floodplain ordinance

Ordinance approved by State Department of Natural Resources and Federal Emergency Management Agency

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), Division of Waters, and the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) have recently approved a new floodplain management ordinance for Pennington county. The new ordinance will be administered by Delton D. Schulz, Pennington county engineer, from his offices in Thief River Falls.

The ordinance sets new standards and regulations for the construction of new buildings in flood-prone areas as well as repairs, remodeling and new additions to existing residential, commercial and agricultural buildings. It also establishes new land use regulations throughout the floodplain.

The 28-page ordinance was adapted from a model ordinance recommended by FEMA, which also oversees the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP). A floodplain management ordinance approved by FEMA is required before home owners and small businesses in a community can qualify for federally subsidized flood insurance

The ordinance applies on to what are termed "floodway" and "flood fringe" areas which, as they have been identified in Pennington county, comprise a narrow ribbon of land on either side of the Red Lake and Thief rivers—which span most of the length and width of Pennington county; plus a small segment of the Clearwater river—which runs through the southeast corner of the county.

The floodplain is further defined as those areas affected by a 100-year event—not the maximum possible flood elevation but levels that, each year, are at risk down to a one per cent chance of being flooded.

"Property owners along or near river beds in Pennington county should check with the county engineer before doing any construction, excavating, remodeling or major repairs," Schulz said.

"Even if a land owner has no intention of purchasing flood insurance, the county still has a responsibility to manage all activities in the floodplain and landowners must apply for a permit to do almost any kind of construction project or special land-use within the river floodplains.

"At a minimum," explained Schulz, "land owners should check the floodplain maps in our office if there's any doubt about whether their property lies inside or outside the floodplain."

Floodplain maps, developed as part of an overall floodplain management plan, are also used to categorize risk and set insurance rates for flood insurance.

"Most banks and other mortgage lenders already require flood insurance for property within flood-prone areas," Schulz added. ""The

Flood insurance available for most homes, businesses

Every year the Federal Emergency Management Agency's National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) reimburses thousands of policy holders for flood losses to structures covered by the program, according to Judy Boudreau of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Division of Waters, Floodplain Management.

Although there are as many as 17,000 structures located in identified flood-prone areas in Minnesota, only about 5,500 of them are covered by flood insurance, according to statistics from the Division of Waters.

"The major flood events of 1993 have once again raised many questions—and many misconceptions—about the availability and coverage of federal flood insurance," Boudreau said.

She has supplied the following list of "myths" and "facts" compiled by the NFIP and adapted to Minnesota by the DNR Division of Waters:

Myth—You can't buy flood insurance if you are located in a high-risk flood area.

Peterson on Teacher Honor Roll

Diane Peterson, teacher at Washington elementary school in Thief River Falls and School District 564 Teacher of the Year, is among 12 finalists for Minnesota Teacher of the Year honors.

Peterson was named earlier to the Teachers of Excellence list, a group of entrants selected to continue in the first elimination portion of the Teacher of the Year program. That list was recently shortened to 12 finalists known as Honor Roll Teachers. Entries are reviewed by a panel of 27 guest judges who evaluate candidates' teaching philosophies, professional development, community involvement and recommendations from students, colleagues and others.

In recommendations, students described the Honor Roll Teachers as imaginative, enthusiastic, motivating, energetic role models who put students first, build bridges instead of walls and make learning fun. Many cited their own pleasant surprise that they actually look forward to school.

"If you fondly remember a teacher in your past who helped you excel and made a difference in your life, you're not alone," states Robert E. Astrup, president of the sponsoring Minnesota Education Association.

"These Honor Roll Teachers represent thousands throughout Minnesota who are still giving students the care, attention and preparation necessary to meet the challenges of the future with a smile."

Minnesota's Teacher of the Year for 1993 will be announced at an October 10 luncheon at the Minneapolis Airport Marriott Hotel in Bloomington. He or she will serve as an ambassador of education throughout the state for 1993-94.

Rita Wigfield, 1992 Minnesota Teacher of the Year, has given 74 presentations so far to teacher workshops, government agencies, community groups, Rotary club, businesses, colleges and church groups.

Other finalists on the Honor Roll of Teachers are David LaShomb, senior high school, Brainerd; Donna Swindal, elementary school, Burnsville; John Eret, Centennial senior high school ; Bonnie Lutz, elementary school, Evansville; and Thomas Hegg, Breck school, Golden Valley;

Also Patricia Hughes, Kelliher public school; Jerome Jensen, high school, Luverne; Ruth Anne dePitera, elementary school, Minneapolis; Craig Paulson, middle school, Mounds View; Rita Welch, Island Lake school, Mounds View; and George Kimball, high school, White Bear Lake.

PARENTING TIPS

Conflict Resolution

Following are some ideas that may be helpful in trying to resolve conflicts:

- Take a deep breath when you are experiencing conflict. The old adage: "Count to Ten" is useful not only to prevent impulsive reactions but also to give you time to listen to yourself and to observe others. Take in as much data as you can about yourself and others before reacting.
- Try to pinpoint the real issue. What is being discussed may not be the real issue.
- Use specific rather than general language. Confrontation is most effective when it is specific and timely. To generalize, "you always.." or "you never..." is not helpful. Rather be specific such as "yesterday you did not pick up your clothes."
- Be willing to say NO. "No" can be a loving word. It is more loving of you to say "no" if and when something does not feel right to you than to say "yes."
- Be aware that people handle conflict differently. Some are quick to temper; others are slow. Some want to talk about conflict right away, some want time to relect and think about it (including your children). Use the following list of suggestions as needed depending on the situation.

✓ Smooth over
✓ Listen
✓ Blow up
✓ Compromise
✓ Talk it over
✓ Be specific
✓ Back down
✓ Seek clarification
✓ Seek alternatives
✓ Ask for help
✓ Count to ten

Grinding Days are slated Sept. 4-6 at Old Mill State Park

Steam whistle will sound again as the historic grist mill is fired up at Old Mill State Park Sunday and Monday, Sept. 5 and 6.

Visitors to the park will be able to see, first hand, the grinding stones turn wheat kernels into flour and bran. The mill will be in operation and the century-old miller's cabin will be open for tours from 1 to 4 p.m. each of those two days.

An eight-horsepower Case steam engine provides power to turn the French burr stones that the Larson family first put into use at the Old Mill site well over 100 years ago. Members of the Marshall County Historical Society provide the manpower necessary to operate the mill, under the Department of Natural Resources volunteers-in-parks program. The flour and bran will be available for purchase.

Visitors are also encouraged to make use of the other facilities in the park – an expansive picnic area, large picnic shelter, swimming beach, volleyball court, horseshoe pits, and ball field.

Operation of the mill is part of the Labor Day weekend Grinding Days celebration at the park.

Activities include horseshoe and softball competition vs. park personnel beginning at 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 5. Campers and picnickers are invited to be part of the 'share your supper' potluck that night at 6 at the picnic shelter. You are asked to bring your own eating utinsels, but beverages will be provided.

In addition to the mill operation, the Sept. 5-6, park activity will include horse and wagon rides and pioneer life demonstrations, including period dress, cow milking, weaving, and butter churning. Lemonade and coffee will be served, and wheat bread and jam samples will be available.

Naturalist programs scheduled Sunday, Sept. 5, include a prairie trail walk at 10 a.m. and cattail doll making at 1 p.m.

Old Mill State Park is located 10 miles west of Newfolden. All events at the park are free of charge, but vehicle permits are required to enter the park. Campground reservations may be made by calling 1-800-765-CAMP.

For additional information about the park and its activities call the Old Mill State Park office at 437-8174.

Grinding Days are slated Sept. 4-6 at Old Mill State Park

Steam whistle will sound again as the historic grist mill is fired up at Old Mill State Park Sunday and Monday, Sept. 5 and 6.

Visitors to the park will be able to see, first hand, the grinding stones turn wheat kernels into flour and bran. The mill will be in operation and the century-old miller's cabin will be open for tours from 1 to 4 p.m. each of those two days.

An eight-horsepower Case steam engine provides power to turn the French burr stones that the Larson family first put into use at the Old Mill site well over 100 years ago. Members of the Marshall County Historical Society provide the manpower necessary to operate the mill, under the Department of Natural Resources volunteers-in-parks program. The flour and bran will be available for purchase.

Visitors are also encouraged to make use of the other facilities in the park – an expansive picnic area, large picnic shelter, swimming beach, volleyball court, horseshoe pits, and ball field.

Operation of the mill is part of the Labor Day weekend Grinding Days celebration at the park.

Activities include horseshoe and softball competition vs. park personnel beginning at 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 5. Campers and picnickers are invited to be part of the 'share your supper' potluck that night at 6 at the picnic shelter. You are asked to bring your own eating utinsels, but beverages will be provided.

In addition to the mill operation, the Sept. 5-6, park activity will include horse and wagon rides and pioneer life demonstrations, including period dress, cow milking, weaving, and butter churning. Lemonade and coffee will be served, and wheat bread and jam samples will be available.

Naturalist programs scheduled Sunday, Sept. 5, include a prairie trail walk at 10 a.m. and cattail doll making at 1 p.m.

Old Mill State Park is located 10 miles west of Newfolden. All events at the park are free of charge, but vehicle permits are required to enter the park. Campground reservations may be made by calling 1-800-765-CAMP.

For additional information about the park and its activities call the Old Mill State Park office at 437-8174.

Plans underway to hold second cultural festival

Despite smaller crowds than expected and disappointing financial results at the All Nations Cultural Festival in St. Hilaire August 20-22, preliminary plans are to hold a second annual event in 1994.

Organizer Ed Leeper said that he received many favorable comments about the event and that everyone who attended seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves, but a combination of circumstances reduced the number of people attending from what had been anticipated.

Harvest season getting underway, other celebrations in the area and predictions of rain (which did fall) Sunday were factors cutting into the attendance.

"The rain on Sunday wasn't a big problem," Leeper said. "We just moved the entertainment under the tent and the show went on."

There were a number of campers who participated in the festival and many of those who came to the event wore ethnic costumes, adding to the festivities.

"The community of St. Hilaire is determined not to let this first year's experience deter them from establishing what can be a great event," Leeper said.

Plans underway to hold second cultural festival

Despite smaller crowds than expected and disappointing financial results at the All Nations Cultural Festival in St. Hilaire August 20-22, preliminary plans are to hold a second annual event in 1994.

Organizer Ed Leeper said that he received many favorable comments about the event and that everyone who attended seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves, but a combination of circumstances reduced the number of people attending from what had been anticipated.

Harvest season getting underway, other celebrations in the area and predictions of rain (which did fall) Sunday were factors cutting into the attendance.

"The rain on Sunday wasn't a big problem," Leeper said. "We just moved the entertainment under the tent and the show went on."

There were a number of campers who participated in the festival and many of those who came to the event wore ethnic costumes, adding to the festivities.

"The community of St. Hilaire is determined not to let this first year's experience deter them from establishing what can be a great event," Leeper said.

CAP fund raiser set

To secure sufficient funds to sustain a Civil Air Patrol aircraft to be stationed at the Thief River Falls regional airport, the local Civil Air Patrol Squadron has embarked on a fund-raising campaign.

One of the events will be a spaghetti and meatball supper to be served Saturday, August 28, from 5 to 8:30 p.m. at the regional airport. Cost of the meal will be $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for children 12 and younger with an entertainment program, including showing of a CAP film, to begin at 8:30 p.m.

A spokesman for the local CAP squadron said that planes are made available free of charge but the host squadrons are required to provide maintenance and insurance and pay for the fuel used. He estimated the cost at about $6,000 per year.

Although a fairly new organization, the local Civil Air Patrol unit has been involved in a number of training missions as well as aerial searches for drowning victims and missing persons.

...School Clothes Shopping

School will be starting in a couple of weeks. Something that must be done before the big day is shopping for school clothes.

I used to hate shopping for school clothes when I had elementary-age children. Maybe part of the problem was that for many years I had three children to shop for. Then, later, I had three teenagers who, thank heaven, did their own shopping, but two more elementary-age children came along to shop for. I did plenty school clothes shopping.

I always waited to shop until the last week or two before school started, probably because I disliked the chore so much. This was not a wise thing to do. By the time we got to the stores, most of the good things in the right sizes were gone and we had to take the leftovers. Then too, my children never had time to break in their new shoes, so they were the ones who came home limping with blisters after the first day of school.

It was always a sweltering hot, humid day in August when we went school clothes shopping. The children would be crabby and tired even before we started. I don't think they liked it any more than I did.

Underwear, socks and shoes were the easiest things to buy. Sometimes the shoes were not exactly the right brand, but we took what we could get. The hard part came when we tried to find the other clothing.

The other clothes had to be tried on—in little cubicles—with not a breath of air in them. The clothes that were being tried on were not cool summer clothes, either, but long-sleeved shirts and sweaters and long-legged pants. I can still see the children's poor little faces, red and sweaty, hair stuck to their foreheads.

There would be a child, call him or her Child A, struggling into clothing that was always either too big or too small. I would be peeling the clothing item off the child and racing out of the cubicle to the racks and shelves, trying to find another size that might fit.

In the meantime, in the next cubicle would be Child B, looking the same and having the same problems. Child C was in another cubicle, ditto.

There would be cries of "Mom" from all of the cubicles and I would run from one cubicle to another hauling various items of clothing to and fro. In a short time, my face was just as red and sweaty and my hair just as plastered to my forehead as the children's.

I can still see the woebegone expression on the little red faces that greeted me as I entered the cubicle. There they stood in their stocking feet, sleeves hanging far beyond the tips of their fingers and pant legs rolled up a foot or more, perspiration dripping from their faces.

By this time, I was ready to take anything that halfway fit. No matter what it was, I would say, "We'll get it—I can shorten it." And I did. I would spend hours on the sewing machine fixing clothing that didn't fit. To this day, I hate sewing on denim.

When school time rolls around each year I can't help but feel sorry for all of those mothers who have to go school clothes shopping with their children. But I want to tell those mothers, take heart—the children will get bigger and one day they will do their own school clothes shopping. All you will have to do then is pay the bills (which will be substantial).

Yes, there are many times I envy those young mothers and I long for the good old days when my children were small, but this time of year is not one of them.

A 20 horsepower pump will draw water from a river inlet and circulate it through an underground system to all the holes on the course. Flood insurance available if your community belongs to the NFIP. The program was created in 1968 to provide flood insurance to people who live in areas with the greatest risk of flooding, called Special Flood Hazard Areas (SFHAs). In fact, under the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973, lenders must require borrowers whose property is located within a SFHA to purchase flood insurance as a condition of receiving a federally-backed mortgage loan.

Lenders should notify borrowers that their property is located in a SFHA and that affordable federal flood insurance is available.

Myth—You can't buy flood insurance immediately before or during a flood.

Fact—You can purchase flood coverage at any time. There is a five-day waiting period after you've applied and paid the premium before the policy is effective. But if the title of a property is transferred, there's no waiting period—the policy goes into effect the day you apply and pay the premium.

The policy does not cover a "loss in progress," defined by the NFIP as a loss occurring as of 12:01 a.m. on the first day of the policy term. In addition, it is not possible to increase the amount of insurance coverage you have during a loss in progress.

Myth—Homeowners insurance policies cover flooding.

Fact—Unfortunately, many homeowners do not find out until it is too late that their homeowners' policies do not cover flooding. (A rider can be purchased, however, to cover sewer backup, which is not covered by federal flood insurance). Federal flood insurance protects your most valuable assets—your home and belongings.

Myth—Flood insurance is available only for homeowners.

Fact—Flood insurance is available to protect homes, condominiums, apartments and commercial structures. A maximum of $185,000 of building coverage is available for single-family residential buildings; $250,000 for multi-family residences. The limit for contents coverage on all residential buildings is $60,000.

Commercial structures can be insured to a limit of $200,000 for the building and $200,000 for the contents. Commercial coverage is also available for small businesses, with limits of $250,000 for the building and $300,000 for contents. In communities in which a detailed flood map has not yet been produced, the maximum coverages are lower.

Myth—You can't buy flood insurance if your property has been flooded.

Fact—It doesn't matter how many times your home, apartment or business has flooded. You are still eligible to purchase flood insurance, provided that your community is participating in the NFIP.

Myth—Only residents of high risk flood zones need to insure their property.

Fact—Even if you live in an area which is not flood-prone, it's advisable to have flood insurance. One-third of the NFIP's claims come from outside high risk flood areas.

Even structures located in a flood zone which have been elevated properly can be flooded. The technical studies are based on a statistical "one per cent chance" storm, and errors in modeling, unforeseen downstream blockages, etc., can cause flood waters to rise higher than anticipated.

The NFIP's Preferred Rick Policy, available for as little as $75 per year, is designed for residential properties located in low-to-moderate flood risk zones.

Myth—The NFIP does not offer any type of basement coverage.

Fact—Yes, it does. The NFIP defines a basement as any area of a building with a floor which is subgrade, or below ground level on all sides. Basement coverage under a NFIP policy includes cleanup expenses and items used to service the building, such as elevators, furnaces, water heaters, washers and dryers, air conditioners and freezers. Required utility connections, circuit breaker boxes and pumps and tanks used in solar energy systems are also included.

What's not covered under the policy are the contents of a finished basement and improvements, such as finished walls, floors and ceilings.

Myth—Federal disaster assistance will pay for flood damage.

Fact—Before a community is eligible for disaster assistance, it must be declared a federal disaster area. Federal disaster assistance declarations are awarded in less than 50 per cent of flooding incidents. The annual premium for a NFIP policy—about $300 per year—is less expensive than a loan payment for a federal disaster loan, when the loan is granted on favorable terms.

Further, if you are uninsured and receive federal disaster assistance after a flood, you must purchase flood insurance to receive disaster relief in the future.

Myth—Federal flood insurance can only be purchased through the NFIP directly.

Fact—Federal flood insurance is sold and serviced directly through the NFIP (via your insurance agent), or through a "Write Your Own" (WYO) company. WYO companies write and service policies on a nonrisk-bearing basis through a special arrangement with the Federal Insurance Administration.

Economic Development loans offered

Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development is accepting applications for the state's economic development program—designed to create new jobs or retain existing jobs when other funding sources are inadequate.

The program, funded by both state and federal dollars, awards grants to local governments which, in turn, may make loans to new or expanding manufacturing or industrial businesses for eligible fixed asset activities.

Under the program, city, county, township and recognized Indian tribal government are eligible to apply for a grant of up to $500,000 each year. When a community has qualified for a grant, the funds may be used in one of two ways. The money may be used to finance infrastructure improvements necessary to support businesses intending to locate in a Minnesota community. Second, the community may use the funds to make a loan to local new or expanding businesses for the purchase of land, buildings or production equipment.

The program is not intended to fund entire projects. Its purpose is to bridge the gap between the amount of money the business can raise through conventional financing sources and the amount it will actually need in order to expand or start up. Working capital loans or loans for the development of retail businesses are not eligible for the program.

Applications will be accepted throughout the year. To receive an application or obtain more information about the Economic Development Program, contact Mike Auger at 612-296-5005.

new ordinance should make it easier for everyone to buy, sell and insure properties within the floodplain."

Until now, most of Pennington county—outside the city limits of Thief River Falls—had no permit system or zoning requirements that regulated the types of buildings that could be constructed.

The county is pretty new to the zoning business," Schulz said, "but the DNR has helped a lot and we had to update our floodplain ordinance so county residents who needed it could qualify for flood insurance."

Land owners who have questions about the new ordinance, or who want to check the flood plain maps, should contact Delton Schulz at 681-1221.

Some of the Catholic Youth of the Tri-Parish returned from an eight-day pilgrimage to Denver for World Youth Day. Enroute, they stoped in Moorhead for a send-off prayer service, then went on to Bismarck where they joined many more youth and spent the night.

On Tuesday they drove to Spearfish, SD where they attended Mass in the amphitheater with 8,000 in attendance and also attended the Passion Play. Wednesday found them on their way to Denver, CO where they had opening Mass at the Civic Center Park.

On Thursday Mass was held in Denver and they also had Reconciliation, cultural events, music festival and many other activities. The highlight was the Papal welcome at Mile High Stadium.

Our youth were very fortunate to have good seats close to Pope John Paul II. Friday was spent like Thursday with the highlight of the day beginning with the "Stations of the Cross" acted out at Mile High Stadium.

On Saturday a Pilgrim's Mass was held at the Civic Center Park and then they were dropped off at Cherry Creek Park where they stayed overnight under the stars. When everyone was settled for the night, the park was covered with sleeping bags and back packs.

At 7:00 P.M., Pope John Paul II arrived for the Papal visit. At that point about 240,000 were in attendance, with that number doubling on Sunday. Sunday's Mass was from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. At approximately 5 p.m., they headed for the busses to start their journey home.

They stopped overnight at Belle Fourche and on home the next day arriving in Crookston where a host of friends and family met them with fanfare.

Attending were: Kim Magers, Farrah Brantl, Shawn McMullen, Aaron Chaput, Paul Melby, Patty Berberich, Jennie Gagner, Darci Delage, Jolene Fallon, Sheila Riendeau, Dan Gagner, Jason Bregler, Chad Stockwell and Rachel Demarais. Adults with them were Jan Frietag, Tom and Judie Fallon. It must have been an unforgettable pilgrimage!

AUTO SAFETY TEST

You know how to be a safe driver. It's the other people on the road that cause accidents. Sound familiar? Just to check your auto safety knowledge, take the following quiz:

TRUE OR FALSE?

1) About 60 per cent of all car accidents occur at speeds of less than 40 mph.

2) One drink won't affect my driving.

3) If my car has an airbag, I don't need to wear a safety belt.

4) In a crash, it's safer to be thrown out of a car.

ANSWERS:

1) True. Nearly 8 out of 10 crashes occur at speeds under 40 mph, because most driving is done at low speeds or in urban areas.

2) False. Your brain is susceptible to even small amounts of alcohol, and operates more slowly and with less accuracy.

3) False. You need both. The airbag protects you only if you're involved in a front-end collision.

4) False. Your chances of being fatally injured are almost 25 per cent greater if you're thrown from the car than if you're safely seat-belted.

Remember, safe driving protects you and your family, and helps control your insurance rates. Some people have misconceptions about car insurance as well. Not all policies are the same. Stop at NORTHERN STATE AGENCY to compare, and ask how to get the best insurance value for your money. NORTHERN STATE AGENCY - located in the Northern State Bank building.

Tim Delmore chipped on to the green during Sunday's championship flight finals against Tom Williams in the Thief River Golf Club Tournament. Delmore won the title in 1992, but surrendered the crown to Williams this year.

Williams beats Delmore in golf finals

Tom Williams came from behind Sunday to beat Tim Delmore in the 18-hole match play championship flight finals of the 1993 Thief River Golf Club Tournament.

Delmore, the defending champion, was 2-up after 15, but Williams won the final three holes for the title.

Club champion in 1989, Williams won two of the first three holes, but Delmore finished the first trip around the 9-hole lay-out with wins on No. 7, 8 and 9 for a 2-up edge at the clubhouse stop.

Williams cut into the spread on No. 12, but Delmore appeared to take control with a win on No. 15. A victory on any of the final three holes would have wrapped up the title for Delmore, but Williams met the challenge down the stretch.

The golfers had to contend with a wind-driven rain through much of the first nine, but managed to complete the second swing around the course with little additional rain. Delmore won the 1992 tournament in rain.

Derek Larson, the tournament champion in 1990 and 1991, beat Corey DeLap in the championship flight consolation final.

Jeff Hendrickson defeated Roger Anderson in the finals of the president's flight.

Swimmers begin year with 15 letter winners

Fifteen returning letter winners were on the roster as the Thief River Falls girls reported for the start of the 1993 high school swimming season last week.

The Prowlers open their schedule Tuesday, Aug. 31, with a 1 p.m. triangular at Detroit Lakes, which will also include Crookston.

There were only three seniors on last year's team, but they were top-notch performers Amy Adams, Ingrid Morken and Sanna Torgerson.

"We lost three very good swimmers, but we've got a strong group of kids back," said Thief River Falls coach Ryan Lokken. "We're looking pretty solid. We're bigger (number-wise) than we were last year. I think we should have a good year."

The letter winners on hand include seniors Jane Bentson and Lisa Ulrich; juniors Theresa Giauque, Sarah Harger, Mandy Johnson, and Mandy Sjaaheim; sophomores Robin Bollesen, Becky Mattson, Kelly Newton, Jennifer Olin, Myndy Olson, and Cami Sorenson; freshmen Becky Harger and Melanie Johnson; along with eighth grader Sunny Carlson.

Giauque and Olin enjoyed considerable success in summer programs. A member of the Thief River Falls USS program, Giauque advanced from the North Dakota Long Course Championships to the 13-state area USS zone meet in Wichita, Kansas. Olin, diving out of Crookston under the director of UND coach Brian Strom, placed in both the one-meter and three-meter U.S. diving state meet.

"The three seniors were lost were all excellent freestylers," pointed out Lokken. "That will change the face of our team considerably. Thief River Falls has had one of the best freestyle line-ups in the section the past couple of years, but now we're going to be stronger in the strokes than in the freestyle."

Others on hand for the start of practice included sophomore Jenny Flynn; freshmen Alicia Bakken, Gretchen Bataldèn, Kristin Chrzanowski, and Kelsy Stalborger; eighth graders Amanda Clark, Rachel Dahlen, Wendy Lindquist, Beth Mattson, and Rochelle Gilbertson; seventh graders Marisa Holmstrom, Krista Phillips, Katrina Holtan, Nicole Kopari, and Laura Follett; along with sixth graders Erin Delmar, Lindsay Ehrenstrom, Beth Knapp, Rachel Mattson, Andrea Olin, Meghan Reed, Andrea Sorvig, and Jenny Sorvig.

"We've got lots of potential among the young kids," mentioned Lokken. "Our program should be in good shape in the years to come."

Denise Nelson is the Prowlers' assistant coach.

Thief River Falls' 1993 home opener will be a Friday, Sept. 3, dual vs. Fergus Falls at the Franklin Middle School pool.

Three home dates open Lincoln tennis schedule

Thief River Falls girls are scheduled to make five appearances at home during the 1993 high school tennis season, and three of those starts come this week as the Jay Forney-coached Prowlers open the year with a bang.

Roseau was scheduled to be Thief River Falls for a 1 p.m. dual Tuesday to start things, followed by a 5 p.m. dual vs. Alexandria today (Wednesday) and then the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational Thursday beginning at 9 a.m.

Only other home appearances for the Prowlers this year will be a Thursday, Sept. 9, dual vs. Mahnomen and a Thursday, Sept. 30 quadrangular when the Prowlers will be joined by East Grand Forks, Roseau, and Park Rapids Area.

Sports Boosters meet Thursday

Initial Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club meeting of the 1993-94 season will be held Thursday, Aug. 26, at 12-noon at the Elks Club.

Members will be putting the finishing touches to Saturday's Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview, and will hear from guest speakers Lee Alger, School District 564 Activities Director, and Rick Nelson, Northland Community College Athletic Director.

Club officials hope a number of people who have an interest in supporting Lincoln High School and Northland Community College activities programs will be in attendance at the weekly luncheon meetings.

Lincoln football coach Jeff Mumm and volleyball coach Helen Anderson will be guest speakers at the Sept. 2 meeting.

Connie Dorn won the women's state title and Tony Dorn Jr. was the overall state runner-up during the recent Sporting Clays Association state championships in LeSueur. The pair will compete in the SCA national tournament at San Antonio, Texas Sept. 15-20.

Shooters head to national meet

Connie and Tony Dorn Jr., after competing successfully at the state level, will take a shot at national competition when the Thief River Falls husband and wife combination heads to San Antonio, Texas for the Sept. 15-20 national Sporting Clays Association meet.

The SCA state meet was held Aug. 14-15 in LeSueur, where Connie won the women's title and Tony wound up overall state runner-up – one target behind the winner.

The two Thief River Falls shooters brought medals and a silver cup back from their trip to southern Minnesota.

It was the second state runner-up finish for Tony Dorn Jr., who shoots in the second level of the Class AA, A, B, C competition. The overall honors, however, cover all classes.

A third Thief River Falls shooter on hand at the state meet, Sandy Wilson, did not place.

Sporting clays has been described as a golf course for shot gun enthusiasts.

Volleyball team has just two seniors...

Prowlers have young squad

Pre-season high school volleyball drills began state-wide Monday. In Thief River Falls, Helen Anderson started her 12th year as head coach with six letter winners among the 32 girls in grades 9-through-12 showing up on Day 1.

"We're young," said Anderson, whose roster includes just two seniors. Over half of those reporting Monday (17) were freshmen.

Graduation took four seniors from an 8-15 team and when a handful of last year's juniors and sophomore elected not to play volleyball this year, the Prowlers were instantly transformed into a young squad. They're also short on height.

"We're not very big, but we're going to be quicker than we have been for a while," explained Anderson. "Hopefully our quickness will make up for our (lack of) height."

Returning letter winners include seniors Toni Chiodo and Jamie Martell; juniors Carrie Lawrence and Kelly Skeim; along with sophomores Kendra Dimich and Maren

Swimmers begin year with 15 letter winners

Fifteen returning letter winners were on the roster as the Thief River Falls girls reported for the start of the 1993 high school swimming season last week.

The Prowlers open their schedule Tuesday, Aug. 31, with a 1 p.m. triangular at Detroit Lakes, which will also include Crookston.

There were only three seniors on last year's team, but they were top-notch performers Amy Adams, Ingrid Morken and Sanna Torgerson.

"We lost three very good swimmers, but we've got a strong group of kids back," said Thief River Falls coach Ryan Lokken. "We're looking pretty solid. We're bigger (number-wise) than we were last year. I think we should have a good year."

The letter winners on hand include seniors Jane Bentson and Lisa Ulrich; juniors Theresa Giauque, Sarah Harger, Mandy Johnson, and Mandy Sjaaheim; sophomores Robin Bollesen, Becky Mattson, Kelly Newton, Jennifer Olin, Myndy Olson, and Cami Sorenson; freshmen Becky Harger and Melanie Johnson; along with eighth grader Sunny Carlson.

Giauque and Olin enjoyed considerable success in summer programs. A member of the Thief River Falls USS program, Giauque advanced from the North Dakota Long Course Championships to the 13-state area USS zone meet in Wichita, Kansas. Olin, diving out of Crookston under the director of UND coach Brian Strom, placed in both the one-meter and three-meter U.S. diving state meet.

"The three seniors were lost were all excellent freestylers," pointed out Lokken. "That will change the face of our team considerably. Thief River Falls has had one of the best freestyle line-ups in the section the past couple of years, but now we're going to be stronger in the strokes than in the freestyle."

Others on hand for the start of practice included sophomore Jenny Flynn; freshmen Alicia Bakken, Gretchen Bataldcn, Kristin Chrzanowski, and Kelsy Stalborger; eighth graders Amanda Clark, Rachel Dahlen, Wendy Lindquist, Beth Mattson, and Rochelle Gilbertson; seventh graders Marisa Holmstrom, Krista Phillips, Katrina Holtan, Nicole Kopari, and Laura Follett; along with sixth graders Erin Delmar, Lindsay Ehrenstrom, Beth Knapp, Rachel Mattson, Andrea Olin, Meghan Reed, Andrea Sorvig, and Jenny Sorvig.

"We've got lots of potential among the young kids," mentioned Lokken. "Our program should be in good shape in the years to come."

Denise Nelson is the Prowlers' assistant coach.

Thief River Falls' 1993 home opener will be a Friday, Sept. 3, dual vs. Fergus Falls at the Franklin Middle School pool.

Three home dates open Lincoln tennis schedule

Thief River Falls girls are scheduled to make five appearances at home during the 1993 high school tennis season, and three of those starts come this week as the Jay Forney-coached Prowlers open the year with a bang.

Roseau was scheduled to be Thief River Falls for a 1 p.m. dual Tuesday to start things, followed by a 5 p.m. dual vs. Alexandria today (Wednesday) and then the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational Thursday beginning at 9 a.m.

Only other home appearances for the Prowlers this year will be a Thursday, Sept. 9, dual vs. Mahnomen and a Thursday, Sept. 30 quadrangular when the Prowlers will be joined by East Grand Forks, Roseau, and Park Rapids Area.

Sports Boosters meet Thursday

Initial Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club meeting of the 1993-94 season will be held Thursday, Aug. 26, at 12-noon at the Elks Club.

Members will be putting the finishing touches to Saturday's Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview, and will hear from guest speakers Lee Alger, School District 564 Activities Director, and Rick Nelson, Northland Community College Athletic Director.

Club officials hope a number of people who have an interest in supporting Lincoln High School and Northland Community College activities programs will be in attendance at the weekly luncheon meetings.

Lincoln football coach Jeff Mumm and volleyball coach Helen Anderson will be guest speakers at the Sept. 2 meeting.

Volleyball team has just two seniors...

Prowlers have young squad

Pre-season high school volleyball drills began state-wide Monday. In Thief River Falls, Helen Anderson started her 12th year as head coach with six letter winners among the 32 girls in grades 9-through-12 showing up on Day 1.

"We're young," said Anderson, whose roster includes just two seniors. Over half of those reporting Monday (17) were freshmen.

Graduation took four seniors from an 8-15 team and when a handful of last year's juniors and sophomore elected not to play volleyball this year, the Prowlers were instantly transformed into a young squad. They're also short on height.

"We're not very big, but we're going to be quicker than we have been for a while," explained Anderson. "Hopefully our quickness will make up for our (lack of) height."

Returning letter winners include seniors Toni Chiodo and Jamie Martell; juniors Carrie Lawrence and Kelly Skeim; along with sophomores Kendra Dimich and Maren

Connie Dorn won the women's state title and Tony Dorn Jr. was the overall state runner-up during the recent Sporting Clays Association state championships in LeSueur. The pair will compete in the SCA national tournament at San Antonio, Texas Sept. 15-20.

Shooters head to national meet

Connie and Tony Dorn Jr., after competing successfully at the state level, will take a shot at national competition when the Thief River Falls husband and wife combination heads to San Antonio, Texas for the Sept. 15-20 national Sporting Clays Association meet.

The SCA state meet was held Aug. 14-15 in LeSueur, where Connie won the women's title and Tony wound up overall state runner-up – one target behind the winner.

The two Thief River Falls shooters brought medals and a silver cup back from their trip to southern Minnesota.

It was the second state runner-up finish for Tony Dorn Jr., who shoots in the second level of the Class AA, A, B, C competition. The overall honors, however, cover all classes.

A third Thief River Falls shooter on hand at the state meet, Sandy Wilson, did not place.

Sporting clays has been described as a golf course for shot gun enthusiasts.

DNR News

This fall, as in the past, goose hunters will need a special permit to take snow, blue, white-fronted or Canada geese in the West Central and Lac qui Parle goose zones, according to Department of Natural Resources officials.

Portions of Big Stone, Swift, Chippewa, Yellow Medicine, and Lac qui Parle counties lie within the West Central and Lac qui Parle goose zones.

The special $3 permit is valid for the entire goose season. The permit is required of all hunters, regardless of whether hunting on state or private land.

Application forms for the permit are now available from license agents, county auditors and DNR wildlife offices.

Outdoor News

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources will conduct a late Canada goose season Dec. 11-20 in the Fergus Falls/Alexandria goose zone.

The special season will be similar to the current September season. Hunters are required to obtain a special Canada goose hunt permit to participate, but permits obtained for the early Fergus Falls/Alexandria hunt will also be valid for the late hunt.

"Minnesota has been using special seasons to increase the harvest of expanding populations of locally-breeding giant Canada geese, while limiting harvest of medium-sized Canada geese that migrate from breeding areas near Hudson Bay in Canada," explained Tim Bremicker, chief of the DNR Section of Wildlife.

The Fergus Falls/Alexandria late hunt will be a three-year experiment.

Permit applications for the Fergus Falls/Alexandria hunt are available from county auditors, DNR wildlife offices and license agents. Applications must be mailed by Dec. 1 to ensure receipt of the permit prior to the Dec. 11 start date. An unlimited number of the $3 permits will be issued.

In addition to a valid special permit, hunters must have a current small game license, federal duck stamp, and a Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp in accordance with state and federal regulations.

Canada goose bag limits will be two daily and four in possession. Shooting hours will be from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

TRF Deer Hunters group will meet for first time Thursday

First fall meeting for the Thief River Falls Chapter of the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association will be held Thursday, Aug. 26, at 7 p.m. at the American Legion Club.

Main topic of the meeting will concern the annual doe permit applications.

A MESSAGE FROM YOUR LOCAL D.A.R.E. OFFICERS

PARENTS .... PLEASE READ

TWENTY WAYS TO ENCOURAGE YOUR CHILDREN TO USE DRUGS

1. Never eat together as a family.
2. Never have family outings which occur weekly, monthly, or annually that they can look forward to as a family unit.
3. Talk TO your children, not WITH them; never listen.
4. Punish your children in public and never praise them or reinforce their positive behavior.
5. Always solve their problems; make their decisions for them.
6. Leave the responsibility of teaching morality and spiritual training to the schools and the church.
7. Never let your children experience cold, fatigue, adventure, injury, risk, challenge, experimentation, failure, frustration, discouragement, etc.
8. Threaten your children, i.e., "If you ever try drugs or alcohol, I'll punish you."
9. Expect your children to get "A"s in school in all subjects.
10. Always pick up after them and don't encourage them to accept responsibility.
11. Discourage your child from talking about their feelings, i.e., anger, sadness, fear, etc.
12. Be overprotective and don't teach your child the meaning of the word consequence.
13. Make your child feel that their mistakes are sins.
14. Put your child off when they ask "why" and tell them, "Because I said so."
15. Lead your child to believe that you are perfect and infallible.
16. Keep your home atmosphere in a state of chaos.
17. Never tell them how much you love them and never discuss your feelings with them.
18. Never hug them or display affection in front of them.
19. Always expect the worst and never give them the benefit of the doubt.
20. Don't ever trust them.

FOR KIDS: DON'T LOSE A FRIEND TO DRUGS

Has a friend become moody, short-tempered, and hostile?

Does he seem spaced out and always short of cash?

Is she suddenly failing courses and running around with kids you don't trust?

Stop and think about it. Your friend may have a drug or alcohol problem.

WHAT SHOULD YOU DO?

Talk to your friend and try to help. Many teenagers get deeper and deeper into drugs and alcohol because their friends, teachers, and parents either pretended there wasn't a problem or didn't know what to do.

Jack and Shelly had been good friends in junior high, but hadn't seen much of each other in high school. Jack had heard that Shelly was experimenting with cocaine and uppers, but was still shocked when he ran into her at a party. It took a few minutes for Shelly to remember who he was and she seemed a little spaced out. She told him she skipped classes a lot and didn't care much about school anymore. Jack couldn't get Shelly out of his mind and he looked for her in the halls and lunchroom. Whenever he saw her, he talked to her and urged her to call the local drug abuse hotline. One day Shelly got so low, she listened to him. She found people who would listen to her problems without lecturing her. With the help of a counselor, friends like Jack, and her parents, Shelly gave up drugs and started regaining control of her life.

SIX WAYS TO SAY "NO!"

You've heard it a thousand times, but if you say "no" when friends ask you to try a drug or drink, it might make them think twice about doing it themselves. Saying "no" means you have the strength and brains to choose for yourself. Here a few ways to do it.

1. Say you have something better to do. Then do it!
2. Point out that drugs interfere with your mental and physical skills, and you want to be at your best.
3. If you don't want to explain, just say "no, thanks." If that doesn't work, try a stronger "no way!" and leave.
4. Skip parties where you know drugs and alcohol will be available. Ban them from your own.
5. Hang out with friends who don't need drugs or alcohol to have fun. Make a commitment to be healthy and in control of your own future.
6. Make up a contract between you and your parents that says you will do your best to learn about the effects of illegal substances and discuss peer pressure with your parents. Your parents, in turn, agree to be available to you to discuss drugs and alcohol and not to drive after drinking.

DOES SOMEONE YOU CARE ABOUT HAVE A PROBLEM? HERE'S HOW YOU CAN HELP:

Learn about the effects of drugs and alcohol and share the knowledge with friends. For example, smoking pot makes it hard to concentrate and remember things. Heavy pot smokers can become psychologically dependent and develop respiratory problems. PCP and LSD can cause permanent brain damage. Sniffing can produce heart failure or suffocation. Cocaine is more deadly and addictive than most people realize, and cocaine deaths have jumped dramatically in the last few years.

Get the names and phone numbers of local hotlines and drug abuse counseling services. They usually are listed in the telephone directory under crisis services, alcohol abuse information and treatment, or drug abuse information. Other sources are community and school bulletin boards, libraries, or the local newspaper. Ask your school or hospital about special programs for teenagers.

Interest your friends in activities they can enjoy without using drugs or alcohol. For example, teenagers in a Chicago suburb took it upon themselves to organize creative, positive ways to spend time, such as trips, movies, discussion groups, aerobics, and community service projects. These activities not only discourage drug abuse but build teens' self-esteem and give them roles to play in the community.

Learn how to talk to your peers and younger kids about the dangers of abusing drugs and alcohol. Many communities have programs that teach teenagers how to counsel others about the problems that teens face, including substance abuse. In one rural midwestern town, star high school athletes are trained to teach elementary and middle school students about drug and alcohol abuse.

Remind your friends that buying or possessing pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, and most other drugs is against the law. Being arrested and getting a police record may not seem like a big deal now, but could be when applying for a job or college.

Remember, it takes courage to help a friend who has a drug problem. But a real friend will try.

DON'T LET DRUGS RUIN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD

Get involved! A group of teens in Medford, Oregon get "turned on" without drugs by writing and producing a television soap opera about teenagers and the problems and pressures they face. Teens in Gardena, California spend time after school being buddies to children in an orphanage, painting rundown buildings, cleaning up litter, and helping the disabled.

They organized town meetings to talk about the drug problem and then formed a community task force to do something about it. Young people in Poland, Ohio landscape and plant trees in parks, give seminars on drug and alcohol abuse, and help elderly citizens maintain their homes.

Even if you don't give your name, turn in drug dealers in your school and community. They're bringing crime to your neighborhood and ruining the lives of many of your friends. The police need your help to catch them.

If your school doesn't have a drug and alcohol abuse prevention program, start one!

Norman Co. recycling center grows

By the end of August the Norman County Regional Recycling Center will expand its operation to assist recyclables marketing for the northwest region of the state, according to Don Anderson, Norman county commissioner.

Norman county has invested in a rail siding and a 1,500 square foot building addition to secure more markets for recyclables and increase transportation efficiencies.

"The Norman county commissioners are pleased at the past achievements of the center and want to strengthen the future of the center by construction of this addition in cooperation with Recycle Minnesota Resources," Anderson said.

Initial benefits of marketing newspapering and corrugated cardboard should be realized immediately, he said. The center's customers may receive an increase of $5 per ton on corrugated products and old newspapers.

"We look forward to increasing our marketing activity and customer base because of the recent expansion," added Duane Westcott, Recycle Minnesota Resources operations manager.

The Norman County Regional Recycling Center services curbside or drop off programs throughout Norman county, six communities in Mahnomen county and two in Clay county. In addition, processing and marketing services are provided to Beltrami, Clearwater, Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake, Roseau and Wilkin counties.

Compensation available for contamination

Compensation is also available for the added home maintenance expenses if a homeowner is unable to sell a home due to contamination.

By the end of June, 1993, the board had awarded approximately $456,000 for property damage claims in Minnesota. Communities where residents have been compensated include Long Prairie, Mankato, Winona, Bemidji and Lakeland.

Copies of a fact sheet about the program are available from the Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District in Grygla.

Q. How can property owners be reimbursed for property losses incurred because of environmental contamination?

A. The Minnesota Harmful Substance Compensation board.

The Harmful Substance Compensation board was created by the State legislature in 1985 to compensate victims of personal injury or property damage losses resulting from chemical contamination of the environment. The board gives people a chance to recover damages for an injury or loss, while avoiding the costs, delays and uncertainty of filing a lawsuit. It also gives them a way to be compensated even if the persons responsible for the problem are unknown or are unable to pay any damages.

A typical claim involves the problems of homeowners with contaminated drinking water from improper disposal of hazardous waste, pesticides, or petroleum products at neighboring industrial facilities, landfills, and gas stations. Among the damages the board can compensate are the cost of replacing a contaminated well, installing a carbon filter unit, or connecting to a city water supply.

In cases where a homeowner is forced to sell a home because of a work transfer or other hardship but does not receive the appraised market value due to chemical contamination on the property, compensation can be awarded for up to 75 per cent of the loss in home value.

Dislocated workers get employment

To serve workers dislocated from work due to the recent rains and flooding, Minnesota has been awarded monies from the U.S. Department of Labor for temporary job creation.

The temporary jobs may include clean-up of public and private non-profit property, restoration of public utilities, repairing and rebuilding public facilities, providing necessary public services and providing public safety and health services. Wages for the temporary jobs will be paid at the employing agency's prevailing wage scale. The work-site agency must provide on-site supervision.

Persons whose employment has been effected by disaster/flooding conditions or agencies seeking assistance with flood related projects or repairs should contact Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training, Job Service Office, Crookston, MN or call 281-3593.

Pfeifer to enter race

Chris Pfeifer, 26, of Blackduck has announced that he will be seeking election as an independent to the Seventh District Congressional seat held by Rep. Collin Peterson in the 1994 election.

"I will neither raise nor spend money to buy this office," he said. "No fund-raising. No commercials. No ads. No meaningless signs....I will speak honestly and hope you vote for me for the clarity of my thought and the courage of my convictions."

Peterson explains his views and vote on the budget bill

by Rep. Collin Peterson
7th District — Minnesota

President Clinton campaigned as a middle-of-the-road Democrat who would change business as usual in Washington. The budget Congress just passed fails to do that, and the Republican alternatives to it were even worse. It's apparent party leadership on both sides just haven't heard the message: the American people are demanding real change in Washington.

If I had wanted to take the easy political road, I would have gone against my conscience and voted with my Party to pass the budget bill. In the hours before the vote, fellow Democrats offered me all kinds of inducements in the attempt to buy a "yea" from me. I was told it would be "political-suicide" for me to vote against the budget by Members who appeared at my office door. I was offered special attention to projects in my District by the President, the top White House staff and the Secretary of Agriculture. I was cornered on the floor of the House by various members of the leadership hell-bent on intimidation.

I refused to back down, because the budget that emerged from the conference committee failed to challenge the way we do business here in Washington. This failure belongs to Congressional leadership, far more than to the President. In reality, the "deficit reduction plan" was just the same old thing cloaked in new rhetoric — some spending cuts, achieved mostly by extending the spending caps and pay-go rules of the 1990 budget deal, as well as Medicare cuts, some tax increases, mostly on the wealthy, and a lot of breaks for interested parties. Does anyone really believe this plan will solve our deficit problem? No! In fact, the national debt will increase $1 trillion under this plan. For that reason, I cast my vote against a budget bill that once again fell victim to special interest groups, as well as senior and liberal members of Congress.

I don't believe that failing to pass this bill would have meant economic disaster or the end of the Clinton presidency. I felt we could have done better and, in fact, I would have supported a special session of Congress focussing on budget cuts and government reform. This budget was not what the President — or this Democrat — campaigned on. We wanted to change the way government does business. That's why I don't buy the argument that this is the best we can do. Increasing the marginal tax rates of wealthy individuals — which I support — is not a new idea and will not alone change the direction of our country.

We lost the opportunity to make real changes in government programs and cut spending. In the end, deal-making by negotiators from the Ways and Means committee undermined much of the President's original program before the ink was even dry and made it another victim of Washington politics.

For example, the President included an investment tax credit for small businesses and farmers in his package. Representative Dan Rostenkowski immediately traded it way for a reduction in the tax rate for corporations with incomes over $10 million. I will not support the interests of multi-national corporations over small businesses and farmers.

At the end of the conference, committee members worked their usual magic, slipping in tax breaks and making last minute deals. Airlines were exempted from the 4.3 cent gas tax, but the rest of general aviation — including spray pilots — will have to pay the higher rate. I suppose this was done to gain some additional votes to pass the plan. The policy reason given was to help a financially-troubled industry. However, truckers have as much financial trouble as the airline industry, and they have to carry the burden of an additional gas tax, as well as losing their meal deductions. The list of back-door deals like these, which will surprise many people once they learn of them, make our tax system less fair and ultimately hurt middle-class Americans.

Even more troubling is the fact that this budget could jeopardize the President's agenda for change in other crucial areas. The Earned Income Tax Credit increases and Medicare and Medicaid cuts in this bill should have been addressed in other reform proposals. Instead, they were made pawns in the budget game.

Finally, to those who are upset because they feel I should support my Democratic president. What will you say when I oppose him on the North American Free Trade Agreement? The White House and the House Democratic leadership met the day after the budget vote to plot a strategy to pass NAFTA, which is opposed by two-thirds of House Democrats, and by a huge majority of Democrats nationwide and in Minnesota. What will you say when I oppose the President when his health care proposal turns out to be the managed competition's plan supported by insurance companies and the health care industry, not the single-payer-type system advocated by most DFLer's in Minnesota?

This was a difficult decision to make. I wanted to support the President's plan, but, in good conscience, I could not. I will continue to support President Clinton when I think that he is right and will give him the benefit of the doubt on the margins, but I will not support him when his programs are not in the best interest of Minnesotans. I believe he missed an opportunity for change with this budget — mostly out of inexperience — but I remain hopeful he will come home to the agenda he was elected on when we look at future spending cuts and evaluate Vice President Gore's "National Performance Review" next month.

The American people want a government that operates efficiently. They want more spending cuts, and they want the deficit brought under control. So do I.

Whole Wheat BIBLE STUDY

What happens if I sin?

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

Many people suffer needlessly because they do not have a complete understanding of the conversion process.

God is calling the unrighteous and the sinners to repentance. When we first begin to walk with God by living as He lives, we are not expected to be perfect. It takes time to repent and be converted. It even took Jesus time to overcome His flesh and learn obedience to the Father through suffering. Yes, Jesus was made perfect by the Father through suffering (Heb. 5:8-9).

Jesus tells us to be perfect (Matt. 5:48). It is the Father who perfects us (1 Peter 5:10). We just do the practicing by serving others, which allows God to do the perfecting (1 John 3:7).

The Father knows that when we first begin to overcome, we may slip and fall many times. But if we walk in the light, continually practicing righteousness, Jesus Christ's sacrifice covers our sins (1 John 2:1-2; 1:7). All we need to do is confess our sins and forsake them (1 John 1:8-9). Whatever we do, we do not want to continue practicing sin—the deeds of the flesh—or we won't inherit the kingdom of God (Gal. 5:19-21; Eph. 5:5; Rom. 8:12-13).

We are to practice righteousness every day instead of practicing sin (1 John 3:7). We must overcome sin by doing good works for God's glory, as Jesus Christ, our example, told us to do (Matt. 5:16; Rom. 12:21; 1 Peter 3:11, 13). It would be a tragedy if we sinned, became discouraged, quit practicing righteousness daily to please God, and went back to a life of ignoring God daily.

We are called for the purpose of having Christ formed in us, to become partakers of His divine nature, to become new creatures in Christ, and to become complete (Gal. 4:19; 6:15; 2 Peter 1:4; 2 Cor. 13:9, 11). All we need to do is just keep pleasing God each day in all we think, do and say. Remember that practice makes perfect. We do the practicing and God does the perfecting.

For the past 25 years Mrs. Orlando (Helen) Chervestad has been writing the River Valley news and she will be missed by all of her friends and neighbors who always followed her column. Thank you Helen for the wonderful job you did.

Because I am fairly new (18 years) to the community I am sure it will take me awhile to become familiar with all of the neighbors and their relatives and friends. So please bear with me if I mix up names and places. So with Helen's help I will try to do as good a job as she did.

Pat Dunning of Thief River Falls, displayed German folk painting at the All Nations Cultural Festival in St. Hilaire last weekend. Pat is an art teacher in Newfolden and Plummer. She generally paints the intricate patterns for gifts, but on occassion does paint items upon request. She explained that she learned rosemaling about 10 years ago, but gradually turned to German folk art painting because she liked the variety in colors offered in the art and because it seemed to fit her own background better. Pat said this type of painting is a teachable skill. It isn't a talent that comes naturally. She encourages everyone who shows an interest in the art to learn the skill. It is something she finds very enjoyable.

Drive Safely And Responsibly This Labor Day Weekend

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Each year, as children return to school and summer sunsets into autumn, editors across the country urge their readers to drive safely.

Advances in engineering and technology, coupled with changes in public policy and individual human behavior, have dramatically reduced the number and severity of traffic crashes. Such changes have virtually eliminated the element of chance in accidents.

Advances in technology, in fact, have so reduced risks of traffic accidents that Minnesota Crash Facts, a yearly summary of statistical information about crashes reported to the state each year, uses the term "crash" in preference to "accident." They use the term "crash" because the term "accident" suggests there is a random, unavoidable quality about the events in question. The cause of most crashes often can be be attributed to something, usually a lapse in judgement.

"The simple acts of buckling your seat belt, obeying posted speed limits, and not drinking and driving can save your life and those of your passengers and fellow drivers. Regardless of the strictness of state law or the level of enforcement, however, traffic safety is still an individual responsibility," said Michael S. Jordan, commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Public Safety.

Despite the advances, during the 78-hour period defined as the Labor Day weekend last year, there were 723 crashes in Minnesota, six of which were fatal and 250 involved personal injuries. Seven people were killed and 413 injured in those crashes involving personal injuries.

The cause of these accidents vary. One of the ways to improve your chances of becoming involved in a traffic accident is to drink and drive. There were 220 fatalities and 5,837 injuries that were alcohol-related in 1992. Of the fatalities, 50 per cent had been drinking alcohol.

To be sure, not all of those individuals involved in the accidents during Labor Day weekend acted irresponsibly or were or had been drinking alcohol prior to the accident. It's even possible, even very likely, that innocent bystanders or passengers were among the dead. The only lapse of judgement they showed was being in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Quite honestly, most traffic crashes occur because of a momentary lack of judgement. Excuses, such as screaming children, and alcohol, however, will never be able to bring someone back to life or lift the burden such tragedies bring on families and friends.

This Labor Day weekend, I'll risk the wrath of beverage distributors and suggest that people not drink and drive, despite their reminders that it isn't against the law to drive after drinking unless one is intoxicated.

If drivers are careful and drive responsibly this weekend, they won't join the endless statistics of those dead or injured during a holiday weekend.

According to Jordan,"In 1992, 581 people were killed, and 43,249 others were injured on Minnesota roads and highways. These figures are both tragic and unnecessary."

Don't become one of these statistics; drive safely this Labor Day weekend.

Dee Long's Resignation Leaves DFL In Quandry For Her Successor

Minnesota DFL House members are in a quandry as to who to elect as a successor to Dee Long as Speaker of the House. The logical choices all have philosophical or other problems attached to their electability, according to a report in "Politics In Minnesota," published by Wy Spano and D. J. Leary.

House Majority Leader Rep. Irv Anderson of International Falls had been considered an early shoo-in, but party members have noted he is "pro-life, pro-gun, didn't like the proposed Mille Lacs agreement and voted against gay rights." That leaves him out of step with the standard DFL positions and opposite Long on all four points.

Rep. Ann Rest of New Hope is considered to be the most intelligent of all known candidates, but her close ties to Long make her more politically unacceptable.

Such is politics. Leadership is too often selected not on the basis of intellect and lawmaking ability. As Spano and Leary put it, "We're betting that this Speaker's race will be decided on two major considerations: Who can best manage the 1994 DFL House election effort and who can best provide an effective voice in opposition to Arne Carlson.

"On the matter of next year's election, DFLers are going to be considering the following: Who will do the best job of finding and charming new candidates? Who can raise enough money for the caucus campaign operation?

"Without an incredibly successful campaign effort in '94," Spano and Leary said, "Minnesota House DFLers are looking at disaster. One seasoned observer gave us an estimate we can't disagree with: About 25 per cent of all current House members will choose not to run in '94; another 25 per cent will be defeated. With that kind of turnover, Democrats could easily lose control, especially if they elect a Speaker who doesn't focus on the election job."

And losing the majority party position would be a bitter pill for the DFL leadership to swallow.

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES

Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota — August 26, 1943

From The Times Files of Fifty Years Ago

Volume at Creamery Continues to Gain

"Production volume at the Thief River Falls Creamery has shown a slight increase each month this year and the gain for the year now totals about 60,000 pounds, G. S. Bergland reported this week. The total volume last year was the largest in the history of the organization, being in the neighborhood of one and one-quarter million pounds."

To open Bids Friday on Airport Improvement

"At an adjourned meeting to be held Friday evening the city council will open bids on improvement of the airport. The project contemplated provides for the plowing, discing and dragging of a portion of the airport grounds, preliminary work to making it suitable as a landing field."

Surprise Blackout Considered Success

"Pennington County's first surprise blackout came with the darkness of Tuesday night and while the score was not perfect, the general results were very satisfactory. Robert Petersen, county civilian defense chairman, stated that the manner in which the public and members of the Warden organization responded to the surprise warnings was very gratifying. Several local people will be brought into court because of violations, when they will be called upon to explain why arrangements had not been made to have lights turned out. Most of these cases involved advertising displays or too conspicuous night lights that burned throughout the blackout. No cases of wilful failure to cooperate have been reported.

"The most glaring offender was the city itself, the lights in Elks Park shining brightly throughout the danger period. These lights are controlled independently of the street lighting system by the police department. Explanation of this failure to comply is that the key to this lighting system was in the squard car which was not located in time."

Hungarian Partridges Are Planted Here

"Two crates of Hungarian partridges were released in the game reserve south of the city by Game Warden William Borchert Saturday. The young birds, thirty in each crate, were shipped to Mr. Borchert from the Madelia Game Farm."

Berge to Move License Plate Office

"A. F. Berge, deputy registrar of motor vehicles, will move to the Brummund Bldg. west of the Bus Depot September 1. The office for issuing license plates and giving examinations has been located for many years in the Larson Co. store on Main Ave."

From the Editorial Page

"Tuesday night's surprise blackout was surprisingly successful in our opinion and that opinion is based on our observation of the response in all parts of the city as we saw it from the inside of an official car. It is not to be expected that such a blackout would be 100% perfect. It is a normal thing to have lights burning in both homes and business places that are not at the time occupied and in a few instances that was the case Tuesday night. The encouraging thing was the cheerful cooperation of those who were in a position to comply. Big laugh, of course, was the inability of the city to black-out its own Elks Park. We have an idea that will be one of the first spots to go dark in the next rehearsal."

"Game wardens have appeared in Crookston and are expected up here before the 1st. They seem to think that the natives up here have been killing prairie chickens, but we are positive that nothing but 'short billed snipe' have been killed in this locality this season. The idea that our sportsmen would violate the law killing chickens is preposterous."

Drive Safely And Responsibly This Labor Day Weekend

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Each year, as children return to school and summer sunsets into autumn, editors across the country urge their readers to drive safely.

Advances in engineering and technology, coupled with changes in public policy and individual human behavior, have dramatically reduced the number and severity of traffic crashes. Such changes have virtually eliminated the element of chance in accidents.

Advances in technology, in fact, have so reduced risks of traffic accidents that Minnesota Crash Facts, a yearly summary of statistical information about crashes reported to the state each year, uses the term "crash" in preference to "accident." They use the term "crash" because the term "accident" suggests there is a random, unavoidable quality about the events in question. The cause of most crashes often can be be attributed to something, usually a lapse in judgement.

"The simple acts of buckling your seat belt, obeying posted speed limits, and not drinking and driving can save your life and those of your passengers and fellow drivers. Regardless of the strictness of state law or the level of enforcement, however, traffic safety is still an individual responsibility," said Michael S. Jordan, commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Public Safety.

Despite the advances, during the 78-hour period defined as the Labor Day weekend last year, there were 723 crashes in Minnesota, six of which were fatal and 250 involved personal injuries. Seven people were killed and 413 injured in those crashes involving personal injuries.

The cause of these accidents vary. One of the ways to improve your chances of becoming involved in a traffic accident is to drink and drive. There were 220 fatalities and 5,837 injuries that were alcohol-related in 1992. Of the fatalities, 50 per cent had been drinking alcohol.

To be sure, not all of those individuals involved in the accidents during Labor Day weekend acted irresponsibly or were or had been drinking alcohol prior to the accident. It's even possible, even very likely, that innocent bystanders or passengers were among the dead. The only lapse of judgement they showed was being in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Quite honestly, most traffic crashes occur because of a momentary lack of judgement. Excuses, such as screaming children, and alcohol, however, will never be able to bring someone back to life or lift the burden such tragedies bring on families and friends.

This Labor Day weekend, I'll risk the wrath of beverage distributors and suggest that people not drink and drive, despite their reminders that it isn't against the law to drive after drinking unless one is intoxicated.

If drivers are careful and drive responsibly this weekend, they won't join the endless statistics of those dead or injured during a holiday weekend.

According to Jordan,"In 1992, 581 people were killed, and 43,249 others were injured on Minnesota roads and highways. These figures are both tragic and unnecessary."

Don't become one of these statistics; drive safely this Labor Day weekend.

Dee Long's Resignation Leaves DFL In Quandry For Her Successor

Minnesota DFL House members are in a quandry as to who to elect as a successor to Dee Long as Speaker of the House. The logical choices all have philosophical or other problems attached to their electability, according to a report in "Politics In Minnesota," published by Wy Spano and D. J. Leary.

House Majority Leader Rep. Irv Anderson of International Falls had been considered an early shoo-in, but party members have noted he is "pro-life, pro-gun, didn't like the proposed Mille Lacs agreement and voted against gay rights." That leaves him out of step with the standard DFL positions and opposite Long on all four points.

Rep. Ann Rest of New Hope is considered to be the most intelligent of all known candidates, but her close ties to Long make her more politically unacceptable.

Such is politics. Leadership is too often selected not on the basis of intellect and lawmaking ability. As Spano and Leary put it, "We're betting that this Speaker's race will be decided on two major considerations: Who can best manage the 1994 DFL House election effort and who can best provide an effective voice in opposition to Arne Carlson.

"On the matter of next year's election, DFLers are going to be considering the following: Who will do the best job of finding and charming new candidates? Who can raise enough money for the caucus campaign operation?

"Without an incredibly successful campaign effort in '94," Spano and Leary said, "Minnesota House DFLers are looking at disaster. One seasoned observer gave us an estimate we can't disagree with: About 25 per cent of all current House members will choose not to run in '94; another 25 per cent will be defeated. With that kind of turnover, Democrats could easily lose control, especially if they elect a Speaker who doesn't focus on the election job."

And losing the majority party position would be a bitter pill for the DFL leadership to swallow.

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES

Volume at Creamery Continues to Gain

"Production volume at the Thief River Falls Creamery has shown a slight increase each month this year and the gain for the year now totals about 60,000 pounds, G. S. Bergland reported this week. The total volume last year was the largest in the history of the organization, being in the neighborhood of one and one-quarter million pounds."

To open Bids Friday on Airport Improvement

"At an adjourned meeting to be held Friday evening the city council will open bids on improvement of the airport. The project contemplated provides for the plowing, discing and dragging of a portion of the airport grounds, preliminary work to making it suitable as a landing field."

Surprise Blackout Considered Success

"Pennington County's first surprise blackout came with the darkness of Tuesday night and while the score was not perfect, the general results were very satisfactory. Robert Petersen, county civilian defense chairman, stated that the manner in which the public and members of the Warden organization responded to the surprise warnings was very gratifying. Several local people will be brought into court because of violations, when they will be called upon to explain why arrangements had not been made to have lights turned out. Most of these cases involved advertising displays or too conspicuous night lights that burned throughout the blackout. No cases of wilful failure to cooperate have been reported.

"The most glaring offender was the city itself, the lights in Elks Park shining brightly throughout the danger period. These lights are controlled independently of the street lighting system by the police department. Explanation of this failure to comply is that the key to this lighting system was in the squard car which was not located in time."

Hungarian Partridges Are Planted Here

"Two crates of Hungarian partridges were released in the game reserve south of the city by Game Warden William Borchert Saturday. The young birds, thirty in each crate, were shipped to Mr. Borchert from the Madelia Game Farm."

Berge to Move License Plate Office

"A. F. Berge, deputy registrar of motor vehicles, will move to the Brummund Bldg. west of the Bus Depot September 1. The office for issuing license plates and giving examinations has been located for many years in the Larson Co. store on Main Ave."

From the Editorial Page

"Tuesday night's surprise blackout was surprisingly successful in our opinion and that opinion is based on our observation of the response in all parts of the city as we saw it from the inside of an official car. It is not to be expected that such a blackout would be 100% perfect. It is a normal thing to have lights burning in both homes and business places that are not at the time occupied and in a few instances that was the case Tuesday night. The encouraging thing was the cheerful cooperation of those who were in a position to comply. Big laugh, of course, was the inability of the city to black-out its own Elks Park. We have an idea that will be one of the first spots to go dark in the next rehearsal."

"Game wardens have appeared in Crookston and are expected up here before the 1st. They seem to think that the natives up here have been killing prairie chickens, but we are positive that nothing but 'short billed snipe' have been killed in this locality this season. The idea that our sportsmen would violate the law killing chickens is preposterous."

Giauque at Venture camp

Theresa Giauque of Thief River Falls was among more than 550 students and teachers from 175 Minnesota cities to participate in the Minnesota Business Venture at St. John's University and St. Olaf College this summer.

Giauque received a $400 scholarship from Robinson Rubber to attend the camp. She and the others attending learned about business and career opportunities. They worked in teams to strengthen problem-solving and communication skills, examine careers and meet and interact with other Minnesota high school students.

Minnesota Business Venture focuses on interactive learning. To explore the stock market, program participants become commodity traders in a simulated trading floor. They also form product development teams in an inventor exercise and manage their own submarine sandwich shops through a computer simulated business management game.

Minnesota Business Venture is sponsored by the Business Economics Education foundation of Minnesota in partnership with the Minnesota Bankers Association, the Minnesota Department of Education, St. John's University and St. Olaf College.

Thank you to St. Anthony's Church choir, and members of St. Anthony's who donated so much time, food, and fellowship. Thank you to all who sent cards, or brought food to our homes. MY MIRACLES

She's been with me through both the good and the bad, year's of suffering and very painful days. When I did not know just which way I could turn, when our future seemed lost in a haze. The future's now brighter and the haze almost gone, thanks to God and a friend I've not met. The gift of a heart was the Gift of Life, through it all, her faith did not bend. They were with me then, they are with me now; both my wife and the Lord up above-I promise you both I'll work hard as I can, to continue to warrent your love.

Happy Birthday - Shirley!!!
Love, Gary

God bless you all.

New instant lottery game Bingo debuts

Beginning August 24, lottery players will be able to purchase the new $2 instant lottery game called "Bingo". Bingo could be considered a not-so-instant game because it may take players up to 15 minutes to play the game. Cash prizes range from $2 to $10,000, and players have three chances to win on each tickets. Overall odds of winning a cash prize are 1:4.04.

Players scratch the entire area of the Caller's Card to reveal 25 numbers, and rub all the corresponding numbers on cards 1, 2 and 3. The design of each card is similar to carbonless paper; when rubbed, numbers will turn from a light blue to a dark blue.

Players win by matching numbers in any one of the three formations: a horizontal, vertical, or diagonal line; all four corners of a card; or forming a letter X, consisting of eight numbers plus the Free space.

Ten million Bingo tickets have been printed, offering a prize payout of 60 per cent. Bingo is an oversized ticket printed on Terra 2000, a completely recyclable and biodegradable ticket stock.

New laws cover asbestos removal

According to new state laws, only contractors licensed by the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) will be allowed to remove asbestos from residences.

MDH Commissioner Marlene E. Marschall announced that after August 1, state law will require asbestos abatement contractors licensed by the department to perform abatement work in single and multi-family residences. The new law effects residential abatement projects which include more than 10 linear feet of heating and water pipes and furnace ducts, or more than six square feet of ceiling spray texturizer, wall spackle, ceiling tiles, furnace insulation, wallboard, cement board and non-vinyl asbestos-containing flooring.

In the past, the law only required that an MDH licensed contractor be used to remove asbestos when there was more than 160 square feet or 250 linear feet.

However, the new law exempts homeowners from licensing if they choose to abate asbestos-containing material in the residence they own and occupy. Homeowners can receive a list of licensed contractors and general information from MDH on the hazards associated with asbestos abatement.

Asbestos abatement contractors who are hired to perform asbestos abatement are required to notify the department of the abatement project. A project permit will then be issued and must be posted during the abatement.

For more information about residential asbestos abatement, call the Asbestos Abatement Unit of the Department of Health at (612) 627-5044.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

LeRoy Stumpf
State Senator, District 1

Fall college tuition bills will soon come due, but this year the bills could have been much worse. Legislative action stopped a plan that would have meant big increases at state colleges and universities.

The struggle over student costs started last winter. Governor Arne Carlson's budget proposal included a new plan for higher education.

The Governor wanted to shift money from institutions to financial aid. As schools got fewer dollars they would have to charge more to students, but greater aid was meant to soften the blow.

Many students hated the idea. They either did not trust the financial aid system, or figured college funding needed to be on more solid ground.

Colleges did not like the idea either. For years the state has paid about two-thirds of college costs, with student tuition paying the other one-third. The Governor's plan to reduce the state share met tough resistance.

The battle raged for months. Some people argued that state dollars should be shifted to financial aid to give needy students more help. Other people said the shift would damage basic college programs.

In the end the legislature and the Governor agreed to fully fund the base budget for colleges and universities. This is the first time this has happened in more than two years.

The state/student split on paying for school stays the same, with some financial aid increases. To keep costs down, the Legislature told the higher education systems that it does not want to see big tuition increases.

For the next two years, tuition hikes should be held to little more than inflation. In other words college will still be expensive, but affordable.

Top cowboys, stock assure great rodeo

Ty Murray, four-time and current world champion all-around cowboy, heads the list of entries for TRF Stampede

Ty Murray of Stephenville, TX, world champion all-around cowboy from 1989 through 1992, has paid his entry fee and is on the list to ride in the saddle bronc and bull riding events at the Thief River Falls Stampede this weekend.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Headed by four-time and current world champion all-around cowboy Ty Murray of Stephenville, TX, the list of entries for the Thief River Falls Stampede Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 3, 4 and 5, is an outstanding one.

The computer listing provided by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) shows that 148 entrants in the six rodeo events have paid their entry fees for the Second Annual Stampede which will be held indoors at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center on the Pennington county fairgrounds. Performance times will be 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. on Sunday.

Barring injury or other unforeseen circumstances, participation by the top name in professional rodeo today is expected. Ty Murray, only 23 years of age and in his fifth year of PRCA membership, has won the world championship all-around cowboy title at the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas the past four years. He is entered in the bull riding and saddle bronc events.

Also entered in the same events is Charles Soileau, also of Stephenville and Murray's rodeoing partner, which adds to the likelihood of Murray's appearance here. The computerized draw to assign rough stock to the entrants will take place 48 hours before the first rodeo performance. Quality of bulls and horses contracted for the Stampede—plus the added prize money of $17,500 and total prize money of $43,000—make the local rodeo an especially attractive place to ride.

As of August 17, Murray was leading the all-around cowboy standings with 1993 earnings of $149,922—more than double the $70,680 of second place Joe Beaver of Huntsville, TX. He was first in bull riding with $71,638, fifth in bareback riding with $41,039 and seventh in saddle bronc riding with $37,245. Last year he won $225,992.

"Right now I would say, barring injury, that I'm 90 per cent sure Ty Murray will ride in Thief River Falls," Stampede organizer Randy Jokela of Park Rapids said Monday evening. "As far as I know it would be his first time to ride in Minnesota and might well be the only chance for area rodeo fans to see the Wayne Gretzky and Michael Jordan of professional rodeo in action."

Whether or not Murray does indeed ride here, there will be no shortage of top contenders, many of whom could take major strides toward qualifying for the National Finals with wins in Thief River Falls. Bull riding is expected to be especially hotly contested, and the bulls will be of championship quality.

"We are getting some of the best bulls out of the David Bailey string and the top six bulls from Don Hight's Dakota West outfit," Jokela said. "And the bucking horses aren't any slouches, either. There should be some dandy bareback and saddle bronc rides, too."

Among the entrants who have paid their entry fees and are on the list to compete here are the following:

- Marvin Garrett, Belle Fourche, SD, 1988 and 1989 world champion bareback rider with career earnings of $566,654. On August 17 he was third in the world standings with 1993 earnings of $54,725.
- Chuck Logue, Decatur, TX, 1990 world champion bareback rider with career earnings at the end of 1992 of $666,667. As of August 17 he was 12th in the world standings with $33,850 earned this year.
- Troy Pruitt, Minatare, NE, 1990 world champion calf roper with career earnings of $409,773.
- Cody Lambert, Henrietta, TX, saddle bronc and bull rider who has qualified for the National Finals Rodeo eight times, is presently Openings vary for schools in T.R.F.

While classes in kindergarten through 12th grade in Thief River Falls public schools will begin Tuesday, September 7, classes at the Thief River Falls campus of Northwest Technical College began Monday, August 30, and classes at Northland Community College will not begin until Wednesday morning, September 8.

A schedule of bus routes for the public schools will be published in the Saturday, September 4 issue of the Northern Watch and residents of the district who have children riding buses are advised to look for the schedule in the copy they receive.

Enrollment at the Thief River Falls campus of the Northwest Technical College is expected to be down from a year ago, primarily but not entirely due to a decline in the number of students enrolled in the aviation program, but totals will not be available until all departments are underway throughout this week. Record opening day enrollment at the main campus of the technical college was 983 (FTE) at the start of the 1991-92 school year. Last year the opening day number dropped to 906.

Technical college officials said that enrollment has been strong in the trade and industrial areas including automotive technology, auto body repair and welding.

Northland Community College is anticipating its largest freshman class ever, based on advance applications. A year ago NCC had 275 advance applications and 244 students enroll. This year the applications to date total 320 and there is still time for additional applications, according to registrar Dennis Bendickson.

Thief River Falls public schools are also anticipating a slight gain in enrollment, according to Supt. Robert Duncan. At the senior high school a class of 167 members graduated this spring and a class of 192 eighth graders in 1992-93 will be Lincoln's freshman class this fall.

Middle school enrollment is expected to be about the same and a small increase in the elementary grades is also anticipated.

Staff Development Day

District-wide staff development day was held Tuesday, August 31, when all employees of the district met at 8 a.m. in the Lincoln auditorium following a breakfast in the school cafeteria. A welcome was given and new employees introduced. Deb Zak of the American Association of University Women outlined scholarships available for teachers and Supt. Duncan delivered his remarks.

At 10:10 a.m. psychologist Dennis Gannon of Rochester presented a session entitled "I Sure Could Use a Little good News Today!"

Following lunch in the cafeteria, break-out sessions were held from 12:45 to 1:45 and 2:15 to 3:15 p.m. Staff members were given a choice of 10 sessions dealing with such subjects as gender equity, personality and learning styles, computer stationery, teaching on the playground, adolescent depression and suicide, peer mediation, crisis prevention, teen violence and harassment, touch program for elementary students and how to prevent back injuries and perform the Heimlich Maneuver.

At Lincoln high school today (Wednesday) training sessions are being held in three separate two-hour blocks on "Right to Know—Bloodborne Pathogens." Staff

Specialty act at rodeo

Lynda and Harold Murray of Poplar Bluff, MO, will provide entertainment between events at the Second Annual TRF Stampede PRCA Rodeo Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Thief River Falls.

Known for their classy style, glamorous costuming and matched team of black and white paint horses, the Murrays have been selected five times as PRCA Circuit Finals acts. They are both former rodeo competitors, with Lynda in barrel racing and Harold in bareback and bull riding.

Lynda does riding strap tricks including the Hippodrome Stand and the daring Cossack Death Drag. Harold performs the Pony Express Vaults and Split-the-Neck somersaults. The horses do dance steps, lie down on command and jump through flaming hoops with one of the horses performing completely at liberty.

Harold also rides Roman style—standing with one foot on each horse—while the horses do figure eights and jump through fire. He also does an upside down shoulder stand between the two charging horses.

Lynda does a colorful rodeo opening by carrying the American flag and Harold is known throughout the rodeo world as being one of the funniest barrelman clowns in the business.

Fourtown, a popular gas station/bar/convenience store and restaurant burned to the ground Saturday, August 28. The Grygla volunteer fire department received a report of a fire at the store, which is located about 15 miles east of Grygla, at about 6:20 a.m. When they arrived, fire had burned through the roof and was coming out windows.

Fire destroys Fourtown store

Fourtown Store, a popular stopping place for sportsmen and—depending on who you talk to—a historic landmark, burned to the ground early Saturday, August 28.

Grygla volunteer fire department responded to a report of a fire at the restaurant/lounge/gas station/convenience store at about 6:20 a.m. When they arrived, one fireman said fire was shooting through the windows and roof. All they could do was keep the fire from spreading to a few nearby mobile homes and gas tanks. At one point, the fireman said, a few of the guys tried to get inside. When they opened a door a back-draft knocked them back and gave one fireman minor burns on his face.

Paulette Dehnert is owner of the building. Deputy State Fire Marshall Dale Volstad said he may not be able to determine the exact cause of the fire but he is satisfied it was accidental.

Fourtown has been a well-known stopping place and its devastation came as quite a surprise to many. As soon as the news spread there were people gathering near the store all day. At one point, some of the spectators had to be discouraged from trying to take souvenirs from the smoldering rubble.

The establishment of Fourtown has been dated to 1915 when its post office was incorporated. In the early 20's, Fourtown had two stores. At one time, the town had a creamery, the Farmer's Club Hall, an ice house, a barn, a garage and a house for the buttermaker and two stores. In 1930, the population of the town was estimated at 433. In 1990, it was estimated at 161, which probably includes a much larger rural area, because Fourtown before the fire consisted of a few mobile homes and the 80-year-old building which served as the bar/gas station/convenience store.

Fourtown is located about 15 miles east of Grygla on Highway 89 between the Red Lake Indian reservation and the Beltrami Island State Forest. It got its name "Fourtown" because it is also located at the intersection of four townships.

In recent years, Fourtown has become a popular stopping place for hunters and snowmobile enthusiasts.

Paulette Dehnert said she intends to rebuild as soon as possible. She said she intends to open a store from a trailer house at the site Thursday or Friday.

MY MIRACLES

She's been with me through both the good
And the bad, year's of suffering and very Painful days.
When I did not know just which way I could turn, when our future seemed lost in a haze.

The future's now brighter and the haze
Almost gone,
Thanks to God and a friend I've not met.
The gift of a heart was the Gift of Life,
Through it all, her faith did not bend.

They were with me then, they are with me
now;
Both my wife and the Lord up above–
I promise you both I'll work hard as I can,
To continue to warrant your love.

MY MIRACLES

She's been with me through both the good
And the bad, year's of suffering and very Painful days.
When I did not know just which way I could turn, when our future seemed lost in a haze.

The future's now brighter and the haze
Almost gone,
Thanks to God and a friend I've not met.
The gift of a heart was the Gift of Life.
Through it all, her faith did not bend.

They were with me then, they are with me
now;
Both my wife and the Lord up above–
I promise you both I'll work hard as I can,
To continue to warrant your love.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY–SHIRLEY!!!
Love, Gary

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The "independent contractor" status has gotten very complicated. An employer should seek legal assistance in drafting an independent contractor agreement. There is a 20 factor test that can help determine if one qualifies as an independent contractor.

1) Did the person receive training of any type?

2) Is there a continuing relationship between the person and the company? An ongoing relationship tends to indicate an employer/employee relationship.

3) Does the company set the work schedule? If the company can set specific hours when the individual must be "on the job", the individual is most likely an employee.

4) Is payment by the hour, week or month? Independent contractors are paid by commission, or by the job. Any other method of payment indicates an employee relationship.

5) Does the company supply materials or tools to the person? Such action suggests the company is exercising control and the individual is an employee.

The above are just a few of the 20 factors involved in "proving" independent contractor status. For additional information, stop at NORTHERN STATE AGENCY. Our office is located in the Northern State Bank building. Office hours of NORTHERN STATE AGENCY are 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

Our family just returned from our yearly trek to visit our family in Chicago. Once again I have been reminded of how good our life here is in Northwest Minnesota.

Chicago and Thief River Falls are worlds apart in so many things. Here in Thief River Falls, we don't need to be always thinking about our self protection. Here we walk our streets in relative safety. Here many of us forget to lock our doors. Here many of us leave our keys in our cars when we park them. Most of us never lock our cars. Here we don't fear what type of clothing we are wearing. Here a traffic jam is when we wait for the train to pass through town.

In Chicago, all is different. In Chicago, and all of its surrounding area, self protection is of utmost concern. Always one is attuned to the other person. Always one is wary of another person. Always one has to watch out for the other person and what that person could do to you.

In the Chicago area, the streets give you a false feeling of safety during daylight hours. But, it only needs to turn dark for one to know that the streets are not safe. A female needs to fear the streets all the time—day and night. The streets are not safe because of people. In the city, crime abounds. In the city, people are faceless and nameless. Crimes against people are perhaps easy to commit if the name of the person is unknown to the assailant.

In the city, the reasons that crimes are committed sometimes seem to trivial, yet so much violence is done in the pursuit of trivial matters. For instance, most of the young men in our area wear baseball type caps as do the young men in the Chicago area. But, in Chicago, if your hat is tilted wrong, or if it is the wrong color, or if it displays the wrong team logo, you will find yourself at risk of a random shooting. The taking of young lives for the pursuit of the trivial—the correct cap—is something we thankfully do not need to concern ourselves with here in Thief River Falls.

In Thief River Falls, we don't feel the need to always lock our possessions. I can go outside of my home here and garden, or sit in my back yard, or even take a walk, and not lock my house. In Chicago, if you go out in your back yard, you make sure the doors that you can not see are locked. Just to walk in my brother's yard, he made sure that the doors of his house were locked. I forgot my sunglasses and needed to go back into the house, but first the key had to be procured. We in Thief River Falls, thankfully, do not need to concern ourselves with such protection of our possessions.

In Chicago, if you have a garage, you are fortunate. Cars are always locked when you leave them—and when you are driving in them—in Chicago. But, in Chicago, car owners with garages for their vehicles go one step further—they can even lock their cars when they are parked in their locked garage!!! We in Thief River Falls, thankfully, do not need to concern ourselves with such constant locking of our possessions.

In Chicago, windows on houses have locks. But, windows have not only locks. Many times, they become part of elaborate security systems meant to protect the property from intruders. If they are not part of elaborate security systems, they may have simple metal stakes in them holding the windows closed against intruders. We in Thief River Falls, thankfully, need only concern ourselves with closing our windows against the elements, not persons.

The traffic in Chicago is constant. Simple trips to the local businesses will be through more traffic than we have here in a single day. A ride on one of the expressways is truly an enlightening experience—or, shall I say its truly a frightening experience!!! Speed limits are always egnored. One must always go with the flow of the traffic. We in Thief River Falls, thankfully, need not deal with that kind of traffic rat race.

Why, if Chicago and Thief River Falls are such worlds apart, and if I truly prefer living here, did I shed tears when I left Chicago? Well, in Chicago, are the people I hold dear—my parents and my brother. I miss living near them and participating in their day to-day living. If you have your family living near here count your blessings. You have the best of both worlds—the world of a safe place to live, and those you hold dear living near you.

ACTIVITIES

Playing Camping in the Back Yard

Summer is drawing to a close and you may want to help the children relive and remember pleasant times during the summer. One way is to provide the props so they can "play" the activity again.

Camping is one of those activities that is easy to "play." You will need two large blankets, a clothes line and some snack food.

Put one of the blankets over the clothes line so the sides reach the ground, to resemble the tent. In the "tent" put the other blanket, rolled up like a sleeping bag. Provide a few snacks and let the imagination take control.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library invites you to browse through their new selection of children's books including the following:

Hendrich, Mary Jean. If Anything Ever Goes Wrong at the Zoo. Leslie tells the zookeepers that all of the animals can come to her house if anything ever goes wrong at the zoo. One wet and windy night her offer is accepted and there is lots of excitement.

Lasky, Kathryn. The Tantrum. When Grace gets mad she screams and slams doors, then forgets why she got mad in the first place. Colorful and vivid artwork bring Grace's little tantrums vividly to life.

PARENTING TIPS

Make Time to Talk with Your Children

Children of all ages need to talk with their parents. Yet a recent study found that parents spend very little time actually talking with their children. Talking with your child is very different from talking to or at your child. Think about the difference and try to determine which you are doing.

According to research the average American mother spends less than half an hour a day talking with her children. Fathers spend an average of only 15 minutes.

In this busy world we live in we may have to set aside some time each day to talk with our children. Choose a time when you're both relaxed. You may want to try mealtime or bedtime.

When you talk with your child talk about some of the important things: like how does your child feel about certain things? What are his dreams, hopes and fears? What was the best thing that happened to him today?

Quiet talks can also be a time when you tell your child how special he is. Saying "I was proud of you when you put your bike away" will do more than encourage a child to put the bike away again. You're also helping your child develop a sense of self-esteem and self confidence. That will help your child long after you've forgotten what you said to each other.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

When you talk with your child, talk about some of the important things like how your child feels about things: what are his dreams, hopes and fears; and what was the best thing that happened to him today.

Auditions for children's play September 9-10

Auditions for the children's play "Oh, My Goodness!" will be held Thursday, September 9, from 7 to 9 p.m. and Friday, September 10, from 3 to 4:30 p.m., according to Janet Haak Aarness of the Northland Community College Theater Department.

There are roles for seven people in the play—one man, three women, two boys (ages 9-13) and one girl (age 9-13). Help will also be needed with sets, lighting, costumes, publicity and other areas. Aarness, who wrote the play, will be the director. College credit can be earned for participating.

The play is the story of Billy Weston who has just moved to a new town on his birthday. He meets his crabby new neighbor, the kids next door and a woman named "Goodness and Light" who claims she is a real, honest-to-goodness fairy. She tells Billy that he must help her on her mission to save the crabby neighbor. Goodness' and Billy's antics and upbeat songs are intended to entertain children of all ages.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The "independent contractor" status has gotten very complicated. An employer should seek legal assistance in drafting an independent contractor agreement. There is a 20 factor test that can help determine if one qualifies as an independent contractor.

1) Did the person receive training of any type?

2) Is there a continuing relationship between the person and the company? An ongoing relationship tends to indicate an employer/employee relationship.

3) Does the company set the work schedule? If the company can set specific hours when the individual must be "on the job", the individual is most likely an employee.

4) Is payment by the hour, week or month? Independent contractors are paid by commission, or by the job. Any other method of payment indicates an employee relationship.

5) Does the company supply materials or tools to the person? Such action suggests the company is exercising control and the individual is an employee.

The above are just a few of the 20 factors involved in "proving" independent contractor status. For additional information, stop at NORTHERN STATE AGENCY. Our office is located in the Northern State Bank building. Office hours of NORTHERN STATE AGENCY are 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

When you talk with your child talk about some of the important things: like how does your child feel about certain things? What are his dreams, hopes and fears? What was the best thing that happened to him today?

Quiet talks can also be a time when you tell your child how special he is. Saying "I was proud of you when you put your bike away" will do more than encourage a child to put the bike away again. You're also helping your child develop a sense of self-esteem and self confidence. That will help your child long after you've forgotten what you said to each other.

Lightening causes minor damage to home in TRF

Lightening caused minor fire damage to the Dr. Peter Johnson residence on Alice Drive early Sunday morning.

According to Fire Chief Dave Bjorkman lightening apparently struck the sewer vent on the house at about midnight. Dr. Johnson smelled smoke in the house at about 1 a.m. when he returned home from the hospital. The fire department was called and Bjorkman said they discovered that some of the insulation in the attic was smoldering and on fire. There was no structural damage to the house.

Council approves TRF Adopt a Banner effort

Thief River Falls city council approved the purchase of brackets for banners welcoming the visitors to the city. The banners to be placed in the brackets will be purchased by merchants and businesses through a program called "Adopt a Banner".

Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce initiated the program and brought the request before the city council Tuesday evening. "Adopt a Banner" offers merchants and businesses an opportunity to purchase a welcome banner for the city and advertise the name of their business on the bottom of the banner for $100. The two-color banners will be 28-inches by 80-inches. Bob Bergan, chamber of commerce executive vice president, said he hopes businesses and merchants purchase about 100 of the banners.

For its part, the city agreed to purchase the brackets. the city hasn't decided whether to purchase spring loaded or non-spring loaded brackets but the total cost could reach $6,800. The spring-loaded brackets have a five-year warranty, and will be mounted above the flag holders.

Bergan said the banners were meant to stay up permanently. There is a 15-month warranty on the banners. Bergan said two samples will be put up before the push to solicit sponsors begins in September.

■ Bids on bituminous improvements in Engelstad park were rejected by the council.

Co-directors of the Park and Recreation told the city council that bids on the bituminous improvements at Engelstad park came in $7,210 over estimate.

Ron Lindberg, city engineering and technical services director, said he wouldn't be doing his job if he didn't recommend not awarding the job to the low bidder. He said prices were "out of whack" with what they should be.

Madlyn Vigen, co-director of the Park department, said the Park and Recreation board had been polled prior to the council meeting to determine their wishes. She said the board had decided to recommend to proceed with the project.

Vigen explained that the city does have three years to complete the project, but must complete the project before applying for another grant. She said the state had been informed that bids came in at over 10 per cent of the engineer's estimate. The state said the city could proceed and could cut elements from the project if they wanted to.

Alderman Dale Wennberg wanted to know why city forces had removed the bituminous that was there before getting bids.

Curt Howe, co-director of the Park and recreation department, said the bituminous was removed in order to facilitate the completion of the project before the end of the summer season.

Vigen said it wouldn't be a problem for the tennis program if the courts were not finished this year. Howe said it also wouldn't affect the hockey program.

After a motion to refer the matter back to the park and recreation department was withdrawn, the council approved a motion to reject the bids and advertise for bids again next spring.

■ The council will be working on budgets.

The council was informed that very preliminary estimates place the budget deficit for next year at $390,000. City Finance Officer Roger DeLap said the estimates were very preliminary and that the city had been in this position before and had balanced the budget. Several meetings among departments and with the city council have been scheduled for the next months.

■ A hearing will be held to determine what to do about diseased Dutch Elm trees that have not been taken down within the prescribed time table.

A list of residents who have failed to respond or take action about notices of diseased Dutch elms on their property was distributed to the council Tuesday night. These property owners have received at least two notices and have been given a date to remove the trees. According to city ordinance, the city's next step is to hold a hearing to notify the residents that the nuisance "will be abated" or removed. Then, if approved by the council, the city will get a contractor to remove the trees and the cost will be placed on tax rolls for collection.

City Attorney Paul Ihle said the only way property owners can protest, is to show that they did not receive notice or that the tree does not have the disease. The notices were delivered by registered mail.

■ Bids on the installation of new lights at the Irv Wilson baseball field were received and approved.

A bid of $8,285 from Skalski Electric was approved by the city council. Skalski will install new lights at Irv Wilson baseball field. The purchase of the lights had already been approved by the council. The city was able to reduce the bid of Skalski electric by $500 by offering to remove the old lights from the city with city crews. The work should be completed by October 15, 1993.

In other business, the council: A variance request by George and Geraldine Duqette, 1103 Riverdale Drive, was approved on conditions; A zoning amendment to facilitate the construction of a parking lot for Dee's Kitchen was approved with stipulations; The council authorized a request to proceed with qualifications on a comprehensive plan update; the council approved a guide for the rental rehabilitation and commercial rehabilitation programs; the council approved a recommendation to advertise for the revolving loan fund; highest bid on a 30-foot by 100-foot quonset building offered by sale on bids from the city was awarded to the Thief River Falls Golf Club for $2,200; The council approved a resolution calling for the bond sale for bond funds needed for the 1993 sidewalk and utility improvement project; a recommendation to announce and conduct advanced refunding on $1,270,000 was approved; Mike Mongoven notified the council that he intends to retire on August 31; purchase of a half-ton pickup for the airport was approved; the city will consider a memo from the labor committee regarding market contingencies and personnel adjustments reviewed by Ernst and Young on September 14; The council approved a recommendation to forgive special assessments on the Frank Rohrer property as there is a buyer for the 50-foot piece of property and the property next to it; dance permits by Ryan Walseth for August 26 and September 16 were approved.

Morkrid and Sorteberg attend camp

Amber Morkrid, daughter of Al and Tawny Morkrid, and Lisa Sorteberg, daughter of Mike and Lori Sorteberg, attended the conservation leadership school at Long Lake Conservation Center August 15-20. The center is located near Palisade in Aitkin county.

Long Lake Conservation Center is the oldest conservation/environmental education center in Minnesota, established in 1963 with a gift of land and a building to Aitkin county by the Kiwanis Club of Southwest Minneapolis.

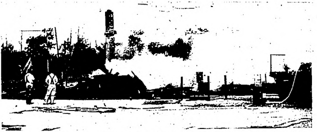
The conservation leadership school is devoted to promoting awareness and understanding of the complexity of the natural world. According to LLCC's executive director, Bob Schwanderer, the goal of the school is to create sensitivity in youngsters toward their environment and, by extension, to make sound conservation decisions in all facets of their lives.

The program explores the topics of water, soils, forests, wildlife, bogs and other natural history subjects. In addition, students learn important recreation skills such a canoeing, orienteering (map and Compass use) and minimum impact camping.

CPT Reierson is Commander

CPT Millie J. Reierson, daughter of Mrs. Gordon Reierson of Thief River Falls, has been installed as Commanding Officer of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 194th Maintenance Battalion.

She succeeded CPT Pharisse Berry at a change of command ceremony August 20 on Freedom Field at Camp Humphreys, Korea.



Firefighters from the Grygla fire department watch the smoldering ruins of what was once the Fourtown restaurant/bar/gas station/ convenience store. Fire destroyed the store Saturday morning. When they arrived, all firefighters could do was keep the fire from spreading.

Homstad among top state spellers

Genevieve Homstad of Thief River Falls placed sixth among 26 participants at the 1993 state senior spelling bee held August 11 and 12 at SeniorPlace in Owatonna.

Genevieve represented the Heritage Community Center of Thief River Falls in the regional event in Crookston where she placed second and qualified for the state competition.

Ione Oberle of North Mankato was declared the champion when she spelled "narcissism" correctly after Betty Buck of Elk River had misspelled it, then followed with the correct spelling of "synchronize." Lenora Reisdorph of Morgan was runner-up, followed by Sylvia Kukowski of Badger.

A point system was used enabling each contestant to spell nine words before anyone was disqualified for misspelling a word, according to Marilyn Flanagan, state spelling bee coordinator.

The 1994 state contest will be held at the Golden Link Center at Crookston.

Council approves TRF Adopt a Banner effort

Thief River Falls city council approved the purchase of brackets for banners welcoming the visitors to the city. The banners to be placed in the brackets will be purchased by merchants and businesses through a program called "Adopt a Banner".

Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce initiated the program and brought the request before the city council Tuesday evening. "Adopt a Banner" offers merchants and businesses an opportunity to purchase a welcome banner for the city and advertise the name of their business on the bottom of the banner for $100. The two-color banners will be 28-inches by 80-inches. Bob Bergan, chamber of commerce executive vice president, said he hopes businesses and merchants purchase about 100 of the banners.

For its part, the city agreed to purchase the brackets. the city hasn't decided whether to purchase spring-loaded or non-spring loaded brackets but the total cost could reach $6,800. The spring-loaded brackets have a five-year warranty, and will be mounted above the flag holders.

Bergan said the banners were meant to stay up permanently. There is a 15-month warranty on the banners. Bergan said two samples will be put up before the push to solicit sponsors begins in September.

■ Bids on bituminous improvements in Engelstad park were rejected by the council.

Co-directors of the Park and Recreation told the city council that bids on the bituminous improvements at Engelstad park came in $7,210 over estimate.

Ron Lindberg, city engineering and technical services director, said he wouldn't be doing his job if he didn't recommend not awarding the job to the low bidder. He said prices were "out of whack" with what they should be.

Madlyn Vigen, co-director of the Park department, said the Park and Recreation board had been polled prior to the council meeting to determine their wishes. She said the board had decided to recommend to proceed with the project.

Vigen explained that the city does have three years to complete the project, but must complete the project before applying for another grant. She said the state had been informed that bids came in at over 10 per cent of the engineer's estimate. The state said the city could proceed and could cut elements from the project if they wanted to.

Alderman Dale Wennberg wanted to know why city forces had removed the bituminous that was there before getting bids.

Curt Howe, co-director of the Park and recreation department, said the bituminous was removed in order to facilitate the completion of the project before the end of the summer season.

Vigen said it wouldn't be a problem for the tennis program if the courts were not finished this year. Howe said it also wouldn't affect the hockey program.

After a motion to refer the matter back to the park and recreation department was withdrawn, the council approved a motion to reject the bids and advertise for bids again next spring.

■ The council will be working on budgets.

The council was informed that very preliminary estimates place the budget deficit for next year at $390,000. City Finance Officer Roger DeLap said the estimates were very preliminary and that the city had been in this position before and had balanced the budget. Several meetings among departments and with the city council have been scheduled for the next months.

■ A hearing will be held to determine what to do about diseased Dutch Elm trees that have not been taken down within the prescribed time table.

A list of residents who have failed to respond or take action about notices of diseased Dutch elms on their property was distributed to the council Tuesday night. These property owners have received at least two notices and have been given a date to remove the trees. According to city ordinance, the city's next step is to hold a hearing to notify the residents that the nuisance "will be abated" or removed. Then, if approved by the council, the city will get a contractor to remove the trees and the cost will be placed on tax rolls for collection.

City Attorney Paul Ihle said the only way property owners can protest, is to show that they did not receive notice or that the tree does not have the disease. The notices were delivered by registered mail.

■ Bids on the installation of new lights at the Irv Wilson baseball field were received and approved.

A bid of $8,285 from Skalski Electric was approved by the city council. Skalski will install new lights at Irv Wilson baseball field. The purchase of the lights had already been approved by the council. The city was able to reduce the bid of Skalski electric by $500 by offering to remove the old lights from the city with city crews. The work should be completed by October 15, 1993.

In other business, the council: A variance request by George and Geraldine Duqette, 1103 Riverdale Drive, was approved on conditions; A zoning amendment to facilitate the construction of a parking lot for Dee's Kitchen was approved with stipulations; The council authorized a request to proceed with qualifications on a comprehensive plan update; the council approved a guide for the rental rehabilitation and commercial rehabilitation programs; the council approved a recommendation to advertise for the revolving loan fund; highest bid on a 30-foot by 100-foot quonset building offered by sale on bids from the city was awarded to the Thief River Falls Golf Club for $2,200; The council approved a resolution calling for the bond sale for bond funds needed for the 1993 sidewalk and utility improvement project; a recommendation to announce and conduct advanced refunding on $1,270,000 was approved; Mike Mongoven notified the council that he intends to retire on August 31; purchase of a half-ton pickup for the airport was approved; the city will consider a memo from the labor committee regarding market contingencies and personnel adjustments reviewed by Ernst and Young on September 14; The council approved a recommendation to forgive special assessments on the Frank Rohrer property as there is a buyer for the 50-foot piece of property and the property next to it; dance permits by Ryan Walseth for August 26 and September 16 were approved.

Morkrid and Sorteberg attend camp

Amber Morkrid, daughter of Al and Tawny Morkrid, and Lisa Sorteberg, daughter of Mike and Lori Sorteberg, attended the conservation leadership school at Long Lake Conservation Center August 15-20. The center is located near Palisade in Aitkin county.

Long Lake Conservation Center is the oldest conservation/environmental education center in Minnesota, established in 1963 with a gift of land and a building to Aitkin county by the Kiwanis Club of Southwest Minneapolis.

The conservation leadership school is devoted to promoting awareness and understanding of the complexity of the natural world. According to LLCC's executive director, Bob Schwanderer, the goal of the school is to create sensitivity in youngsters toward their environment and, by extension, to make sound conservation decisions in all facets of their lives.

The program explores the topics of water, soils, forests, wildlife, bogs and other natural history subjects. In addition, students learn important recreation skills such a canoeing, orienteering (map and Compass use) and minimum impact camping.

CPT Reierson is Commander

Homstad among top state spellers

Genevieve Homstad of Thief River Falls placed sixth among 26 participants at the 1993 state senior spelling bee held August 11 and 12 at SeniorPlace in Owatonna.

Genevieve represented the Heritage Community Center of Thief River Falls in the regional event in Crookston where she placed second and qualified for the state competition.

Ione Oberle of North Mankato was declared the champion when she spelled "narcissism" correctly after Betty Buck of Elk River had misspelled it, then followed with the correct spelling of "synchronize." Lenora Reisdorph of Morgan was runner-up, followed by Sylvia Kukowski of Badger.

A point system was used enabling each contestant to spell nine words before anyone was disqualified for misspelling a word, according to Marilyn Flanagan, state spelling bee coordinator.

The 1994 state contest will be held at the Golden Link Center at Crookston.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCourciere

. . . Four Years Later...

The following column appeared in Speaking Of four years ago when my son, Terry, was going into the service. Of course this big event happened the first part of September, right around the first day of school, so I combined the two in the column.

Terry will be coming home next week, so I would like to reprint parts of the column today. It was called "Only the Beginning."

"Yesterday I thought of all the parents and kindergartners who were going through the trauma of the 'first day of school.' Well guys, I hate to be the one to tell you, but this is only the beginning of it all.

"Many 'firsts' mark the road to maturity...each of these steps is a natural progression toward the inevitable time when children become adults and go off to live their own lives and take care of themselves.

"Tomorrow there will be a different 'first step' taken by one of my children. My middle son will be the first of our family to enter the service. Even though I've had nine months' notice to prepare for this day, I think this one is hardest of all. It's the college exodus and the first day of kindergarten rolled into one.

"He's going to Texas. Texas is really far from northern Minnesota. Isn't it hot and barren there, with rough cowboys and tough oil men? Don't they have hurricanes and dust storms and stampedes?

"He's going in for four long years. What if he hates it and wants to get out? What if he likes it and wants to stay in longer? When is his first leave?

"He's going to basic training for six weeks. I don't even know if I can write to him, or he to me. Will it be hard for him? When will he call, or write, and where can I send cookies?

"He's leaving his clothes and precious possessions at home. He's taking barely enough things for an overnight stay. Will they give him warm socks and clean underwear? Will he have a warm jacket? What if he gets sick?

"Perhaps you parents who have survived this particular trauma will laugh at my worries. ...I assume this too will pass and I will survive. Deep in my heart I am sure (my son) will survive—and thrive.

"But that isn't going to keep me from missing him and worrying about him like mad, or wishing that this was his first day of kindergarten instead of his first day of the Air Force."

How strange it is to look back over those four years. Many things have happened since the column was written. Both Terry and I have survived and I would certainly say he has thrived during his separation from hearth and home.

Yes, Terry went to Texas, but he was only there for a few weeks, and so didn't encounter any of the dreaded cowboys, oil men, hurricanes, dust storms or stampedes.

He was able to call me and write often—they didn't keep him isolated like I feared. I sent cookies often, but, I'm sure, not often enough. I sent other things, too. Many packages and cards have gone back and forth over these four years.

He was stationed at Fairchild Air Force Base in Washington state for most of the four years, and no, he didn't hate the service and want to get out, but he didn't want to stay in any longer, either. I think he feels that he's gotten what he wanted to get out of it, and it is time to move on.

Terry did not get warm socks and clean underwear from the Air Force. He bought his own and he learned how to launder them better than I ever could. He also became proficient at ironing. In fact, he wanted a good iron for his Christmas gift last year. (I sent it to him.)

The Air Force did provide him with several warm jackets, and warm boots, hats and gloves, as well as uniforms of all types, most of which he doesn't wear.

He did get sick—on his first Thanksgiving away from home. He spent the holiday sick in bed and called home. I think I felt worse than he did that holiday.

His first leave was at Christmas time. Everyone was home and we had the best Christmas ever, despite the fact that the tree roots clogged the sewer again and we had to have the plumbing lady over to unclog it on Christmas Eve.

I guess the thing I will remember most about Terry's time in the service is the war. When he first told me about going into the service, I joked about it. I said, "At least I don't have to worry about you being in a war. If there is a war, we will all be blown up by bombs anyway." Ha—the joke was on me. There was a war and we weren't all blown up. Thank heaven!

So, for those of you who have little ones going off to kindergarten this year, remember that it is only the beginning, and it is just one of many "firsts" you will encounter. Each "first" will pass and both of you will be better for it.

Shari Evenson chased down a shot during Thursday's Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational high school tennis tournament. Evenson, a sophomore, played No. 3 singles for the Prowlers, who were joined in the day-long event by Moorhead, East Grand Forks, Crookston, Alexandria, and Bemidji.

Thursday match-up against defending Class A state champions...

Prowlers host Lakers in football opener

A rematch of the 1992 Section 8A championship game will kick off the 1993 high school football season Thursday when Thief River Falls takes on Detroit Lakes at 7:30 p.m. at Prowler Field.

Although they were title game foes last November, the Lakers and Prowlers start this year on different footing. Detroit Lakes went on to win the Class A state crown in 1992 with a line-up staffed predominately by juniors. Thief River Falls made its first-ever Section 8A championship game appearance using almost all seniors. The Lakers' juniors beat the Prowlers' seniors 48-13 in last year's playoff match-up.

Thief River Falls is expected to be a contender for another sectional title game berth. But Detroit Lakes is in position to repeat as state champion.

"Nobody expects us to win. In fact, nobody expects Detroit Lakes to lose a game this year," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. "But I would hope our kids will step up and face the challenge. The kids have the opportunity to play against one of the best Class A football teams ever – a team that has a chance to win back-to-back state titles. We know we would have to play extremely well to beat them. We can't afford to make mistakes. If we do, they're the type of team that will capitalize and make you play for those mistakes."

Detroit Lakes made a Class A playoff appearance in 1990, reached the state semifinals in 1991 and finished 14-0 en route to its Prep Bowl victory over Farmington last year.

"They (Lakers) are heads and shoulders above the rest of us," said Mumm. "They have strength, size, and our course, experience. They were good last year, and they have almost everybody back. They've played a lot of football games the last three years."

Among the long list of returning starters for the Lakers are quarterback Toby Steinmetz, who threw for over 1,000 yards last year, and runningback David Johnson, who is the Section 8AA 100-meter track champion.

Upsets happen, said Mumm, and he intends to have his team heading into the opener intent on pulling off a surprise. But he also wants the Prowlers to be ready to move on. "We've got seven games after this one," he noted. "No matter what happens, we've got to be ready to play those seven games. Our goal is to play Detroit Lakes twice this year." That would mean a rematch, he figures, in the Section 8A finals Nov. 5 at the Fargodome.

Thief River Falls got in its four scrimmages Saturday during the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview, but Mumm started the week sill considering several line-up possibilities, including some position changes.

Senior Jeff Twomey is expected to be the starting quarterback, but he missed the Pigskin Preview because of a hand injury. Junior Eric Bjorgaard would start if Twomey isn't ready for the opener. Senior Lee Lund has emerged as the Prowlers' top runningback in early-season drills.

Big question mark on offense is the line, where tackles Mark Sullivan, a 6-0, 260-pound senior, and Mark Spyhalski, a 6-2, 280-pound junior are both hampered by injuries. Their size is expected to be a major factor in the Prowlers' ground game this fall.

Defensively the Prowlers' strength rests with its linebackers, where senior Chris Ortloff (6-1, 190) and junior John Davis (6-2, 180) were starters last year, and senior Brent Kleinvachter (5-10, 150) played extensively.

Thief River Falls will follow its opener with a Friday, Sept. 10, trip to Alexandria, then a three-game homestand against Wadena-Deer Creek, Staples and Park Rapids before closing the regular season with road trips to Crookston, Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks.

Pioneers hope to match last year's turnaround in '93

Northland proved to be the biggest surprise in Minnesota Community College Conference football last year with a 5-3 finish that had the Pioneers in the hunt for an MCCC state playoff berth until the final week of the season.

This time there will be no surprises. After struggling for years to pick up wins, the Pioneers emerged as a solid community college football team under first-year head coach Gene Klinke in 1992. Now the challenge is to keep the program on top when the rest of the league gears for you.

"We hope to do as well as we did last year," said Klinke. At this point I really don't know if we can do that that again. "But we're very optimistic. We're happy. We're smiling. We've got speed and we've got talent. What we need is some experience."

Especially in the offensive line. Much of last year's success was credited to the work done by the offensive line. But from tackle-to-tackle, that whole group is gone. Putting together a new front wall of blockers will be a major item in preseason work.

"If we're going to match last year's record, we need to find some people to play well in the offensive line," said Klinke. "We've got some kids there we think will do the job, but we need them to step forward now and take charge. I knew people say you win games with defense, but you've got to have the offensive line that will get the job done and give the defense time to catch its breath on the sideline if you're going to be successful."

There were 54 players who reported Friday. Late arrivals should bring the number to around 60 by the time the Pioneers open the year with a Saturday, Sept. 11, trip to Fergus Falls.

In addition to the line, the offense also must replace athletic quarterback Mitch Bernstein and runningback Shawn Campbell, who became the first Northland back to rush for over 1,000 yards in a single season last fall. Campbell used up his eligibility in 1992; Bernstein was a freshman, but has decided not to play football this year.

Sophomore Lee Alfson (Hillsboro, ND) has switched from slotback to quarterback, and will compete for the starting spot against three freshmen – Jason Svir (Thief River Falls), Greg Lien (Warroad) and Ryan Rislov (Badger).

Much of the ball-carrying duties will fall to sophomore Sheldon Hinton (Edmonton, Alberta), who will likely rank among the bigger backs in the MCCC at 6-2, 245 pounds.

"It's no secret, we will build a lot of our offense around Hinton," said Klinke.

Complementing the power of Hinton will be sophomore Paul Mason, Jacksonville, FL, and freshmen backs like David Blazek, Middle River; Ricky Rivera, East Grand Forks, Danny Nelson, Redwood Falls, and Kenny Barker, Tallahassee, FL.

Defensively the Pioneers could be solid with returnees like Jeremy Rychlock (Grygla), Brandon Baker (Opa Locka, FL), John Hardy (Chicago, IL), and Brandon Blaine (Goodridge) up front and at linebacker, along with Jay Cooper (Houston, TX) in the secondary.

"I think we'll be pretty solid," said Klinke. "If we can find some offensive linemen we'll be all set."

Other sophomores on hand for the start of drills were Craig Carey, Lowell, IN; Jeff Alvarez, Miami, FL; Freddie Jenkins, Emerado, ND; Dante Steele, Miami, FL; and Darren Brein, Leonard.

Rest of the freshmen reporting include Matt Kasprowicz, Karlstad; Christopher Jourdain, Red Lake; Robert Nelson, Thief River Falls; Dan Koehmstedt, Strathcona; Antonio Parker, Chicago, IL; Dan Johnson, Grand Forks, ND; Jeff Poe, Stephen; Chris Beaden, Baudette; Ed Halvorson, Baudette; Darin Fish, Warroad; Josh Donner, Ogema; Jason Brookshire, Halstad; Rick Anteau, Toledo, OH; Jayme Aure, Crookston; Rick Ostby, Thief River Falls; Eric Halbert, Thief River Falls; John Logan, Larimore, ND; Lustin Lunsetter, Gatzke; BJ Hillman, Waskish; Galen Brantley, Soldotna, AK; Dan Price, Tallahassee, FL; Tony Moen, Goodridge; Ray Reinhart, Warroad; Butch Olson, Middle River; Chad Olson, McIntosh; Ethan Weiby, Erskine; Jeremy Noyes, Erskine; Anthony Walker, Inkster, MI; Scott Frenzel, Blackduck; Mondor Perdue, Inkster, MI; Ronnie Anderson, Chicago, IL; Maceo Butley, Las Vegas, NV; Kirby Dembiczak, Halma; Jeremie Swanson, East Grand Forks; John Atkinson, Chicago, IL; Trent Wahl, Badger; Chris Mattison, Erskine; Robert Murray, White Earth; and Henry Neeland, Bagley.

Ralph Cox, Rick Nikunen and Terry Wiseth will serve as Northland assistant coaches this year.

The Pioneers' home opener will be the Saturday, Sept. 18, Pepsi Bowl vs. Hibbing.

Lincoln sophomores, freshmen make debut

Lincoln High School sophomore football team hosts Crookston tonight (Wednesday) in a 7:30 p.m. season-opener at Prowler Field.

The Lincoln freshmen will start their season Thursday with a 1 p.m. game against East Grand Forks at Prowler Field.

New football coach heads Gators in '93

Steven Willman will make his head coaching debut Thursday when Badger/Greenbush-Middle River opens its 1993 high school football season with a 7:30 p.m. Great Plains Conference game at Warren.

Willman is a Fargo, ND native who played football and baseball at Jamestown College. He replaces Vern Schnathorst, who directed the Gators to a 5-3 finish last fall – the first year of the three-community athletic cooperative.

"I'm really excited to get things under way," said Willman. "I have yet to see how the competition stacks up, so I am unable to accurately predict how well we will do. But I am conservatively optimistic about the season at this point."

Willman was happy with the Gators' performance in Saturday scrimmage match-ups with Roseau and Lake of the Woods. "I thought we performed very well," he said. "Offensively, it looks like we should be able to do a few things, and the defense looks solid."

Juniors Sheldon Ruud and Richie Berger were scheduled to rotate at quarterback, but the job will belong exclusively to Ruud in the opener after Berger went down with a rib injury Saturday.

"Sheldon is a smart quarterback," noted Willman. "He does a real good job on his reads."

Much of the Gators' offensive load will fall to hard-running Brian Walsh, a 6-0, 195-pound senior.

"Brian will be our workhorse on offense," acknowledged Willman.

Walsh will be looking for holes behind a line anchored by 5-9, 220-pound junior Ross Waage and 5-5, 190-pound senior Brady Hasson in the interior. Tight ends Matt Kuznia, a 6-5, 190-pound junior, and Billy Holum, a 6-1, 195-pound senior, will also be key figures in the Badger/Greenbush-Middle River offense.

Walsh, a linebacker, and Holum, an end, are expected to lead the Gators' defense.

■ Mustangs no longer part of Nine-Man program

Red Lake County Central will have a different look during the upcoming 1993 high school football season.

The Oklee/Plummer cooperative makes the move from Nine-Man in the North Tri-County Conference to Class C competition in the Great Plains Conference. The Mustangs' new surroundings include Ada-Borup, Badger/Greenbush-Middle River, Waubun, Hawley, Lake Park/Audubon, Warren, Red Lake Falls, Fertile-Beltrami, and Fosston.

It all starts Thursday when Red Lake County Central visits Ada-Borup for a 7:30 p.m. game.

"Moving up to 11-man Class C will definitely be a challenge," acknowledged veteran Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "We're a little leery, obviously. It's something new. We've got to get used to 11-man again."

Biggest concern about the switch, dictated by enrollment figures, is the physical part of the game, said Brantl. In Class C the Mustangs will generally be seeing bigger, stronger players week in and week out than they did in Nine-Man. And unfortunately, Red Lake County Central is a little short of size this fall.

"We have a nice nucleus to build around," pointed out Brantl, but we're not very big."

The Mustangs have good numbers with 48 players in grades 9-12, but almost half of them (26) are freshmen and sophomores.

However, there are nine seniors on hand, and six of them are returning starters – all-conference halfback and state 100-meter track qualifier Shannon Willett, all conference tackle Chad Pahlen; fullback/linebacker Adam Lundeen, defensive back Darrin Hofstad, plus defensive ends Paul Melby and Ryan Salberg.

Willett, Lundeen and junior Eric Reinbold provide the Mustangs with a group of quick backs. Junior Scott Lorenson returns at quarterback, with senior Brad Mossestad and sophomore Bryce Huotari also showing ability to run the offense.

"The backfield is solid," said Brantl. "The offensive line is the question mark."

Pahlen (5-10, 220) is the only returning regular up front.

Defensively, Lundeen and junior Shawn McMullen return at linebacker, Willett and Hofstad are back in the secondary, while Melby and Salberg anchor the line.

Willett, Hofstad, Lundeen, and Pahlen are serving as the Mustangs' 1993 captains.

Rick Koivisto, Lawrence Vettleson and Jim Reinbold serve as assistant coaches.

DNR News

Your boat may have a dangerous mechanical condition that, combined with operator inattention or error, may cause injury or death, according to Minnesota Department of Natural Resources boating safety officials.

"There have been a number of injuries and fatal boating accidents over the past few boating seasons caused by the operator letting go of the steering wheel or outboard motor steering handle," said Tim Smalley, DNR boating safety specialist.

When the operator releases the boat's steering mechanism, a force called steering torque forces the motor to slam to the right (the handle on an outboard would go to the left). Caused by the propeller's clockwise rotation, steering torque forces the boat to veer sharply to the right, ejecting the victim into the water.

"The boat continues to travel in a circle and returns to strike the victim in the water, inflicting massive propeller wounds," Smalley said. "Safety experts have come to call this the 'circle of death.'

DNR boating accident records reveal that the victim is usually alone in the boat, although there have been cases where there have been passengers involved.

"For years, many of these accidents were labeled as just plain flukes," Smalley said. "Then boating accident investigators, in some cases, noticed that clamp-on boat chairs fastened to standard bench seats have been torn off towards the rear of the boat. That started people wondering if there weren't some unusual forces involved."

DNR officials list several precautions that can be taken to avoid circle-of-death accidents:

■ Don't release your grip on the steering wheel or motor handle until the boat has ceased all forward motion.

■ Although some steering torque is unavoidable, if it takes an extra effort to hold your boat on a straight course, have it serviced immediately by a qualified technician.

■ On some smaller outboards, repairs can be as simple as tightening a bolt to make it more difficult for the motor to turn from side to side.

■ If the motor is equipped with an automatic kill switch, fasten the lanyard to your life jacket or some article of clothing, such as a belt loop. If you do fall out of the boat, the lanyard, which is attached to the motor's electrical system, will disable the motor to prevent the boat from circling back.

Outdoor News

You're out on the dock, enjoying the peaceful solitude of a weekend at the lake. Without warning, a low rumble starts in the distance and builds to a roar nearly as loud as a jack hammer or heavy-metal rock group. Is it an F-15 jet fighter taking a low pass over the lake?

Chances are, it's a boat with an inadequate or non-existent muffling system, or 'cut-outs' that allow the operator, by means of a dashboard switch, to select whether the exhaust passes through the muffler.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is warning boat owners that Minnesota has strict laws regulating watercraft noise, and offenders are being fined.

Every summer the DNR gets calls from lake shore owners and other water recreation enthusiasts about noisy boats, said Tim Smalley, DNR boating safety specialist. "The situation seems to be getting worse. I guess you can't blame folks for being upset when they go to the lake for peace and quiet, and a few boaters with extremely noisy motors roar up and down the lake all day," Smalley said.

DNR conservation officers, as well as a number of county sheriff departments, are using sound level meters to enforce the motorboat noise laws.

Lincoln has adopted two policies for this year on the recommendation of the Minnesota Educational Effectiveness Program (MEEP). The first states that all people entering the building will remove hats and/or bandanas—as an act of courtesy and to eliminate advertising and endorsing of alcohol, chemical or tobacco products and sexually offensive inferences.

The second sets out a procedure to be followed for first, second and third offenses of pushing, shoving, hazing, harassing or fighting, ranging from a one-day to five-day or greater suspension. Police will be notified on the first two offenses and the student(s) must return with parents or guardian for a conference with the assistant principal. The student(s) will also be referred to student support services.

At the elementary schools, staff is also being instructed in the right-to-know process and building staff meetings are scheduled. Consumer Advsiroy Council on Voctional Rehabilitation for Minnesota, a division of Rehabilitation Services of the Department Jobs and Training held its annual oustate meeting in Thief River Falls Wednesday. This is the first time the group has met in Thief River Falls. Pictured from left are: (front row) Larry Roed, Fosston, Valaerie Brown, Minneapolis, Mary Ellen Pischke, Rochester, Jeff Bangsberg, Minneapolis; (back row) Gene Kremer, St. Paul, Norena Hale, assistant commissioner from St. Paul, Bonnie Folkedahl, Thief River Falls, Jerry Hennen, St. Cloud, Bruce Hodek, St. Paul, Art Syverson, Fergus Falls, and Andrea Everett, Minneapolis.

Rehabilitation advisory council meets

For years, the Consumer Advisory Council for Rehabilitation Services in Minnesota has held a summer meeting "outstate". For three years, Bonnie Folkedahl of Thief River Falls, and a member of the advisory council, has said that "outstate" is not St. Cloud or Rochester. This year they listened, said Folkedahl.

The advisory council met in Thief River Falls last week at the C'mon Inn. The council meets monthly to review the activities of the State of Minnesota Rehabilitation Services. The purpose of Rehabilitation Services is to assist handicapped people to secure training and employment. At the meeting in Thief River Falls, people came from Roseau, Bemidji, East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls to present requests so they can respond to the needs of handicapped and to express frustrations with the department.

The advisory council will present requests and information to the Department of Rehabilitation Services and follow up on recommendations from the council. The local Rehabilitation counselor is Lynn Bylander, whose office is across from Hugo's in Thief River Falls.

UMC names new admissions counselor

Andrew Svec, former assistant director of residential life at the University of Minnesota at Crookston (UMC), was appointed admissions counselor at UMC.

Svec is a native of Lowry, MN, where he graduated as Glenwood high school valedictorian. He then graduated with high distinction from the University of Minnesota at Morris campus majoring in speech communications. While at Morris, Svec received one of five 1990 Morris campus student leadership awards.

Svec became assistant director of residence halls at UMC in 1990. As admissions counselor, he replaces Jean Antelman, who accepted a position with the admissions office on the Twin Cities campus.

His responsibilities include recruiting, publications, coordinating orientation, high school visits, high school counselor relations, and he helps with UMC's marketing.

John Bywater, director of admissions and enrollment management, said "We're really pleased to have someone of Andrew's caliber with his proven ability to work with students."

Alliss grants available at Northland Community College

Alliss grants are available for the 1993 Fall quarter at Northland Community College. The Alliss grant was created in 1985 by the Alliss Education Foundation and has helped thousands of people (from age 25 to 60) start on their dream of a college education. Alliss grants cover first course costs of tuition and books.

To qualify for an Alliss grant you must: not have a degree; be a Minnesota resident; must have been out of high school for at least seven years; enroll at NCC for the first time and not have enrolled in a post-secondary institution for the past seven years.

Contact the Northland Community College Financial Aid Office for the grant application.

Area counties get flood assistance for job loss

Commissioner R. Jane Brown of the Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training has announced the availability of Disaster Unemployment Assistance (DUA) to eligible workers in Kittson, Marshall and Roseau counties whose employment has or will be affected by the flood.

This announcement, which follows the county's federal designation as a disaster area, begins the 30-day period during which applications can be filed at the following Job Service/Unemployment Insurance offices: Roseau, 300 SW Sixth Street, (218) 463-2233; Thief River Falls, 318 N. Knight Avenue, (218) 681-1100.

Persons whose income was lost or interrupted or who may lose future employment as a result of the recent flooding and/or heavy rains may be eligible for DUA. Applicants must have been working or scheduled to work in the geographic boundary of Kittson, Marshall and Roseau counties or another county designated for disaster assistance.

For workers in Kittson, Marshall and Roseau counties, the 30-day filing period that begins the day after this announcement will end on September 24, 1993. The 30-day time frame for claims filed by workers in previously declared counties ends September 16.

Persons who are eligible for regular state or federal unemployment benefits must first file under those programs, Brown said. Local Job Service/Unemployment Insurance staff will determine eligibility for these benefits and file DUA claims for those who cannot meet the state or federal program requirements.

Those who may qualify for Disaster Unemployment Assistance include a person: whose principal source of income and livelihood is dependent upon employment that, as a result of the flooding, no longer exists or cannot be reached; who cannot work because of a disaster related injury; who was to start a job but cannot because the job no longer exists or cannot be reached; who has become the major support of his/her household because the head of the household has died as a result of flooding.

Self-employed persons, including farmers, may also be eligible for benefits under the program.

The weekly amount of Disaster Unemployment Assistance is determined using the same formula used for state unemployment insurance benefits, except that a DUA claim may be based on past wages, self-employment earnings or projected wages. Also, the weekly amount paid may be reduced by wages or other sources of income earned during each week for which benefits are claimed.

Persons who believe they may qualify for either regular or Disaster Unemployment Assistance should apply immediately. Materials that will assist in the application process include: personal identification and proof of Social Security account number; any papers that indicate an employment record and earnings during the 1992 calendar year and the last 13 weeks; papers from any employers to verify the weeks the applicant was scheduled to work; a record of any weeks, as far back as May 6, 1993, during which the applicant was at least partially employed.

Virginia Sanderson portrayed Marie-Anne Lagidmodiere at the Chautauqua, which was held at Old Crossing and Treaty Park in Huot last weekend. Lagidmodiere was the first white woman who traveled across the wilderness from Quebec in 1813 to Pembina. Sanderson was dressed in period clothing and presented a short play from the eyes of Lagidmodiere at the age of 95. Following the play she answered questions from the audience about the life and times of Lagidmodiere.

Area students participate in MS program

Two area students participated in the 1993 Readathon, a program sponsored by the Minnesota Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Area students participating in the program were Adam Larson of rural Goodridge, a student at Our Savior's Christian Academy in Thief River Falls and Nathan Hammond of Thief River Falls, a student at the Seventh Day Adventist School.

Participants in the program raise funds for research and services associated with multiple sclerosis.

BIBLE STUDY

Who are the sinners?

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

Jesus said, "Father, forgive them; for they do not know what they are doing" (Luke 23:34). Even Stephen forgave those who sinned against him (Acts 7:60). Who are these sinners?

Jesus Christ said to the Pharisees, "If you were blind, you would have no sin" (John 9:41). In what way were they blind? They were blind to the true message of salvation through repentance (Matt. 21:32; 2 Peter 2:21).

A great many of the priests of the Jewish church were becoming obedient to the faith of that message (Acts 6:7). What faith? They were becoming obedient to Jesus Christ's faith, the true faith once delivered to the prophets, to Moses and to Abraham (Jude 3). God's servants, the prophets, preached this message. It is not generally known that there is only one true gospel, one truth, one Way, and Jesus came to reveal that Way by revealing what the Ways of the Father are and what His Will is (Eph. 4:4-6).

The Pharisees were not doing the Will of the Father. They were doing good works to glorify themselves, and not the Father (Matt. 5:16, 20; 6:1). They were not being converted and having their natures crushed by God (Rom. 16:20). They were not overcoming evil by doing good works for God (Rom. 12:21; 1 Peter 3:11; Rev. 2:26). They were not fighting the good fight of faith. They were not finishing the course or having a new nature (God's nature) formed in them (Gal. 4:19). Jesus Christ's true gospel reveals to us how to get rid of our old nature and have Christ's nature formed in us.

Jesus said His Way is easy and pleasant (Matt. 11:30). If He had not come and spoken that true message, people would have had no sin. But after they heard how to overcome, they no longer had any excuse for their sin (John 15:22). Many of the Pharisees knew Jesus Christ came from God as a teacher (John 3:2). Thousands of the Jews believed the message and became zealous, while others became jealous (John 11:45, 48, 50; Acts 17:5; 21:20).

The Bible shows that the sinners are those who hear the true message of how to repent by overcoming evil through doing good and do not act upon it (Titus 1:16). God's word refers to these sinners as goats, tares, bad fruit, bad fish, barren trees, wicked stumbling blocks and tasteless salt (Mal. 3:18; Matt. 3:10; 5:13; 12:33; 13:30, 38, 41-42, 48). Yes, anyone who knows and understands the true message and refuses to live it is a sinner (John 9:41; Matt. 7:24; Luke 6:46-47; James 4:17).

Quin County has grant to cut smoking

Quin County Community Health Services has been awarded a grant of $2,679 as one of some 27 separate projects aimed at reducing smoking rates in the state.

The effort will focus on those groups that have made the least progress in quitting smoking—including young people, young adult women, people of color, people in blue collar jobs and people with lower incomes.

The $400,000 awarded throughout the state will be used through the ASSIST program, a collaboration of the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute. In Minnesota ASSIST is a joint effort of MDH and the Minnesota Division of ACS.

Long-term goal of ASSIST is a 43 per cent reduction in the adult smoking rate by the time the program ends in 1998 and a 50 per cent reduction in the cancer death rate by the year 2000.

Quin County serves the counties of Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Roseau and Red Lake.

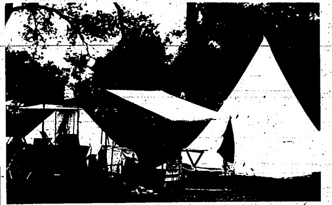
Despite appearance of a wet and gloomy event, the Chautauqua held at Old Crossing and Treaty Park in Huot, attracted a crowd interested in the lectures and recreation provided at the camp. Several lectures were presented during the evening programs Saturday and Sunday. There were many other activities and opportunities for visitors to learn more about the history of the region.



The campground at Old Crossing and Treaty Park in Huot contained an odd mixture of outfits from the Voyageur time period in the history of the Red River Valley. A Chautauqua at the park last weekend provided residents an opportunity to learn more about the history of the region and an opportunity for recreation. The event was sponsored in part by the Minnesota Arts board, Red Lake County Historical Society, Red Lake county and the City of Red Lake Falls.

Californians Do Battle On Voucher Proposal For Private Education

Proposition 174 is a California proposal that may become as well known nationally as the highly publicized Proposition 13 and its slashing of property taxes in the late 1970s. To be voted on in the November election, Proposition 174 would provide parents with a voucher worth at least half the cost of educating a child in public school which could be redeemed as private school tuition.

The contention is that private schools often get better results but cost less per pupil than public schools. The theory is that the more students who would be sent to private school under this proposal, the more money the state would save on education. California is in a position where growth of the school age population would require the creation of a 600 pupil school every day for the next 10 years.

For every point to be made either for or against the proposal there is sure to be a counterpoint which would seem to have equal validity. By their nature and purpose, public schools are obligated to attempt to educate all children of a specific age span. This includes all of the children with all of the problems, handicaps and difficulties. It would obviously cost more on average to attempt to educate all than it would to educate only a select number.

Private schools may well claim high success rates in scholarship and graduation when they have the option to pick and choose who they will permit to attend. By and large, the students who attend private schools are the children of parents who value education, insist upon their children paying attention to their studies and homework and have the capability as well as the motivation to learn. Teachers can teach subject matter instead of having to referee and discipline, and counsel and, yes, even parent.

We know a family from a foreign country now living in California. The parents believe it is worth the $500 a month they pay to have the youngest child attend a private school. They say the educational level is more equivalent to what they would find in their home country.

The public school "system" in California is probably not without some blame for Proposition 174 ever being proposed. Columnist George F. Will points out that inflation-adjusted public education spending per pupil has about doubled every 20 years since 1945, salaries of top administrators average $90,000 a year in the state and non-teachers outnumber teachers in the bureaucratic system.

Nationally, about half of all urban public school teachers with school-age children send their children to private schools. Data is now being compiled on California, and if the percentage is found to be greater than the average, supporter of Proposition 174 can ask what teachers know about the public schools that voters ought to keep in mind in November.

According to Will's column, the California Teachers Association (CTA) has criticized the voucher system as likely to support "unregulated and unaccountable voucher schools" and that "a science course could be teaching kids how to make Molotov cocktails." One political figure was quoted as saying that a "witches' coven" was talking about starting a school with Proposition 174 money.

To such criticism Will notes that voucher schools "would not be immune from state regulation and would be accountable to empowered parents who could remove their children from schools with silly curricula. In contrast, under public education's existing semi-monopoly, many parents have no alternative to public schools teaching sexual 'responsibility' (as defined by condom-pushing 'experts'), environmental 'responsibility' (as defined by people who think Al Gore is a scientist) and multicultural 'sensitivity' (as defined by whatever racial, sexual or ethnic faction has captured the curriculum)."

Were we in a position to vote on Proposition 174 we would not be concerned about the possible weird twists which a voucher system could create—witches' schools or subversive training. We would question whether private schools could maintain lower costs and better results with a much greater diversification of students...if indeed they would have the facilities to handle burgeoning enrollments. And we would be very concerned about the fate of what would be left of the public schools if the best teachers were hired away by private education and the worst students were left because of lack of parental interest.

As in other states, Californians have reason to be concerned about the education their children are receiving. Perhaps they have been unable to effect what they believe to be positive change in the system and feel drastic action such as the voucher system is necessary to awaken awareness that they are serious in their concerns. If the local school boards' authority has been so eroded that they can no longer be responsive to the parents in their districts, then the time for drastic action has come. And if it does, the shock waves certainly won't be contained within the borders of California.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

Recently a student at Lincoln high school received an "allowing open bottle" violation. This should be considered "in the presence of alcohol," according to the rules of sporting events, if a person chooses to be around someone who is drinking. This person is being allowed to be a captain of a varsity team even though it is a violation in relation to alcohol.

Most, if not all, coaches claim they are against drinking, or even being around it. Why do they allow a person to be a captain if that person was involved with someone who was drinking alcohol? I feel this is telling younger athletes that it is O.K. to be in the presence of alcohol.

The rules seem to be changing every year and I think it is about time that someone makes a definite set of rules so everyone will be treated fairly when choosing captains and keeping captains after they have had an infraction of the rules.

Sincerely,
Kathy Kvick

To The Editor:

Area sports fans are reminded that the TRF Sports Boosters began their regular scheduled luncheon meetings August 26 at noon at the Elks Club. Lee Alger, activities director at Lincoln high school and Rick W. Nelson, athletic director at Northland Community College, spoke to the group. This week Lincoln coaches Jeff Mumm and Helen Anderson will be the guest speakers.

The Sports Boosters work closely with Lincoln and Northland to provide physical and financial assistance to the schools' sports programs. The club has roughly 50 members each year with a core group of 10 people who are really involved. We really need some new active members to help us support the young people in our area. I hope all of you will reserve Thursday noons for Sports Boosters meetings.

Our guest speakers, who consist of local coaches, officials and sports personalities of our area, provide special insight to the events in our local school system. The club sponsors many activities during the year, including the Pigskin Preview, tournaments, pie social and Booster Nights at local sports events when memberships are sold and members are admitted free.

Our charitable gambling income is way down and we need to raise more funds somehow to keep up the support we have given in the past. We need ideas on how to do this. We also need to work closer with other support groups in town, encouraging people to come to our meetings, join out club and get involved in Sports Boosters.

Sustainable agriculture book is free

Farmers looking for sustainable methods of raising crops and livestock but short on practical information will be interested in the Minnesota Department of Agriculture's "Greenbook '93," published by the department's energy and sustainable agriculture program. The book is free and available to the public.

Projects described in the book include controlled grazing of livestock, use of cover crops, composting, sustainable weed management and alternative crops. Farmers participating in the grant projects have included tips on how to manage these systems with greater success.

Also featured in the publication are articles by farmers, researchers and agricultural professionals discussing their perspectives and experiences with sustainable farming.

"Greenbook '93" gives farmers ideas on how to manage their farm operations with fewer inputs so that they can be more profitable and environmentally sound, according to Elton Redalen, Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture.

Copies of the booklet are available from ESAP, Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 90 West Plato Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55107. The telephone number is 612-296-7673.

Schoonhoven is Arizona Young Engineer winner

Tim Schoonhoven, PE, a 1977 graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, has been named Arizona Young Engineer of the Year and honored at an awards banquet June 19 in Sedona, AZ.

Tim is the son of Don and Phyllis Schoonhoven, long-time residents of Thief River Falls who moved to Alexandria last fall. He is a civil engineer for Val-Tec, Inc. in Phoenix, AZ.

The award program stated the following:

"Tim Schoonhoven, PE, has demonstrated the enthusiasm and dedication needed to succeed as an engineer. A graduate of Montana State University in civil engineering, he quickly assumed engineering responsibilities in private practice. Currently he is a project manager with Val-Tec, Inc. of Phoenix where he handles civil engineering on-site development projects.

"To his credit is his role as onsite and off-site civil engineering site development project manager for the Arrowhead Towne Center megaproject now under construction in the city of Glendale.

"He has been a devoted member of the Central Chapter of the Arizona Society of Professional Engineers, serving as treasurer for the last two years. Schoonhoven has chaired the chapter's scholarship committee on which he has been active for the last five years.

"Schoonhoven is married and has a three-year-old son. He enjoys golf and gliding."

Californians Do Battle On Voucher Proposal For Private Education

Proposition 174 is a California proposal that may become as well known nationally as the highly publicized Proposition 13 and its slashing of property taxes in the late 1970s. To be voted on in the November election, Proposition 174 would provide parents with a voucher worth at least half the cost of educating a child in public school which could be redeemed as private school tuition.

The contention is that private schools often get better results but cost less per pupil than public schools. The theory is that the more students who would be sent to private school under this proposal, the more money the state would save on education. California is in a position where growth of the school age population would require the creation of a 600-pupil school every day for the next 10 years.

For every point to be made either for or against the proposal there is sure to be a counterpoint which would seem to have equal validity. By their nature and purpose, public schools are obligated to attempt to educate all children of a specific age span. This includes all of the children with all of the problems, handicaps and difficulties. It would obviously cost more on average to attempt to educate all than it would to educate only a select number.

Private schools may well claim high success rates in scholarship and graduation when they have the option to pick and choose who they will permit to attend. By and large, the students who attend private schools are the children of parents who value education, insist upon their children paying attention to their studies and homework and have the capability as well as the motivation to learn. Teachers can teach subject matter instead of having to referee and discipline and counsel and, yes, even parent.

We know a family from a foreign country now living in California. The parents believe it is worth the $500 a month they pay to have the youngest child attend a private school. They say the educational level is more equivalent to what they would find in their home country.

The public school "system" in California is probably not without some blame for Proposition 174 ever being proposed. Columnist George F. Will points out that inflation-adjusted public education spending per pupil has about doubled every 20 years since 1945, salaries of top administrators average $90,000 a year in the state and non-teachers outnumber teachers in the bureaucratic system.

Nationally, about half of all urban public school teachers with school-age children send their children to private schools. Data is now being compiled on California, and if the percentage is found to be greater than the average, supporter of Proposition 174 can ask what teachers know about the public schools that voters ought to keep in mind in November.

According to Will's column, the California Teachers Association (CTA) has criticized the voucher system as likely to support "unregulated and unaccountable voucher schools" and that "a science course could be teaching kids how to make Molotov cocktails." One political figure was quoted as staying that a "witches' coven" was talking about starting a school with Proposition 174 money.

To such criticism Will notes that voucher schools "would not be immune from state regulation and would be accountable to empowered parents who could remove their children from schools with silly curricula. In contrast, under public education's existing semi-monopoly, many parents have no alternative to public schools teaching sexual 'responsibility' (as defined by condom-pushing 'experts'), environmental 'responsibility' (as defined by people who think Al Gore is a scientist) and multicultural 'sensitivity' (as defined by whatever racial, sexual or ethnic faction has captured the curriculum)."

Were we in a position to vote on Proposition 174 we would not be concerned about the possible weird twists which a voucher system could create —witches' schools or subversive training. We would question whether private schools could maintain lower costs and better results with a much greater diversification of students...if indeed they would have the facilities to handle burgeoning enrollments. And we would be very concerned about the fate of what would be left of the public schools if the best teachers were hired away by private education and the worst students were left because of lack of parental interest.

As in other states, Californians have reason to be concerned about the education their children are receiving. Perhaps they have been unable to effect what they believe to be positive change in the system and feel drastic action such as the voucher system is necessary to awaken awareness that they are serious in their concerns. If the local school boards' authority has been so eroded that they can no longer be responsive to the parents in their districts, then the time for drastic action has come. And if it does, the shock waves certainly won't be contained within the borders of California.

To The Editor:

Recently a student at Lincoln high school received an "allowing open bottle" violation. This should be considered "in the presence of alcohol," according to the rules of sporting events, if a person chooses to be around someone who is drinking. This person is being allowed to be a captain of a varsity team even though it is a violation in relation to alcohol.

Most, if not all, coaches claim they are against drinking, or even being around it. Why do they allow a person to be a captain if that person was involved with someone who was drinking alcohol? I feel this is telling younger athletes that it is O.K. to be in the presence of alcohol.

The rules seem to be changing every year and I think it is about time that someone makes a definite set of rules so everyone will be treated fairly when choosing captains and keeping captains after they have had an infraction of the rules.

Sincerely,
Kathy Kvick

To The Editor:

Area sports fans are reminded that the TRF Sports Boosters began their regular scheduled luncheon meetings August 26 at noon at the Elks Club. Lee Alger, activities director at Lincoln high school and Rick W. Nelson, athletic director at Northland Community College, spoke to the group. This week Lincoln coaches Jeff Mumm and Helen Anderson will be the guest speakers.

The Sports Boosters work closely with Lincoln and Northland to provide physical and financial assistance to the schools' sports programs. The club has roughly 50 members each year with a core group of 10 people who are really involved. We really need some new active members to help us support the young people in our area. I hope all of you will reserve Thursday noons for Sports Boosters meetings.

Our guest speakers, who consist of local coaches, officials and sports personalities of our area, provide special insight to the events in our local school system. The club sponsors many activities during the year, including the Pigskin Preview, tournaments, pie social and Booster Nights at local sports events when memberships are sold and members are admitted free.

Our charitable gambling income is way down and we need to raise more funds somehow to keep up the support we have given in the past. We need ideas on how to do this. We also need to work closer with other support groups in town, encouraging people to come to our meetings, join out club and get involved in Sports Boosters.

Clubs like ours don't run themselves. They need people like you—parents, teachers, merchants, etc.—to attend our meetings and show support to our coaches and student athletes. Please help us support the youth of Thief River Falls and join Sports Boosters.

Yours Truly,
John Michael Anderson,
President, TRF Sports Boosters

Sustainable agriculture book is free

Farmers looking for sustainable methods of raising crops and livestock but short on practical information will be interested in the Minnesota Department of Agriculture's "Greenbook '93," published by the department's energy and sustainable agriculture program. The book is free and available to the public.

Projects described in the book include controlled grazing of livestock, use of cover crops, composting, sustainable weed management and alternative crops. Farmers participating in the grant projects have included tips on how to manage these systems with greater success.

Also featured in the publication are articles by farmers, researchers and agricultural professionals discussing their perspectives and experiences with sustainable farming.

"Greenbook '93" gives farmers ideas on how to manage their farm operations with fewer inputs so that they can be more profitable and environmentally sound, according to Elton Redalen, Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture.

Copies of the booklet are available from ESAP, Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 90 West Plato Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55107. The telephone number is 612-296-7673.

Schoonhoven is Arizona Young Engineer winner

Tim Schoonhoven, PE, a 1977 graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, has been named Arizona Young Engineer of the Year and honored at an awards banquet June 19 in Sedona, AZ.

Tim is the son of Don and Phyllis Schoonhoven, long-time residents of Thief River Falls who moved to Alexandria last fall. He is a civil engineer for Val-Tec, Inc. in Phoenix, AZ.

The award program stated the following:

"Tim Schoonhoven, PE, has demonstrated the enthusiasm and dedication needed to succeed as an engineer. A graduate of Montana State University in civil engineering, he quickly assumed engineering responsibilities in private practice. Currently he is a project manager with Val-Tec, Inc. of Phoenix where he handles civil engineering on-site development projects.

"To his credit is his role as on-site and off-site civil engineering site development project manager for the Arrowhead Towne Center megaproject now under construction in the city of Glendale.

"He has been a devoted member of the Central Chapter of the Arizona Society of Professional Engineers, serving as treasurer for the last two years." Schoonhoven has chaired the chapter's scholarship committee on which he has been active for the last five years.

"Schoonhoven is married and has a three-year-old son. He enjoys golf and gliding."

Section 4. DISPENSARY FUND CREATED.

Subd. 1. Fund established. A municipal liquor dispensary fund is hereby created in which all revenues received from the operation of the dispensary shall be deposited and from which all ordinary operating expenses shall be paid. Any amounts it may be necessary to borrow from the general fund of the city for initial costs of rent, fixtures and stock or for operating expenses shall be reimbursed to that fund out of the first available moneys coming into the dispensary fund thereafter. Provided, that this Subdivision shall not apply to the possession of an unsealed container in a motor vehicle when the container is kept in the trunk of such vehicle if it is equipped with a trunk, or kept in some other area of the vehicle not normally occupied by the driver or passengers, if the motor vehicle is not equipped with a trunk. For the purpose of this Subdivision, a utility or glove compartment shall be deemed to be within the area occupied by the driver or passengers.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Northwest Eye Center brings high tech surgery to TRF

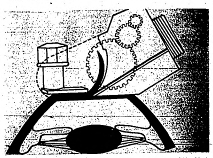
Experiments in health care delivery can have a profound influence on availability. Northwest Eye Center in Thief River Falls has moved ahead with a proposal to conduct a surgical technique called Lamellar Keratoplasty, which means bringing health care from the Twin Cities to Thief River Falls.

Lamellar Keratoplasty is a surgical technique used to correct farsightedness (hyperopia) and higher degrees of nearsightedness (myopia). The surgery involves removing a microscopic section from the cornea's center by a microkeratome, an instrument capable of making an extremely thin and precise incision. Local anesthesia is used so that the patient feels no discomfort during the procedure, which takes about 30 minutes.

The procedure is rather new, but what makes this procedure in Thief River Falls unique is the delivery. Dr. Robert Dicken of Northwest Eye Center in Thief River Falls explained that for the procedure to be done in Thief River Falls an arrangement was struck with Dr. Richard L. Lindstrom, a world renown surgeon. Northwest Eye Center arranged to bring the highly sophisticated equipment needed for the operation from Midwest Surgical Services, and Dr. Lindstrom to Thief River Falls. Lindstrom was a professor of Dr. Dicken's while he was in school so it worked out well, Dicken said. Dicken said Lowell Swenson of Thief River Falls also helped make it a reality.

What all this means, said Dr. Dicken, is that the patient will no longer have to travel to Grand Forks, or Fargo, or Minneapolis to have this procedure or other specialized procedures done. In a sense Thief River Falls has become a satellite office for Lindstrom much as several smaller towns around Thief River Falls have become satellite sites for Northwest Eye Clinic. It's known as bringing health care to the patient.

The first lamellar keratoplasty (LK) surgical procedure was conducted recently on a nurse from Grand Forks, ND. Dicken said the operation went perfectly and the patient is doing well. He also said that Dr. Lindstrom will be returning to Thief River Falls to perform the same procedure on two more patients.



Equipment used to reshape the cornea in the surgical procedure called Lamellar Keratoplasty is highly technical, but the diagram pictured above makes the equipment seem quite uncomplicated. The procedure is now being performed in Thief River Falls at Northwest Eye Center.

The procedure can correct farsightedness, high degrees of nearsightedness and combined with other procedures can also correct astigmatism. Unlike other refractive surgery techniques such as radial keratotomy and the excimer laser, LK can either eliminate or significantly reduce very high degrees of nearsightedness.

In most cases, the change in vision from LK occurs within the first five days after surgery. The eye is bandaged for the first 12 to 24 hours after surgery and there are minimal restrictions on activity during the recovery period. Normal activity can usually be resumed in a few days. If necessary, the other eye can be considered for surgery anywhere from one week to three months later.

Whether or not a patient is a good candidate for LK can be determined only after a thorough evaluation. This initial examination will include measurements of a patient's prescription, the eye's curvature, eye pressure, and an assessment of the overall health of the eye. After reviewing these findings, the doctor will decide if additional testing is necessary. These tests will include a measurement of the length of the eye, the thickness of the cornea, and the integrity of the cells that maintain clarity of the cornea.

Richard L. Lindstrom, M.D., is currently clinical professor of Ophthalmology and co-director of the Corneal Fellowship program in the department of Ophthalmology at the University of Minnesota. He is an attending surgeon at the Phillips Eye Institute where he has an active practice in diseases and surgery of the anterior segment. He attends at the Ophthalmology section of the Minneapolis Veterans Administration Medical Center and is associate director of the Minnesota Lion's Eye bank. He is medical director of the Phillips Eye Institute Center for Teaching and Research and is active in consultation with ophthalmic industry serving as president of ophthalmology consultants.

He holds 18 patents in Ophthalmology in intraocular lens implant technology, corneal preservation, irrigation solutions, viscoelastic solutions, intracorneal lenses, and associated surgical instruments. He lectures throughout the world on corneal, cataract, and refractive surgery. He has recently co-edited two books, one on Ophthalmic Surgery and one on Intraocular Lens Complications and Their Management. He has published over 150 articles in preferred journals as well as over 30 chapters in books.

Rodeo fans pack Huck Olson Center

Arena capacity taxed Saturday and Sunday as top cowboys compete against rough stock and the clock

Everyone attending the Second Annual Thief River Falls Stampede got to see at least one championship performance and crowds on Saturday and Sunday nights packed the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center. A good crowd was also on hand for the opening performance Friday.

On Friday night Ross Rote of Madison, WI, won the steer wrestling with a time of five seconds flat and that mark stood up throughout the three-day rodeo. Rote earned $1,125.20 for his efforts. Tied for second at 6.7 seconds were Kenny Krueger of Saukville, WI, who also competed Friday and Daniel Morton Jr. of Roseville who did his bulldogging on Sunday. Each took home $834.20.

Although Rote had the only championship performance Friday, there were 22 of the 44 entrants who finished in the money competing on Friday night. Twelve of Saturday night's entrants finished in the money, as did 10 of Sunday's entries.

There were a total of 149 entrants who paid their initial entry fees including 42 bull riders, 32 barrel racers, 22 saddle bronc riders, 20 steer wrestlers, 19 bareback riders and 14 calf ropers. Five entrants were injured and turned in doctor's releases to the PRCA for return of entry fees. Among them was four-time world all-around cowboy Ty Murray of Stephenville, TX, who had injured ligaments in his riding arm.

Three championships were earned on Saturday night. Cody Lambert of Henrietta, TX, awarded a re-ride in the saddle bronc riding by the PRCA judges, scored 80 tough points on a horse named "Smuggler" and claimed $1,012.68. Tim Schell of Camp Crook, SD, who rode Sunday, finished second with 75 points on "Eagle Butte" and was paid $838.08. Derek Clark of Colcord, OK, who rode Friday, scored 72 points on "Annie Oaklie" and earned $663.48 for third place.

Jay Hollenbeck of Clearfield, SD, won the calf roping with a time of 9.5 seconds Saturday night and got a check for $998.61. Grady Lockart of Oral, SD, roped and tied his calf in 10.4 seconds Saturday for second place money of $826.44. Jay Parker of Harrison, AR, won the Friday go-round with 10.5 seconds to finish third in the event and claim $654.26.

Third championship performance Saturday evening was by Renee Kenney in the women's barrel racing. The Onawa, IA, cowgirl turned in a time of 13.40 seconds to win $954.48. Second place went to Nancy Ortlip of Watertown, MN, who won Sunday's go-round with a time of 13.52 seconds and pocketed $755.63. Natalie Eisinger of River Falls, WI, had a time of 13.67 Saturday for third place and $636.32.

Those at the Sunday performance saw two outstanding championship rides by Scott Breding of Columbus, MT, in the bull riding and Marvin Garrett of Belle Fourche, SD, in bareback riding.

Breding scored 83 points on a rather small bull from the David Bailey string named "Tar Baby Jr." This is the same bull that gave David Bailey Jr. a championship ride at the first TRF Stampede last year. Breding earned $2,498.72 for his eight-second ride.

Second place bull ride was also turned in on Sunday—a 79 point score by Tommy Rainbolt of Fort Gibson, OK, on a bull called "Wild Onions." He earned $2,052.52. Third place rides—a 76-pointer on a bull called "Rawhide" Friday by Jimmy Morris of Duncan, OK and a 76-pointer Saturday by Rorey Lemmel of Mud Butte, SD, on a bull called "Skoal Patrol"—earned each rider $1,383.32.

Marvin Garrett scored 79 points on a wild ride served up by a horse called "Miss Fit" and drew a check for $970.48. His brother Mark of Spearfish, SD, also rode on Sunday and scored 75 points on "Partner" to finish in a three-way tie for second.

Others who scored 75 points were Phil Smith of Emerson, AR on "Indian Nation" and Randy Bright of Monticello, AR, on "Snake Doctor." Smith and Bright rode on Friday night and along with Mark Garrett claimed $635.83.

TRF Stampede promoters Randy and Denese Jokela of Park Rapids said that the contestants also took home about $10,000 in "day money"—a fund made up of a portion of the entry fees and paid to those who have qualifying scores in bareback, saddle bronc and bull riding each rodeo performance. Day money is not included in the amounts previously listed.

The Jokelas said that the crowds were very responsive all three nights and that the cowboys and cowgirls appreciated the enthusiasm. They also noted that Tim Schell, who finished second in the saddle bronc event, told her that the hospitality the participants had received here was the best they had been treated at any rodeo all year long. "That says a lot about the Thief River Falls people," Denese said.

In addition to the entrants already listed, contestants finishing in the money included the following in each event with the name of the participant, home town, score or time and money won including the following:

Murrays love horses....and performing

Harold and Lynda Murray have spent 15 years training horses and doing trick riding at rodeos across the country

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Lynda Murray doesn't really like the Fourth of July. For four years in a row the trick rider from Poplar Bluff, MO, broke her foot while performing her act on that holiday—often known in rodeo as the "cowboy's Christmas" because of the number of rodeos held on Fourth of July weekends.

Injuries are an accepted part of the business, but the recurring fracture on the Fourth got to be a little spooky. Lynda and her husband Harold provided entertainment during the Second Annual Thief River Falls Stampede Friday through Sunday at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center.

Harold is a native of Poplar Bluff and Lynda is from that area of Missouri as well. Harold comes from a rodeo family and Lynda grew up on a farm but never had much to do with horses—until she met Harold at age 16. It wasn't long before Harold bought a barrel racing horse for her and she started entering competition.

They went to rodeos together for several years with Harold riding bulls and bareback horses, primarily in the International Professional Rodeo Association (IPRA). His father was a saddle bronc rider, three brothers are in rodeo including one who is a bull fighter, and a sister is a barrel racer in horse shows.

Both Lynda and Harold love horses and they started their horse act in 1978, both being involved with the training as well as the performances. They found the indoor rodeo here to be comfortable since they perform at a number of indoor rodeos each year, including six years inside colliseiums with the Loretta Lynn Rodeo Company up until six years ago and at many winter rodeos in more recent years.

"It's different for the horses to perform indoors," Harold said. "Our brown and white horse has only been in the act for a little while. It's an eight-year-old mare that we bought from my dad in May. He had used it for cattle penning competition, but he said it would make a trick horse, and he was right."

The Murrays needed the extra horse to replace one they lost. They had been watching a black and white paint for several years and purchased it last December for $5,000. It was six years old and to be schooled for a new liberty horse act. Just a couple of months later it got colic, apparently from some bad feed, and died before a veterinarian could arrive.

Ever since they started their horse act, the Murrays have used paint horses. They are showy animals in the rodeo arena, have good dispositions and respond well to training. Over the years they have had a number of horses in their act and only lost the one.

"We just retired an 18-year-old mare," Harold said. "We had her since she was a young horse and she was still performing well, but we decided she had done enough for us. We always retire our horses. They get put out on pasture back home and the nieces and nephews and other kids ride 'em. We don't have any children so the horses are kind of our family."

Lynda did the training of "Mr. Liberty," the black and white eight-year-old gelding that she put through its liberty horse paces at the Stampede. Its registered name is "Kidnap Bingo," but "Mr. Liberty fits better into the show's routine.

So how does a person go about developing a trick horse act with all of its athletic events? Is there a college for would-be trick riders or an apprenticeship program? Or do you just have to be an extra bit of a daredevil?

"We have a book," Harold said, "written by an old time trick rider. Its title is '420 Ways to Break Your Neck.' We did get some of our tricks out of that."

Is it a trick rider's bible?

"Not exactly," Harold said. "It's an old book and the author explains things that worked for him. I broke four ribs trying to follow his instructions for one trick before I found out I could do it if I reversed the position of my hands. His way apparently worked for him but it sure didn't work for me!"

The Murrays are on the road almost all year, only occasionally finding time to get back home. The time away is getting tougher for Lynda than it is for Harold. She would like to go to college, get an education degree and teach elementary school students.

"This work gives us a good living," she said. "We've been all over the United States. We have a nice house back in Poplar Bluff that we almost never get to use and a nice car in the garage that only has 7,000 miles on it. It does kind of get you to thinking once in awhile."

But both admit that rodeoing gets in the blood and that they may really enjoy what they do more than they realize at times. And its hard to argue with success.

"We've won four world championships in the IPRA and five circuit championships in the PRCA," Lynda said. She and Harold were both wearing championship buckles from the First Frontier Circuit which they won in Albany, NY.

Although they don't get to Minnesota often, they have been

The bride is the daughter of Charles and Lylian Richards of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Richard and Margaret Hensel of Cumberland, WI.

Tim Penn, friend of the bride, played the guitar. Ida Nordvall served as organist, playing "Canon in D" as the processional and "The Wedding March" as the recessional.

The bride chose a floor length gown of white bridal in an off-the-shoulder style. The bodice with its sweetheart neckline and basque waist had an overlay of lace enhanced with pearls and sequins. Ruffles of lace and satin rosettes accented the short shirred sleeves. The bride complemented her gown with a fingertip veil adorned with three rosettes of white bridal satin. She carried a cascading bouquet of rosa lilies, white sweetheart roses, blue lavender delphinium and miniature carnations.

Denice Nelson of Thief River Falls, friend of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a tea length dress with a daisy kingdom print of rose, green and lavender flowers on a white background. The V-shaped neckline was accented with a matching rosette. She carried a bouquet similar to the bride's.

Ring bearer was Jordan Lutz of Duluth, nephew of the bride. He wore a mint green and white striped double-breasted sportcoat and white trousers. His boutonniere was white roses and babies' breath.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride chose a turquoise two-piece suit. The groom's mother wore a pink silk dress with pink chiffon bodice and scarf. Each had a corsage of white roses, pink carnations and babies' breath.

Honored guests at the ceremony were Neil and Sharon Bugge, godparents of the bride.

A reception was held for the couple following the ceremony. The serving table was highlighted by a three-tier cake iced in white with a floral cake top.

Following a wedding trip to Winnipeg, Canada, the couple is at home in Little Canada. The groom is a graduate of Concordia college in Moorhead. The bride, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Stout, is employed by the St. Paul public schools.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES

Traffic Lights

School is starting and that means many children will be out early to go to school. This is a great opportunity to review traffic safety rules.

So, let's make the red, green and yellow stop lights. You will need red, green and yellow construction paper. Cut the colored paper in circles and glue to a sheet of white paper to resemble traffic lights.

Now it is time to play with them. You can use them with small trucks, tricycles and wagons. Young children learn best by playing.

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need liquid starch and glue.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library invites you to browse through their new selection of children's books including the following:

Manushkin, Fran. Let's Go Riding In Our Stroller. View the world as a huge carousel of action and color from a toddler's favorite seat on wheels.

Fowler, Susi Gregg. When Joel Comes Home. Join the excitement at the airport as family and friends gather to welcome Jean and George and their newly adopted baby son, Joel.

VIDEO VARIETY

Alice in Wonderland. Memorable songs and whimsical escapades highlight Alice's journey down the rabbit hole into the topsy-turvy world of Wonderland.

PARENTING TIPS

Working Mothers

One of the most important trends in recent years has been the increasing number of women in the work force. Today nearly half of all preschoolers have mothers in the labor force.

The average working mother spends 35 to 40 hours a week at her paying job and an additional 40 hours on home and family care. If you are an employed mother, whether by choice or necessity, you may feel overwhelmed at times trying to juggle your roles of wife, mother and worker and you may feel guilty about how your job is affecting your family life.

Studies show that a mother's employment does not in itself have a negative effect on children. Going to work does not automatically make a woman a bad mother, just like staying at home does not automatically make a woman a good mother. In both cases what is important is:

1. the quality of care your child receives when you are gone; and
2. what you are like when you are with your child.

You must make choices: your time and energy are limited, you will not be able to do everything. Do not feel guilty about what you cannot do, but instead set priorities and do the things that are the most important for your family and yourself. Your sense of well-being is also important.

(Contributed by the Early Childhood Family Education department of School District 564.)

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

As you drive to and from your child's day care talk with your child about his/her day and your day. Make this time together "quality time."

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

LeRoy Stumpf
State Senator, District 1

No one argues against streamlining government. What you have to watch out for are streamlining attempts that cause more problems than they solve.

One of those problem cases just happened in St. Paul. Governor Arne Carlson used an executive order to combine two agencies. One of them is popular with businesses and local governments; the other is not.

The Governor merged the Office of Waste Management (OWM) with the Pollution Control Agency (PCA). "Merged" may be a misleading term since the OWM has only 20 employees compared to hundreds at PCA.

On the surface, this might seem alright because the agencies work with the same issues. But below the surface, there are problems.

PCA is the state's pollution cop. The Office of Waste Management is an information agency designed to help businesses and local governments prevent pollution. People could turn to OWM for advice without fear of enforcement actions.

This merger puts the employees people turn to for help under the control of an intimidating agency. A relationship of trust has been damaged.

This type of merging was rejected by the Legislature this past spring. Lawmakers saw the two jobs as different, and wanted them to stay separate.

PCA is often seen as an out-of-control bureaucracy. OWM is known for being successful and responsive. Even people who thought there was common ground for a merger did not like the idea of messing with an agency that was doing a good job.

Merger opposition in the Legislature comes from business supporters, and from some environmental leaders. Senate Finance Committee Chairman Gene Merriam of Coon Rapids recently said, "I haven't heard from anyone who regularly deals with these two agencies, especially local governments, who thinks this is a good idea."

That's why the Legislature will look at the merger in the 1994 session, and probably reverse it.

Dear Readers,

Many people wish to express their sympathy by sending flowers. Flowers have a message all their own. They add beauty to the funeral service. It is proper for the family to suggest a certain memorial but they should not exclude other forms of expression.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. I've been working all year and earning good money. When I retire in late summer will my wages for the year prevent me from getting retirement?

A. Social Security recognizes the fact that people retire all during the year. To permit benefits to be paid the annual retirement test has, for the first year of retirement only, both annual earnings and monthly earnings figures. Under the special monthly rule you can receive a Social Security check for any month you are "retired", regardless of your yearly earnings.

To be eligible for a Social Security check for a particular month, your earnings must be under a monthly limit. We count your wages in the month you earn the money, not the month you are paid. The monthly limits for 1993 are: Age 65 through 69 – $888; under age 65 – $640. For the self-employed, Social Security also looks at the time spent working.

When your earnings for a particular month exceed the limit by even $1, you cannot get benefits for that month under the special monthly rules.

This is general information. Again, the special monthly rules are only part of the overall annual retirement test and are only applicable for the first year of retirement. When you actually file for retirement benefits have available estimates of how much you will earn for the full year as well as your work plans, if any, for after you retire.

You would still need to file the annual earnings report at the end of the year.

Q. My wife's company insurance included medical coverage for me so I did not take Part B of Medicare at age 65. She is retiring soon. Can I get Part B of Medicare now? Is there any penalty? I'm age 67.

A. You can sign up for Medicare Part B now and there will not be any penalty. The basic process is that you can sign up for Medicare Part B when you know the effective date of termination for the coverage. Social Security will write the employer to verify that the coverage has ended and then Part B will be made effective with the termination of the employer's insurance. This situation is an exception to usual Medicare enrollment procedures.

Reminder: To call the national Social Security number, 1-800-772-1213, the caller must dial the "800". This phone number is the same throughout the country and rings at special Social Security telephone centers. The number does not ring at the Grand Forks Social Security office but, if dialed without the 800, it does ring at a local business. This business receives up to 50 misdirected calls for Social Security on some days and would greatly appreciate people dialing the correct number.

IMPRESSIONS

Beth Johnson

Another summer has ended! Where have the days gone? It seems like just last week we were celebrating the end of a school year and the beginning of summer vacation. Now that vacation has ended and school has started for yet another year.

I don't know what it is like at your house the first day of school, but at our house, times have changed. We only have one child still in high school. Preparations for this first day of school are just not as hectic as they once were.

This year, this senior year for my youngest son, is a year I thought would never actually be. For, as all mother's know, our youngest child is not really suppose to grow up. It doesn't seem to be the same with the oldest child. That child is suppose to grow up and leave home and find his or her way in life. But the youngest has to overcome his mother's longing to somehow always have a child at home. The youngest has to overcome his or her mother's wanting to always mother. The youngest has to overcome a mother's need to tend and nurture her offspring. The youngest has to grow up, in spite of his or her mother!!!

In our house, our youngest is a senior. This mother is having a hard time realizing that, yes, this last baby is on his way to being a wonderful young adult. This senior year will hopefully help me actually realize that my youngest is truly as ready to leave the nest and go out on his own as was his older brother.

Every school year is important to a child, but perhaps none is awaited with as much anticipation than the senior year. Senior year has finally arrived for my son and his friends. This is a year that hopefully they will remember fondly. This is a year that will hopefully challenge them in the directions they will choose for further education, or employment. This is a year in which friends will be of utmost importance. This is a year of friendships that will form a basis for lifetime friends. This is a year which will pass too slowly, and at the same time too quickly. This is the senior year.

We parents of seniors need to be playing an important parenting role this year. We need to see that these seniors of ours lead lives that will be lives they can be proud of. We need to set guidelines and expect that the guidelines are respected by our seniors. These seniors of ours are on the verge of adulthood, but are still children. They still need our guidance. They still need our direction. They still need our listening ear, and our arms to hug them. They still need the love and assurance that only a parent can give.

Teachers of seniors must need an extra dash of patience. These soon to be adults must sometimes try the patience of every teacher. These soon to be adults sometimes act like little children. These soon to be adults sometimes have the wisdom that only comes with knowledge and understanding. These soon to be adults sometimes "know it all" when actually they are still learning. The teachers of these soon to be adults—our seniors—are probably always capable of being surprised by these students.

Remember how quickly the summer passed us by??? Well, soon it will be next summer and this year, this senior year, will have been accomplished. How fortunate we are that we have these seniors of ours to love and nurture for this year. I pray that this year will be a year of good times and good learning and good memories and good friends for the seniors among us.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

ARE THERE DRAWBACKS TO "INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR" STATUS?

An employer should enter into an independent contractor agreement with extreme caution as the potential penalties can far outweigh the savings.

1) Government agencies question whether or not the agreement matches the actual relationship.

2) If federal or state investigations determine that "independent contractors" are really employees, the employer will be liable for all back taxes and penalties.

3) True "independent contractors" may not be susceptible to the work comp law, and therefore, may sue the employer on the same basis as any other member of the public.

However, if the courts decide to call the "independent contractor" an employee for the purpose of a work comp claim, the company will be entitled to an adjusted audit for the entire period the employee was misclassified.

A final word of caution: "independent contractors" typically are not as loyal as employees with regard to the success of the enterprise.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

I would like to recognize the many, many volunteers who worked long hours...sometimes days...and many weeks to make the rodeo in Thief River FAlls a roaring success. Thank you to the many sponsors for their financial support. We couldn't have done it without you!

The cooperation was unbelievable...whether it was grilling buffalo burgers, selling cowboy hats or clean up, the cooperation was outstanding. Without the cooperation from the city, county, park and recreation and the law enforcement center an event of this magnitude could not have happened. Thank you for your expertise and hard work in converting the arena and then restoring it to it's original state. We couldn't have done it without you.

If you didn't get a chance to attend, try to make it next year. It was great family entertainment and was a big tourist attraction for Thief River Falls.

Thanks a million!

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

...It's a Fall Again

Yippee! Fall is here.

I know we've hardly had any summer. In fact, we've had such a strange, short summer that I am sick and tired of it trying to be summer time and it might as well be fall. I like fall.

This whole summer has been downright horrible. What did we have, maybe ten days of actual hot weather? The rest of the summer it was either raining or cold or both. There were so many bugs and mosquitoes that we couldn't be outdoors to enjoy the summer anyway.

Some people think fall is depressing, maybe because the long winter follows. I don't. I love the crispy nip in the morning air and the cool or cold nights, just right for sleeping under a fluffy, warm quilt (and/or—my favorite—electric blanket).

I love to cook and bake in the fall. The more the stove and oven are used, the more cozy and warm the house gets to be. And fall is the time to cook more substantial meals, stews and soups. Desserts and snacks are made from fresh fruits, spicy and sweet. I can bake cookies by the dozens for after-school snacking and muffins and breads for before-school breakfasts.

Fall days are filled with warm color. The sun seems to shine brighter on fall days, reflecting the reds and golds of the leaves, the lush last gasp of green grass, the clear blue of the sky which serves as a backdrop for the striking whites and grays of fall's wispy cotton ball clouds.

Fall fruits and vegetables gleam with color, red and gold apples, orange pumpkins, squash and carrots, green peppers, purple grapes. A fall walk in the woods is a treat for the eyes, with glossy nuts and berries, red and orange colored weeds interspersed with all shades of brown and gold, little brown furry burrs, fluffy white seed pods blowing in the wind.

As you can see, I love fall. If I had my way, it would be fall all year except for one hot summer month around the Fourth of July, one cold-enough-to-snow month in December for Christmas, and two weeks of spring weather some time in April so the flowers could grow. That would be enough change of season for me.

In the fall it doesn't matter if it is cold and rainy. We expect some of that in the fall. Those warm, sunny fall days make up for any that are cold and wet.

In the fall we expect the wind to blow. What more perfect fall day than one in which the fluffy clouds scamper across the sky as a background for the v-shaped formations of flying geese and ducks.

Fall smells are wonderful—the dusty smell of raked leaves, combined with the smell of the bonfire they become on a balmy fall evening, the smell of a spicy pie baking, the tart smell of freshly picked apples, the wax smell of candles lit inside of pumpkins, the fresh smell of the frost on a cold fall morning.

Fall sounds are wonderful, too. The crunch of dry leaves underfoot, the crisp sound of the fall wind blowing the leaves down the street, the mournful sound of the ducks and geese heading south, the laughter of children in the school yards, and the cheers of the crowd at a football game.

Yes, there is nothing like fall and it is here. I'm saying that any hot weather from now until the snow flies is just a little Indian Summer, because fall is here.

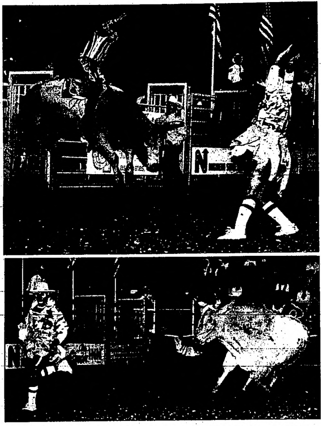
Every contestant in the mutton bustin" (sheep riding for boys and girls five through seven years of age) came up a winner during the Second Annual Thief River Falls Stampede but not all had a thoroughly enjoyable experience. This youngster hung on tightly as she prepared for her ride, but took a bit of a spill and needed some cheering up from rodeo bullfighter James Pierce and Miss Rodeo America Sheri Hannigan. Sheri and Miss Rodeo Minnesota Barb Gill distributed ribbons and large bottles of Pepsi-Cola to all of the contestants in the event each performance.



Bullfighter James Pierce of Thibodeaux, LA, works to attract the attention of a bull (top photo) during the bull riding at the Thief River Falls Stampede and seems to have done a good job of it (bottom photo). Pierce, who ranked 11th in the world in the Wrangler bullfighting competition this year, jumped into the action to save a number of cowboys from being badly injured during the Stampede. He also helped with mutton bustin' and other events.

Second Annual TRF Stampede draws large crowds Sat., Sun.

Health Services issue warning on flooded wells

Flood waters may carry contaminants, reminds the Quin County Community Health Services, and owners of private wells which have been covered by flood waters should take precautions before using well water for drinking or preparing food (including baby formula).

Once flood waters subside, pump the well until clear, the Health Services advises. Collect a sample using a water test kit available from the county nursing service or the Quin County office at Newfolden. Other questions regarding flood-related health issues may be directed to the same sources.

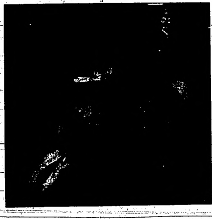
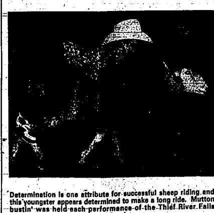
Young riders tried their hand at rodeoing during the Thief River Falls Stampede as boys and girls age five through seven participated in the mutton bustin' event. This young rider got close to his work but had trouble keeping his balance on the frisky ewe and, like all of the other youngsters, wound up on the arena floor with applause for his efforts.

The moment of truth is cause for some apprehension as this rider finds out during mutton bustin' at the Thief River Falls Stampede. The sheep were mostly cooperative and the youngsters from five to seven years of age were crowd favorites at the rodeo.



It was a faster start for the sheep than for this rider during mutton bustin' at the Thief River Falls Stampede. Rodeo clown and barrel man Harold Murray helped with the sheep riding event.



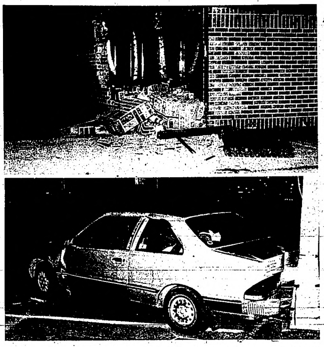
Determination is one attribute for successful sheep riding and this youngster appears determined to make a long ride. Mutton bustin' was held each performance of the Thief River Falls Stampede Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Take a deep breath and hang on tight are the keys to success in the mutton bustin' held during the Thief River Falls Stampede. This rider appears to be doing both just fine.

Antique cars joined the Thief River Stampede parade entrants Saturday in Thief River Falls. This entry had an added set of horns.

Hundreds of spectators lined downtown streets for the Thief River Stampede rodeo Saturday. Many local businesses like Digi-Key, an electronics parts distributor, participated in the parade.

The girls and guys of Evergreen Eating Emporium participated in the Thief River Stampede parade Saturday in Thief River Falls. This float was a crowd favorite.



Police responded to this accident Monday morning at 12:02 a.m. According to the accident report, Jayson, Raymond Powers (a.k.a. Olson) age 19, was driving south on LaBree when at the intersection with Fourth street he had a seizure. The vehicle veered across the intersection and into the Professional building wall and was then thrown into reverse. While in reverse it struck a light pole on the opposite side of the intersection. Powers was taken by ambulance to Northwest Medical Center and then transferred to United Hospital in Grand Forks, ND, where he was treated and released. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $2,000. Damage to the building was also estimated at $2,000.

Officials raced to put out a fire in one of the cars participating in the Jaycee Demolition Derby. The event was held Labor Day in Thief River Falls. It was originally scheduled for the fair, but due to inclement weather was rescheduled for last weekend. Entries were down but there was still plenty of action.

Over 40 enter Jaycee Demo Derby

Thief River Falls Annual Jaycee Demolition Derby was held Labor Day in Thief River Falls. The event is usually held during the Pennington county fair, but due to inclement weather, the event was postponed and rescheduled.

As a result of the rescheduling, organizers were anticipating fewer entries. Typically, the event draws 75 to 80 entries. On Monday, there were 41 entries. Nonetheless, there were some crowd-pleasing moments in the demolition derby.

Top three finishers in Heat 1 were: 1, Brad Swenson, 2, Darryl Opdahl, and 3, Tom Iverson.

In Heat 2, Jamie Sauve was first, Kelly Knutson second, and Jordan Walsh third.

In Heat 3, Todd Kruse was first, Jeff Brouse, second, and Bruce Swanson, third.

In Heat 4, John Weets was first, Shane Wahl, second, and Jamie Kruta third.

The top two finishers in each Heat qualified for the Feature Event. Shane Wahl finished first, John Weets, second, Kelly Knutson, third, Brad Swenson, fourth, Darryl Opdahl, fifth, Todd Kruse, sixth, Jeff Brouse, seventh, and Jamie Sauve, eighth.

In the final event, all entrants who still had a vehicle capable of running, could enter the Grand Slam. Twenty-two cars were entered in the event. Trophies were awarded to the top five places. Jordan Walsh placed first, Brian Bruggeman, second, Kevin Melvie, third, Gaylan Erickson, fourth, and Brian Johnson fifth.

Boy Scouts set party for membership

A free Pepsi and pizza swimming party will be held Monday, September 13, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Franklin middle school for any boys in grades six, seven or eight and older who are interested in joining the Boy Scout organization.

This "Join Scouting Swim Party" is sponsored by the three Boy Scout troops in Thief River Falls. Any boy in sixth grade or older is invited to join, even if he has never been in Cub Scouts or Boy Scouts before. Current scouts are encouraged to bring a friend to join the scouting program.

Boy Scouts meet with their troop or patrol each Monday night and work on a wide variety of fun and educational activities consisting of monthly themes, scout skills, games and community service projects.

The next city-wide campout will be the Fall District Camporee at Twin Valley September 24-26. The Boy Scout motto is "Be Prepared," and scouting helps a boy become prepared for life, according to Art Heinze, who has been involved with the scouting program in Thief River Falls for a number of years.

For more information on joining Boy Scouts, parents or boys may contact Heinze, scoutmaster of Troop 199, sponsored by St. John Lutheran Church, at 681-1624; Gary Johnson, scoutmaster of Troop 59, sponsored by Zion Lutheran Church, at 681-3970; or Jerome Cota, scoutmaster for Troop 57, sponsored by St. Bernard's Catholic Church, at 681-4570.

Blue Devils win opener vs. Raiders

Jim Verbout scored four touchdowns and added three two-point conversions, while Jason Grandstrand rushed for 186 yards Friday afternoon as Grygla/Goodridge beat Valley North 44-18 in a season-opening high school football game played at Oslo.

"Things went pretty well for an opener," reported Grygla/Goodridge coach Darwin Hagen. "The offense was clicking pretty good."

Verbout, a 160-pound junior who netted 74 yards on seven carries, scored on runs of 3, 1, 46 and 8 yards. Grandstrand, a 185-pound senior, averaged 16.9 yards on 11 carries as he began a quest to match last year's 1,000-yard season.

A portion of the offensive credit, said Hagen, goes to the line, headed by seniors Eldon Quam (195 pounds), Brad Phillipp (215) and Paul Cullen (165).

Defensively, 175-pound senior cornerback Rod Holte was credited with 10 tackles, and Quam stood out at an end, noted Hagen.

The Blue Devils will meet Tri-County Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Goodridge.

B/G-MR volleyball...

Top-notch high school volleyball will be offered in the North Border Conference this year, and Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Gwen Borgen expects her team to be right in the thick of the race.

Heather Anderson and Ali Hietala, a pair of athletic juniors, move up from the junior varsity ranks to fill out the Gators' starting unit.

Rest of the varsity members are seniors Amanda Haugen and Sheree Nelson, junior Stacy Haugen, and sophomore Kara Reese.

"I'm very optimistic," said Borgen. "We've got experience, good quickness in our setters and good height in our hitters. We should have a good year."

But it won't be a free ride. Marshall County Central, Lake of the Woods and Tri-County join Badger/Greenbush-Middle River as legitimate title contenders. "The conference will be really strong this year," explained Borgen. "It should be an exciting year of volleyball. I look for a lot of five-game matches. It should be a lot of fun."

The Gators start their season Thursday against Grygla/Goodridge in Grygla. Badger/Greenbush-Middle River will be at the Roseau Invitational Saturday. The Gators' first home appearance will be Monday vs. Lake of the Woods. All B/G-MR home matches will be played at Greenbush.

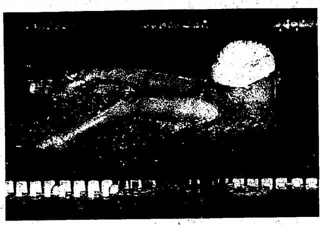
LHS cross country teams to open with Roseau Invitational

An appearance at the Roseau Invitational Thursday will kick off Thief River Falls' 1993 boys and girls high school cross country season. Meet time is 4:30 p.m.

The 10 regular season varsity meets for the Lynn Dyer-coached Prowlers includes the Monday, Oct. 4, Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational at the Thief River Golf Club.



Theresa Glauque of the Prowlers swam the butterfly leg of the 200-yard medley relay Friday as the Thief River Falls girls took on Fergus Falls in a high school swimming dual at the Franklin Middle School pool. It was the 1993 home opener for the Prowlers.

Swimmers lose to Fergus Falls

Fergus Falls girls won 10 of 12 events Friday en route to a 104-85 dual meet high school swimming win over Thief River Falls at the Franklin Middle School pool.

It was second meet of the year for the Prowlers, who opened with an Aug. 31 triangular at Detroit Lakes. They will host Park Rapids Thursday at 5 p.m.

Junior Theresa Giauque provided the Prowlers' only place finishes against the Otters by winning the 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard freestyle.

1993 Northland Community College volleyball...

Pioneers expecting good year

Deb Jacobson begins her 20th year as Northland Community College volleyball coach looking for a major turnaround in a program that went 5-20 last fall.

"I'm very optimistic," said Jacobson. "At this point, it might be one of the best teams I've ever had."

Kathy Kvick (Thief River Falls) and Holly Gram (Middle River) are the only players returning from last year, but Ranada Erickson (Thief River Falls) and Ronda Olson (Valley North) are also sophomores playing volleyball at Northland for the first time – Olson a transfer from the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Freshmen reporting for early drills included LuAnne Maslowski (Thief River Falls), Charitie Dalzell (Kittson Central), Heidi Klegstad (Kittson Central), Brenda Kiecker (Win-E-Mac), Tia Hietala (Badger), Lisa Verbout (Grygla), and Kyoko Kino (Osaka, Japan). Others were expected to join the team when school started.

"This is a good bunch of players," noted Jacobson. "They have good skills, they can set and hit, and they're good jumpers."

Northland doesn't have an excess of size, however, with Kvick and Erickson, both 5-10, providing what height the Pioneers do have.

"We've got some depth this year," said Jacobson. "I think we've been competitive the last two years, but we've been killed by injuries. This year we have enough skilled players to step in if somebody is out of the line-up. Any one of these kids could start for us."

Northland opens its 1993 volleyball season with a Friday triangular at home when the Pioneers will be joined by Rainy River and UND-Lake Region.

Annual Minnesota Community College Conference Northeast-Northwest Invitational will be played Saturday at Northland. Hibbing, Itasca, Brainerd, and Northland will be grouped in Pool A, while Fergus Falls, University of Minnesota-Crookston, Rainy River, and Mesabi play in Pool B.

Saturday match-ups: 9 a.m. - Northland vs. Itasca and Fergus Falls vs. Rainy River; 10 a.m. - Brainerd vs. Hibbing and UMC vs. Mesabi; 11 a.m. - Northland vs. Brainerd and Fergus Falls vs. UMC;

Leading ground-gainer for Thief River Falls in Thursday's season-opening 41-6 high school football loss to No. 1-rated Detroit Lakes was junior fullback Brian Howe (46), who netted 78 yards on 16 carries. Teammate Joby Looker (98) tired to help out with a block on the play, with the Lakers' Joe Schweigert looking on. The Prowlers will be at Alexandria Friday.

Prowlers open at Valley North...

TRF volleyball will start on Thursday

Successful jamboree outings have provided Thief River Falls with a shot of confidence heading into the Prowlers' 1993 high school volleyball season opener Thursday against Valley North in Oslo.

Fourth annual Thief River Falls Jamboree was played Wednesday and the Class AA Thief River Falls squad joined area Class A teams in the the Section 8A Sub-Section 3 Jamboree Friday in the Lincoln gyms. The Prowlers came out of the two scrimmage sessions 8-0.

"Things went really well," said Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson. "We got off to some slow starts, but the girls never gave up. They played with a lot of intensity."

The line-up isn't set yet for the opener, according to Anderson, but she's confident the Prowlers will do well this fall. "We've got a lot of tough competition coming up, but we're going to be competitive," said Anderson. "We're going to be a quicker team than we have been the last couple of years. And we've got some good hitters."

However, there are still bugs to be worked out. Serve reception is always a concern, and the Prowlers are working in new schemes on both offense and defense. "We've got lots of things to work on," acknowledged Anderson. "The big thing right now is to get our timing down on our hitting and blocking."

Thief River Falls will compete in the Roseau Invitational Saturday before making their home appearance Sept. 14, vs. Detroit Lakes.

Prowlers look for win vs. Cardinals

■ First-time football match-up

Thief River Falls wasn't given much of a chance to beat defending Class A state champion Detroit Lakes in Thursday's 1993 high school football season opener. The Lakers lived up to their preseason No. 1 ranking with a 41-6 victory.

There's a different feeling in the Prowlers' camp this week leading to a 7:30 p.m. Friday game at Alexandria.

"We have a chance to win a game here," noted Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm.

But the Prowlers are far from a sure bet in the first-ever Thief River Falls vs. Alexandria football match-up. Especially after the Cardinals beat perennial Section 8A contender Fergus Falls 21-14 in Week 1.

"We saw the game," said Mumm. "Alex is good. Fergus Falls is always one of the best teams in Section 8A, and Alex beat them. That's a concern. They moved the ball well. They've got good size in the line and good quickness in the backfield. And we always have to be concerned with the other team's quickness. We'll have our hands full."

Added incentive for the Prowlers is the fact that the Class AA Cardinals offer an opportunity to pick up some extra credit in the new point system being used this year to determine the Section 8A post-season pairings. Wins over Class A schools are worth 100 points, but a victory against a Class AA would get you 120 points. Beating a Class B or C team would net only 80 points.

"This is a big game for us," said Mumm. "It's a long trip; our first game on the road; and it's against a AA school. It should be fun. We're looking forward to it."

Offensively, the Prowlers are expected to start junior Luke Moe (6-2, 235) at center, with senior Brent Kleinvachter (5-10, 150) also working there; junior Caylor Olson (6-2, 270) and senior Mark Sullivan (6-0, 260) at the tackles while a four-man rotation at the guards features juniors John Davis (6-2, 180), Jason Homme (6-3, 175) and Jason Hruby (5-10, 160), along with senior Corey Olson (6-0, 160). Hruby was just moved to the offensive line from wingback this week. Sullivan missed the opener because of a shoulder injury.

Seniors Joby Looker (6-1, 215) and Eric Dahl (5-11, 175) will be the tight ends. The backfield includes junior Steve Burslie (6-4, 155) at wingback; junior Brian Howe (5-10, 195) at fullback; senior Lee Lund (5-11, 190) at halfback; and either senior Jeff Twomey (5-8, 160) or junior Eric Bjorgaard (6-0, 180) at quarterback.

Twomey was expected to start the year at quarterback, but was held out of the opener because of a wrist injury suffered in the preseason Pigskin Preview. Bjorgaard played well in his place against the Lakers.

"We'll let them (Twomey and Bjorgaard) settle it this week in practice," said Mumm, "or we may even go to a rotation-type system."

On defense, the starting line-up will likely find Hruby at nose guard; Howe and Moe at the tackles; Dahl and junior Max Radniecki (5-9, 135) at the ends; Davis, senior Chris Ortloff (6-1, 190) and junior Tony Halsa (5-9, 180) at linebacker; senior Robby Bakken (5-11, 150) and juniors Nathan Anderson (6-0, 160) and Adam Henney (5-10, 165) in the secondary.

New coach directing veteran RLCC squad

Bray returns to the head coaching ranks this fall at Red Lake County Central, where she succeeds Brad Boreen.

She isn't new to the team or the position, having coached in the program the past 12 years, including a one-year stint as head coach at Plummer before the Oklee/Plummer cooperative was formed three years ago under Boreen.

"It's a lot more work, but I'm looking forward to being a head coach again," offered Bray.

Boreen, who resigned after the 1992 season to spend more time with his family, didn't leave the cupboard bare. Six seniors greeted Bray at the start of practice, including five returning regulars – Amy Arlt, Karlene Jolly, Farrah Brantl, Angel Mickelson, and Abby Chervestad. Stacy Lambert is the other senior back from a 12-11 team.

Juniors Rachel Demarais, Andrea Lundeen and Nicole Konickson, along with sophomore Marie Austad will also be looking for varsity playing time.

"It's a really good bunch of kids to work with," said Bray. "I think we should be okay. We're not tall, but we've got some good quickness and we've got some hard hitters. Right now we're looking for a setter or two."

Red Lake County Central starts play Thursday against Fosston in Oklee.

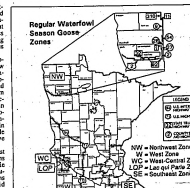
Waterfowl hunting dates are listed

Minnesota duck and goose hunting regulations have been finalized for the 1993 season. The duck season will be similar to last year, but there have been substantial changes in the goose regulations, according to Department of Natural Resources officials.

"While the continental duck population is similar to the past few years, some migrant goose populations that are important to Minnesota waterfowl hunters have declined substantially since 1991," said Tim Bremicker, chief of the DNR Section of Wildlife. "Major changes in goose regulations include the establishment of new West and Northwest goose zones, a split season in the West Central and Lac qui Parle goose zones, and more restrictive seasons in all four of these zones.

"Duck numbers are similar to last year, but improved water conditions in Minnesota, the Dakotas, prairie Canada, and other areas may influence waterfowl migration patterns and hunting opportunity," said Bremicker. "While the breeding population of migrant geese was down, there should be relatively large numbers of young in the fall flight due to very good production. This, combined with the sizable population of Canada geese that nest in Minnesota, should provide good goose hunting opportunity, even with more restrictive seasons in some areas."

One important change for 1993 is that all ducks, mergansers, and geese must be transported with a fully feathered wing and the fully feathered head intact. This new law is designed to aid species identification by enforcement officers.



Ducks

The 1993 Minnesota duck hunting season will be open during three segments: from noon on Saturday, Oct. 2, through Sunday, Oct. 10; from Thursday, Oct. 14, through Sunday, Oct. 31; and from Friday, Nov. 5, through Sunday, Nov. 7. Except for Oct. 2, when shooting hours are noon to 4 p.m., shooting hours will be from one-half hour before sunrise to 4 p.m. daily through Oct. 22, and from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset beginning Saturday, Oct. 23 through the close of the seasons.

The daily bag limit of ducks is three, and may include no more than two mallards (only one of which may be a female), two wood ducks, one black duck, one pintail, and one redhead. Possession limit is double the daily bag limit. The canvasbacks season is closed.

The daily bag limit of mergansers is five, only one of which may be a hooded merganser. The possession limit is twice the daily bag limit.

The daily bag and possession limit for coots are 15 and 30, respectively.

"This will be the third year with the three-segment split season," said Bremicker. "The split season provides opportunity for those who like to hunt later in the fall without removing much opportunity from earlier in the season."

Geese

Major changes in the goose season, including new goose zones and a split season in the West Central and Lac qui Parle goose zones, will begin in 1993.

"There have been substantial declines in the breeding population of Eastern Prairie Population Canada geese during the past two years," said Bremicker. "These geese nest in northern Manitoba and migrate through western Minnesota to wintering grounds in Missouri. The Mississippi Flyway Council's population management plan calls for a 50 percent reduction in harvest when the breeding population drops below 225,000. This years population of 212,500 was below that level, but there was very good production of young. Therefore, restrictions on Canada goose hunting this fall are designed to achieve a reduction in harvest of 25 to 50 percent."

The Minnesota goose season will begin statewide at noon on Saturday, Oct. 2, the same day as the duck opener. Shooting hours will be the same as for ducks, from noon to 4 p.m. on Oct. 2, one-half hour before sunrise to 4 p.m. daily through Oct. 22, and one-half hour before sunrise to sunset thereafter. The bag limit will be seven geese daily, including no more than two white-fronted geese. The bag limit can include no more than one Canada goose in the West Central Goose Zone, Lac qui Parle Goose Zone, and the new West and Northwest goose zones, and two Canada geese in the remainder of the state. Possession limits are double the daily bag limits.

Southeast Zone

The 70-day goose hunting season in the Southeast Goose Zone will be Saturday, Oct. 2, through Friday, Dec. 10. Dates for late December Canada goose hunting in the Twin Cities Metropolitan and the Olmsted County goose zones will be Dec. 15 to Dec. 24. No special permit is needed for either of these December hunts this year.

West Central/Lac qui Parle Zones

In the West Central and Lac qui Parle goose zones, the goose season will be 30 days, but will be split into two segments. Season dates will be Saturday, Oct. 2, through Sunday, Oct. 10, and from Saturday, Oct. 16, through Friday, Nov. 5.

In the Lac qui Parle Goose Zone, the first segment of the split season (Oct. 2-10) will close when a harvest index of 1,750 Canada geese is reached or Oct. 10, whichever comes first. The second segment will close on Nov. 5 or when a total harvest index of 4,000 Canada geese is reached, whichever occurs first.

"The split season was established in this zone to provide some later hunting opportunity, when typically more geese are in the Lac qui Parle area, and to increase the probability that hunting will continue through the teachers' convention (MEA) weekend, Oct. 21 to 24," said Bremicker. "This is a four-day weekend for many public school students and provides an opportunity for youth to hunt with their parents."

All goose hunters in the West Central and Lac qui Parle zones are required to obtain and possess a special $3 hunting permit. Permit applications are available from DNR offices, county clerks, and hunting license agents throughout the state. To avoid possible delays in their hunts, goose hunters are strongly encouraged to apply early for their permits. Some goose hunters in the West Central and Lac qui Parle goose zones will be randomly selected from all permit holders after the season to participate in a survey to determine hunter effort and harvest of geese in the zones.

West/Northwest Zones

In these new zones, the 40-day season will be Saturday, Oct. 2, through Wednesday, Nov. 10. The Canada goose bag limit is one daily. The West Zone includes that portion of Minnesota to the west of U.S.Highway 71 and Interstate Highway 94. The Northwest Zone includes the area north and west of U.S. Highway 2 from Grand Forks to Marcoux, then following state and county highways east to Gully and then north to the Manitoba border. Specific boundaries are contained in the waterfowl hunting regulations supplement.

Remainder of State

In the remainder of the state, the 50-day goose season will be Saturday, Oct. 2, through Saturday, Nov. 20. The Canada goose bag limit is two.

An experimental 10-day December Canada goose season will be held this year in the Fergus Falls/Alexandria Goose Zone from Saturday, Dec. 11, through Monday, Dec. 20. Hunters will need a special $3 permit to participate. The permit for the September Canada goose season in this zone is also valid for the December hunt. If a hunter does not have the September hunt permit, an application can be obtained from DNR offices, county auditors, or license agents.

DNR officials said waterfowl hunters should consult the "1993 Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations" booklet, which is available now from license agents and DNR offices. A more complete summary of waterfowl regulations will be printed in the "1993 Minnesota Waterfowl Hunting Regulations Supplement," which will be available in mid-September.

New Test is available for vomitoxin

Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA) now has the ability to conduct a more sophisticated test to identify whether grain harbors a fungus called DON. Also known as vomitoxin, DON is a hazardous substance naturally produced by molds under certain growing conditions.

"We have recently purchased more advanced laboratory equipment," states MDA Commissioner Elton R. Redalen, "and beginning today are able to conduct quantitative tests for DON not only at the MDA's Duluth office, but also at the Crookston office. This enables us to test grain and not only determine whether it contains DON but, more precisely, state the quantity of DON in affected samples."

Redalen added that "this is a very important consideration in determining how affected grain should be used by flour millers and brewers."

Excessive moisture conditions in northwestern Minnesota have left much of the wheat crop infected with a disease known as "scab." Some, but not all, of this wheat may contain the DON fungus.

MDA grain inspection division director Dale Heimermann expects laboratory equipment to perform the Veritox quantitative tests to also be available at the agency's Breckenridge office by the end of the week. Two additional machines are on order and will be placed at MDA offices in Morris and Minneapolis within a week to 10 days.

The MDA will also continue to conduct the Neogen Agri-Screen tests for DON at Breckenridge, Morris, Crookston and Minneapolis. Those qualitative tests detect the presence of DON as over one part per million, over two parts per million or over four parts per million.

The Veritox quantitative tests show levels of DON to the nearest tenth of parts per million.

Heimermann said the cost for the quantitative test is $25 per test. Customers need to provide samples of at least 1,000 grams but 1,500 grams is preferred. The same sample of grain can be used to conduct tests for protein and grade information. Test results are generally available on a same day or next day basis.

To arrange for a quantitative test, call the MDA's Grain Inspection office in Crookston at 281-5175 or in Duluth at 218-723-4694.

Five juveniles in auto theft/chase

Five juvenile males have been taken into custody following investigations into the theft of two vehicles and a chase.

Early Wednesday morning, September 1, Duane Gonsorowski reported that a pickup owned by Hubert's Outdoor Power had been taken from the 300 block of North Crocker. Keys had been left in the ignition of the 1983 Ford F-150, which had been parked behind a residence. The vehicle was valued at $3,000.

Law enforcement officials learned later that the pickup had been recovered by authorities in Newfolden. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $2,500. Police in Thief River Falls now believe that this incident is related to an incident involving a vehicle taken from Newfolden and recovered in Thief River Falls after a chase and accident.

At about 2:30 a.m. an officer on routine patrol observed a car stopped by the entrance to the grandstand at the fairgrounds. As the squad car approached to investigate, an individual was observed running toward the grandstand. The vehicle backed up and took off.

With police in pursuit, the vehicle crossed the fairgrounds and got onto Brooks avenue and began traveling south on the wrong side of the road. It then turned east onto Greenwood and then onto Oakland Park road. As the vehicle approached a dead end it slowed to about 10 miles per hour and two occupants jumped from the vehicle. The vehicle continued to roll forward, colliding with the Ed Sisler residence and striking a planter and porch support. A damage estimate was not available.

Officers were unable to apprehend the youths. One of the youths was said to have jumped into the river to swim across.

The vehicle was towed to the law enforcement center. Police learned then that the vehicle belonged to Alice Liden of Thief River Falls. She reported that her son had parked the car in Newfolden where it was apparently taken.

During the investigation, five juvenile males were taken into custody. A variety of charges against them ranging from theft to fleeing a police officer are pending in Pennington and Marshall counties. In Marshall county the juveniles broke into Northwest Concrete on Highway 59 north on August 31. They took some petty cash and gained entry to the same building by breaking a window. On September 1, they allegedly broke into the building again. This time nothing was taken but there was more vandalism. The youths also allegedly attempted to gain entry to the Express Mart in Newfolden where they took the Liden vehicle.

Also during the investigation, Police learned that the youths did gain entry to the concession stand at the fairgrounds in Thief River Falls and a case of pop was taken and $50 damage caused to the stand.

It has also been learned that at least one of the five youths was involved in the theft of a van and stereo equipment from Zion Lutheran church recently.

Some, if not all of the juveniles, had escaped from a juvenile training center in Bemidji. Some were residents of Thief River Falls and at least one was from Crookston. State laws prohibit the disclosure of the names of juveniles involved in crimes.

here before. They have played the Minnesota State Fair twice, the rodeo at Buffalo, and probably another one or two that they can't recall.

They pride themselves on their costumes and the condition of their equipment. The white tack is hard to keep clean but they work hard at it—especially when muddy arenas and overnight moves put a premium on time.

"I make almost all of the costumes," Lynda said, "with a lot of help from my Mom. I design what I want and she cuts a pattern out of newspaper and I do a lot of the sewing. We probably carry 150 to 200 costumes with us, and they do require a lot of repair—especially sequins and trim. I'm afraid we treat most of them a little rough."

The Murrays came to Thief River Falls from Sanford, AZ, and will travel from here to Clovis, CA. They do have the luxury of a few days travel time each way and intend to use it for a little more leisurely travel.

When it comes to training, however, Harold says he still has some to do with Lynda.

"She probably babies the horses a little more than I do," he said. "What I have to do is get her to kiss 'em on the black part of the face. It's just too hard to get that lipstick off the white!"

Camp for Asthma sufferers September 18

Northwest Medical Center in conjunction with its respiratory care department, Falls Clinic, the Roseau Clinic and the American Lung Association will present a fun-filled, educational one-day camp called Camp Weezbegone on September 18.

Children ages 6-14 who have been diagnosed with asthma are eligible to participate in the camp and are encouraged to do so.

A healthy child's best defense when diagnosed with asthma is education. Asthma can be controlled. It can be treated and reversed and when a child is thoroughly informed about asthma, he or she is capable of leading a normal and healthy life. The purpose of the camp is to initiate an education campaign.

Amidst crafts, food, fun, games and free t-shirts, complements of Woodland Container Corp. of Roseau, these children will learn how to manage their breathing problems. They will learn about their medication and how to properly use them. They will gain valuable knowledge enabling them to live their life to its fullest potential.

This one-day camping event is an exciting new pilot program and the first of what will become an annual tradition. This year, the camp will be held at Camp Moe, which is located southwest of Thief River Falls. Children ages 6 to 8 are invited to attend the camp from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The program for children ages 9 to 14 will be from 4 to 9 p.m. Both groups will be served a meal prepared camping style. A marshmallow roast will be held at night.

The camp will be supervised by local respiratory therapists, a registered nurse and an on-call physician. The registration fee is $10.

Parents are asked to allow one hour for an informative question and answer session with camp therapists.

Plans for next year's Camp Weezbegone are already being made. The second annual event will be held at Lake of the Woods Bible Camp on Rainy River. This camp will involve a two to three day overnight camping event.

For more information, please call Deb Breuer at the Respiratory Care department of Northwest Medical Center, 681-4240, ext. 486. Space is limited, so register now for Camp Weezbegone.

Prevention Key to dealing with harvest illnesses

On top of the economic concerns growers are facing with the harvest of this year's wheat crop, they are also concerned about health risks associated with handling scab and vomitoxin-infected grain.

"We've received several calls from growers who have experienced health problems during harvest," says Kris Versdahl, assistant director of the Minnesota Wheat Research & Promotion Council. "They are concerned that the present of vomitoxin in grain may be the cause, and they want to know how to protect themselves."

But according to experts in agriculture health and safety, the symptoms growers are experiencing are more likely to be caused by the presence of mold in the grain than anything else.

"Grain fields this year are moldy, moldy, moldy," says Marcia McMullen, plant pathologist with the North Dakota State University extension service, "and not just from scab spores. Mold spores will cause allergic reactions and breathing problems if inhaled."

John Shutske, University of Minnesota farm safety specialist, says that while there are health concerns associated with eating vomitoxin-infected wheat, respiratory exposure is not a concern over and above typical concerns with mold. "Anytime you breathe in (the spores from) dusty and moldy grain, you are going to have problems," he said. "Two of the more typical problems seen are farmer's lung disease and organic dust toxic syndrome."

According to the National Farm Medicine Center at Marshfield, WI, farmer's lung disease is a form of hypersensitivity pneumonitis. It is characterized by the presence of two or more of the following symptoms: Chills, fever, cough, chest congestion and/or shortness of breath. Growers may also experience fatigue and weight loss.

Farmer's lung is an immune response to inhalation of grain mold and usually lasts between one and seven days. Treatment is removal of exposure to molds and dusts,

Wheat marketing in light of scab

Consider selling higher protein, scab-free wheat off the combine if call options or minimum price contracts are used. Otherwise, consider storing until a frost or frost scare generates a price jump or until the October-November period at the latest, says George Flaskerud, NDSU extension grains marketing specialist.

Cash bids were very strong in August for milling quality wheat with higher protein levels. The grain trade perceives that this wheat may be in short supply and is aggressively bidding for it.

History suggests that in this situation, prices usually move higher than needed to ration supply so eventually they fall, sometimes sharply, Flaskerud said.

Protein premiums historically reach a peak during the September-November period, which is often the highest peak for the marketing year.

Minimum price contracts based on March call options or the purchase of these options from a broker will permit the capture of any higher futures prices that may materialize by the middle of February, Flaskerud adds. Prices could move higher if there is an early frost in the corn belt. The Canadian wheat crop may also be vulnerable to frost.

Consider storing lower protein scab-free wheat for a weather price rally, but for no more than several months. The December-January period was the best time for selling low protein wheat in many locations during the last marketing year, according to Flaskerud.

POW-MIA Day September 17 in Moorhead

Department of Veterans Affairs medical and regional office center of Fargo, ND, will observe a National Prisoner of War—Missing in Action Recognition Day Friday, September 17. Official program will begin at 1 p.m. at the national Guard armory, 1002 15th Avenue North, in Moorhead.

Guest speaker will be Ben Steele who was in the Bataan Death March and spent three and one-half years in Japanese prison camps where he taught himself how to draw.

All but two of the more than 70 drawings he did while a prisoner were lost, but he was able to recreate them from memory while recuperating in military hospitals after the war. The drawings will be on display before and after the official ceremonies and on Saturday and Sunday, September 18 and 19, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Former prisoners of war, families of servicemen missing in action, military veterans and other members of the public are encouraged to attend the recognition service.

BIBLE STUDY

Who are the stumbling blocks?

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

The Bible tells us that all stumbling blocks will be destroyed in the lake of fire (Matt. 13:41-42). Who are the stumbling blocks?

You may be shocked to learn that stumbling blocks are true disciples of Jesus Christ who cause others to stumble in some way, preventing or destroying their chances of knowing the truth. The stumbling blocks are still practicing sin and living lawless lives (1 John 3:4). They are practicing worldliness by swearing, smoking, getting drunk or not being a godly example to others (Gal. 5:19-21; Mark 7:21-23; 1 Cor. 6:9-10; Eph. 5:5-6; Col. 3:8; Rev. 21:8).

Jesus said anyone who causes another person God is calling into the truth to stumble is in big trouble (Matt. 18:6-7). Jesus then said in parable form that if any member of the body of believers causes another to stumble, it would be better to cut off the member that offends, than to receive the punishment that comes from making a potential disciple of Jesus Christ stumble (Matt. 18:8-9).

Jesus Christ called the Apostle Peter "Satan" because Peter was setting his mind on man's interests and not God's. Because of this, Peter was momentarily a stumbling block to Christ (Matt. 16:23). Anyone who does not put God first in every area of his life is a potential stumbling block!

What causes people to stumble and who are the stumbling blocks? Just read these Scriptures to remove all doubt from your mind: Jude 15-16; 2 Peter 2:2-6, 10, 12-15, 17-19; James 1:7-8; and 2 Timothy 3:1-5.

When you find the truth, do not speak against it in any way. Do not discourage or hinder anyone from entering the kingdom within, as the religious leaders of Christ's day did (Matt. 23:13; Luke 11:52; 17:21). Help others to overcome by encouraging them to serve others for Christ (Heb. 10:24; Col. 3:17). Be a good example to them for Christ (Titus 2:7). God loves those who practice righteousness for Him (1 John 3:7, 10).

Jesus Christ is able to keep you from stumbling if you put Him first in your daily life and keep Him first (Jude 24). Begin today by studying His word, which allows Him to teach you, and then put what you learn into practice.

Last of all, do not try to hinder a man of God from doing God's work. Instead, support him by not speaking evil about him, and help him in whatever way you can (Matt. 10:40-42; 24:45-47). In doing so, you will be helping Jesus Christ make doers of His word.

Wheat Growers give information on '93 wheat crop

Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers office in Red Lake Falls offers the following points of information for growers dealing with low yields and low quality wheat as a result of scab disease in the 1993 crop:

- If scabby wheat is harvested, the best option may be to bin the grain and wait for discounts to subside and marketing opportunities to improve.
- U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that wheat of sample grade can be placed in a special "recourse" loan program. that wheat will be subject to discounts for grade or test weight. Wheat meeting all other grades is eligible for the normal "non-recourse" loan program.
- Keep detailed records of quality, per cent scab, presence (including parts per million) or absence of vomitoxin for use in claiming quality adjustments through the disaster and multi-peril crop insurance programs.
- If test weight is less than 53 pounds for spring wheat, total damaged kernels exceed 10 per cent, or if vomitoxin levels trigger discounts, then growers with multi-peril crop insurance (MPCI) are eligible for a loss adjustment.

Under the MPCI policy, the value of a producer's wheat (after quality discounts) will be divided by the local market price for U.S. No. 2 wheat. The result will be the factor used to calculate the bushels of production eligible for loss adjustment.

EXAMPLE: If the local price for U.S. No. 2 wheat was $3.20 and the value of your crop after discounts was $2, then you would qualify for a 37.5 per cent loss adjustment on that field.

- USDA will soon announced that quality losses on 1993 wheat will be covered under the disaster program. The nature and magnitude of those quality adjustments has not been announced. The MAWG has urged USDA to take monetary and test weight discounts into consideration, and not just grade determining factors.
- If your insurance adjustments are low and you do not think wheat prices will improve, your best option may have been to switch to the 0/92 program (the deadline was August 31). Those who switched to 0/92 should still be eligible for crop insurance payments, but should check with their insurance agent to be sure. Contact the county ASCS director for estimates on 0/92 payments based on the individual farm.
- If you missed the deadline for 0/92 and plan to destroy the crop anyway, be sure to contact the ASCS office first.
- Keep detailed records of all harvested production, as well as any crops destroyed or salvaged, for use in filing for disaster assistance.

Organic dust toxic syndrome is characterized by the presence of a cough, fever, chills, body aches and pain, shortness of breath and fatigue. Again, it is caused by inhaling high levels of organic dust from moldy grain, and usually lasts between one and seven days. Treatment consists of the use of analgesics, drinking lots of fluids, and bed rest.

In the case of both illnesses, prevention is the key. That includes minimizing exposure to dust and using respirators or dust masks approved by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH).

Scabby wheat should probably be stored for awhile in light of high discounts at harvest time. According to the NDSU extension service, the scabby wheat should first be tested for vomitoxin. Based on this test, and what the elevator will pay for the grain at this point, decide whether to sell to the elevator, to have it cleaned before selling it to the elevator, to feed it to your own livestock, or to sell it to a feedlot or another farmer who can use it for feed.

If the scabby wheat is high in protein, getting it into marketable condition as soon as possible would be advisable. Then the strategy for selling high protein scab-free wheat can be followed. Time may be less critical for the lower protein wheat.

Dave Torgerson, executive director of the Minnesota Wheat Council, notes that the Food and Drug Administration may revise its guidelines on vomitoxin levels sometime in September. The marketability of grain infected by scab and vomitoxin may improve if guidelines are revised upward.

Longer-term wheat storage into 1994 does not appear profitable, according to Flaskerud. Futures market prices currently do not support long-term storage, nor does the current supply and demand outlook.

"Thank you for all the benefits I'm now enjoying following my refractive surgery. Being able to see without the hassle of wearing contacts or glasses has made swimming and tennis easier. BIBLE STUDY

Who are the stumbling blocks?

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

The Bible tells us that all stumbling blocks will be destroyed in the lake of fire (Matt. 13:41-42). Who are the stumbling blocks?

You may be shocked to learn that stumbling blocks are true disciples of Jesus Christ who cause others to stumble in some way, preventing or destroying their chances of knowing the truth. The stumbling blocks are still practicing sin and living lawless lives (1 John 3:4). They are practicing worldliness by swearing, smoking, getting drunk or not being a godly example to others (Gal. 5:19-21; Mark 7:21-23; 1 Cor. 6:9-10; Eph. 5:5-6; Col. 3:8; Rev. 21:8).

Jesus said anyone who causes another person God is calling into the truth to stumble is in big trouble (Matt. 18:6-7). Jesus then said in parable form that if any member of the body of believers causes another to stumble, it would be better to cut off the member that offends, than to receive the punishment that comes from making a potential disciple of Jesus Christ stumble (Matt. 18:8-9).

Jesus Christ called the Apostle Peter "Satan" because Peter was setting his mind on man's interests and not God's. Because of this, Peter was momentarily a stumbling block to Christ (Matt. 16:23). Anyone who does not put God first in every area of his life is a potential stumbling block!

What causes people to stumble and who are the stumbling blocks? Just read these Scriptures to remove all doubt from your mind: Jude 15-16; 2 Peter 2:2-6, 10, 12-15, 17-19; James 1:7-8; and 2 Timothy 3:1-5.

When you find the truth, do not speak against it in any way. Do not discourage or hinder anyone from entering the kingdom within, as the religious leaders of Christ's day did (Matt. 23:13; Luke 11:52; 17:21). Help others to overcome by encouraging them to serve others for Christ (Heb. 10:24; Col. 3:17). Be a good example to them for Christ (Titus 2:7). God loves those who practice righteousness for Him (1 John 3:7, 10).

Jesus Christ is able to keep you from stumbling if you put Him first in your daily life and keep Him first (Jude 24). Begin today by studying His word, which allows Him to teach you, and then put what you learn into practice.

Last of all, do not try to hinder a man of God from doing God's work. Instead, support him by not speaking evil about him, and help him in whatever way you can (Matt. 10:40-42; 24:45-47). In doing so, you will be helping Jesus Christ make doers of His word.

Wheat Growers give information on '93 wheat crop

Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers office in Red Lake Falls offers the following points of information for growers dealing with low yields and low quality wheat as a result of scab disease in the 1993 crop:

- If scabby wheat is harvested, the best option may be to bin the grain and wait for discounts to subside and marketing opportunities to improve.
- U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that wheat of sample grade can be placed in a special "recourse" loan program, that wheat will be subject to discounts for grade or test weight. Wheat meeting all other grades is eligible for the normal "non-recourse" loan program.
- Keep detailed records of quality, per cent scab, presence (including parts per million) or absence of vomitoxin for use in claiming quality adjustments through the disaster and multi-peril crop insurance programs.
- If test weight is less than 53 pounds for spring wheat, total damaged kernels exceed 10 per cent, or if vomitoxin levels trigger discounts, then growers with multi-peril crop insurance (MPCI) are eligible for a loss adjustment.

Under the MPCI policy, the value of a producer's wheat (after quality discounts) will be divided by the local market price for U.S. No. 2 wheat. The result will be the factor used to calculate the bushels of production eligible for loss adjustment.

EXAMPLE: If the local price for U.S. No. 2 wheat was $3.20 and the value of your crop after discounts was $2, then you would qualify for a 37.5 per cent loss adjustment on that field.

- USDA will soon announced that quality losses on 1993 wheat will be covered under the disaster program. The nature and magnitude of those quality adjustments has not been announced. The MAWG has urged USDA to take monetary and test weight discounts into consideration, and not just grade determining factors.
- If your insurance adjustments are low and you do not think wheat prices will improve, your best option may have been to switch to the 0/92 program (the deadline was August 31). Those who switched to 0/92 should still be eligible for crop insurance payments, but should check with their insurance agent to be sure. Contact the county ASCS director for estimates on 0/92 payments based on the individual farm.
- If you missed the deadline for 0/92 and plan to destroy the crop anyway, be sure to contact the ASCS office first.
- Keep detailed records of all harvested production, as well as any crops destroyed or salvaged, for use in filing for disaster assistance.

Prevention is key to dealing with illness

along with the use of corticosteroids.

Organic dust toxic syndrome is characterized by the presence of a cough, fever, chills, body aches and pain, shortness of breath and fatigue. Again, it is caused by inhaling high levels of organic dust from moldy grain, and usually lasts between one and seven days. Treatment consists of the use of analgesics, drinking lots of fluids, and bed rest.

In the case of both illnesses, prevention is the key. That includes minimizing exposure to dust and using respirators or dust masks approved by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH).

For more information on illnesses caused by exposure to molds and dusts, growers can call the National Farm Medicine Center at 1-800-662-6900.

Scabby wheat should probably be stored for awhile in light of high discounts at harvest time. According to the NDSU extension service, the scabby wheat should first be tested for vomitoxin. Based on this test, and what the elevator will pay for the grain at this point, decide whether to sell to the elevator, to have it cleaned before selling it to the elevator, to feed it to your own livestock, or to sell it to a feedlot or another farmer who can use it for feed.

If the scabby wheat is high in protein, getting it into marketable condition as soon as possible would be advisable. Then the strategy for selling high protein scab-free wheat can be followed. Time may be less critical for the lower protein wheat.

Dave Torgerson, executive director of the Minnesota Wheat Council, notes that the Food and Drug Administration may revise its guidelines on vomitoxin levels sometime in September. The marketability of grain infected by scab and vomitoxin may improve if guidelines are revised upward.

Longer-term wheat storage into 1994 does not appear profitable, according to Flaskerud. Futures market prices currently do not support long-term storage, nor does the current supply and demand outlook.

Dear Dr. Lindstrom,
"Thank you for all the benefits I'm now enjoying following my refractive surgery. Being able to see without the hassle of wearing contacts or glasses has made swimming and tennis easier. However, the most important part of this surgery was not endangering my eyes after my eyes could no longer tolerate contacts. Thank you!"

The Times' Editorial Opinion

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. The Environment: Reaching A Balance Point

"In their zeal to right old wrongs as they see them, our leaders and citizens are losing a sense of balance about the environment and, when that happens, they also lose their awareness of what it takes to get people to change," writes the editor of "Editor & Publisher" in a recent editorial.

"The people and business leaders in this country almost always respond when they understand what the problem is, and then they will find the resources to solve it. What is occurring is frustrating and can be damaging to the cause of improving the earth's environment."

The editor points out some examples of how environmental problems we face are made harder to solve because somewhere we lost the direct way of doing things. "We are out of balance because it is getting harder and harder to deal directly with environmental problems," he writes, then cites the following examples:

- "I called the Environmental Protection Agency in Washington, D.C., to make sure that I understood the current standards for truck emissions. After five phone calls, I found the man who really knew what they were. He was in an office in North Carolina and worked flex time, so he would not be in the office until 10 a.m. the next day. When I reached EPA's top expert on truck emissions, he said the latest standards had just come off the press. When I got them, I honestly did not know what I was looking at.
- "The insurance companies are playing important roles in environmental affairs. Workmen's compensation, underwriter companies and medical and hospitalization insurance people are all involved. I did not know, for example, that carpel tunnel syndrome is an illness, not an accident, but you can be sure that the insurance companies know it, and hammering out that definition probably kept the legal staffs busy for months.
- "Consultants are on every corner in Green Town, U.S.A. They are happy to help you understand the regulations. They can head off unpleasantness, such as not removing an old oil tank before you build on a new plant site. They can tell you what the local level of acceptable silver is in your discharge water and what you have to do with it. (I know the mayor of Racine, WI, pretty well; and I doubt very much that he knows the acceptable level of silver discharge in town.)"

The E&P editor points out that when we had a chance to tip the scales in favor of direct action to clean up our nation, we blew it. We let the regulators move in and tell us how to do it. And how they spelled it out—page after page after page.

"I did not realize that shop towel standards were in a state of flux until I got last-minute changes on the copy. What would the Founding Fathers think about a task force on shop towels?

"In Suffolk county, they do not argue over the idea of mandating recycled-newsprint minimums; they only argue about how high the percentage of required recycled paper should be, and they do this without regard for the recycled paper supply situation or related costs.

"Of course, many regulations just codify common sense," he notes. "If you have a dangerous liquid in a big barrel, it is still dangerous when you put it in a smaller container. So label the smaller container.

"However, the regulators could still have a field day if some person were to swallow some press cleaner with his lunch one day. If it were improper disposal of a hazardous waste, it would be an EPA matter. If it were a dangerous work practice, it would be an OSHA matter. It would be up to somebody else, concerned with people and not with jurisdiction, to get the stomach pump."

The writer encourages the direct action approach and letting people know what that direct action can be. It's the local people whose action will always count more than any regulator when it comes to getting the environmental clean-up or protection job done.

Taking A Look At Crime And Punishment

As the rate of violent crime continues to soar in the United States, efforts intensify to find means to bring it under control. More and more Americans are demanding tougher crackdowns on criminals and alternatives to prison are being sought but nothing presently seems to be working very well at correcting the problem.

At a recent conference on criminal justice in Tampa, FL, some 700 judges, legislators and corrections officials from around the country had hoped to hear that state's governor, Lawton Chiles, explain some of his innovative ideas for alternatives to prison. But the governor couldn't attend. Ironically, he was calling an emergency session of the legislature to raise taxes for another 21,000 cells for Florida's overcrowded prison system.

In the past 22 years the rate of imprisonment has gone up over 400 per cent, but the crime rate also continues to increase.

According to the "New York Times," the average sentence handed down in Texas courts in the past decade has increased from 6.5 to 9.8 years under popular "get tough" laws. In practice, however, the actual time served has dropped from an average of 2.4 to 1.7 years as early releases were mandated by federal court monitors.

There are many who contend that crime will not be controlled until social causes are addressed and corrected. There may be truth in that, but there has always been criminal behavior. Some people can have all the training and education and opportunity they could ever need and still become criminals. People who commit violent acts are not nice people.

Of course, attempts to find means to reduce crime and correct criminals must continue. Building more and more prisons and spending more and more money to staff them can't go on forever. But Philip Clarke of America's Future is right when he says, "Clearly, in today's violent climate, there is but one practical course of action. While pursuing long-range solutions, we must as needed, hire more police and build more jails. For in order to build a better society, we must first have law and order."

The Times' Editorial Opinion

The Times
Thief River Falls, Minnesota

John P. Mattson, publisher
Marvin Lundin, editor
David Hill, associate editor

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Opinions expressed by the editor are his own and not necessarily those of other staff members. Opinions expressed in items from other publications may be contradictory to the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

The Environment: Reaching A Balance Point

"In their zeal to right old wrongs as they see them, our leaders and citizens are losing a sense of balance about the environment and, when that happens, they also lose their awareness of what it takes to get people to change," writes the editor of "Editor & Publisher" in a recent editorial.

"The people and business leaders in this country almost always respond when they understand what the problem is, and then they will find the resources to solve it. What is occurring is frustrating and can be damaging to the cause of improving the earth's environment."

The editor points out some examples of how environmental problems we face are made harder to solve because somewhere we lost the direct way of doing things. "We are out of balance because it is getting harder and harder to deal directly with environmental problems," he writes, then cites the following examples:

- "I called the Environmental Protection Agency in Washington, D.C., to make sure that I understood the current standards for truck emissions. After five phone calls, I found the man who really knew what they were. He was in an office in North Carolina and worked flex time, so he would not be in the office until 10 a.m. the next day. When I reached EPA's top expert on truck emissions, he said the latest standards had just come off the press. When I got them, I honestly did not know what I was looking at.
- "The insurance companies are playing important roles in environmental affairs. Workmen's compensation, underwriter companies and medical and hospitalization insurance people are all involved. I did not know, for example, that carpel tunnel syndrome is an illness, not an accident, but you can be sure that the insurance companies know it, and hammering out that definition probably kept the legal staffs busy for months.
- "Consultants are on every corner in Green Town, U.S.A. They are happy to help you understand the regulations. They can head off unpleasantness, such as not removing an old oil tank before you build on a new plant site. They can tell you what the local level of acceptable silver is in your discharge water and what you have to do with it. (I know the mayor of Racine, WI, pretty well; and I doubt very much that he knows the acceptable level of silver discharge in town.)"

The E&P editor points out that when we had a chance to tip the scales in favor of direct action to clean up our nation, we blew it. We let the regulators move in and tell us how to do it. And how they spelled it out—page after page after page.

"I did not realize that shop towel standards were in a state of flux until I got last-minute changes on the copy. What would the Founding Fathers think about a task force on shop towels?

"In Suffolk county, they do not argue over the idea of mandating recycled newsprint minimums; they only argue about how high the percentage of required recycled paper should be, and they do this without regard for the recycled paper supply situation or related costs.

"Of course, many regulations just codify common sense," he notes. "If you have a dangerous liquid in a big barrel, it is still dangerous when you put it in a smaller container. So label the smaller container.

"However, the regulators could still have a field day if some person were to swallow some press cleaner with his lunch one day. If it were improper disposal of a hazardous waste, it would be an EPA matter. If it were a dangerous work practice, it would be an OSHA matter. It would be up to somebody else, concerned with people and not with jurisdiction, to get the stomach pump."

The writer encourages the direct action approach and letting people know what that direct action can be. It's the local people whose action will always count more than any regulator when it comes to getting the environmental clean-up or protection job done.

Taking A Look At Crime And Punishment

As the rate of violent crime continues to soar in the United States, efforts intensify to find means to bring it under control. More and more Americans are demanding tougher crackdowns on criminals and alternatives to prison are being sought but nothing presently seems to be working very well at correcting the problem.

At a recent conference on criminal justice in Tampa, FL, some 700 judges, legislators and corrections officials from around the country had hoped to hear that state's governor, Lawton Chiles, explain some of his innovative ideas for alternatives to prison. But the governor couldn't attend. Ironically, he was calling an emergency session of the legislature to raise taxes for another 21,000 cells for Florida's overcrowded prison system.

In the past 22 years the rate of imprisonment has gone up over 400 per cent, but the crime rate also continues to increase.

According to the "New York Times," the average sentence handed down in Texas courts in the past decade has increased from 6.5 to 9.8 years under popular "get tough" laws. In practice, however, the actual time served has dropped from an average of 2.4 to 1.7 years as early releases were mandated by federal court monitors.

There are many who contend that crime will not be controlled until social causes are addressed and corrected. There may be truth in that, but there has always been criminal behavior. Some people can have all the training and education and opportunity they could ever need and still become criminals. People who commit violent acts are not nice people.

Of course, attempts to find means to reduce crime and correct criminals must continue. Building more and more prisons and spending more and more money to staff them can't go on forever. But Philip Clarke of America's Future is right when he says, "Clearly, in today's violent climate, there is but one practical course of action. While pursuing long-range solutions, we must as needed, hire more police and build more jails. For in order to build a better society, we must first have law and order."

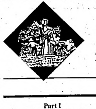
PRAIRIE RAMBLING



Gretchen Beito

Part I

My earliest knowledge of floods of the Red River came from the writings of Arne Beito, my husband's grandfather. In his memoirs he wrote that in the spring of 1883 he and Anna, his wife, had to tie their horses and cattle to the tops of haystacks to save them from floodwaters.

They, like many others, moved in with neighbors who were on higher ground. "So this was America," he wrote. "In flood the Red River Valley looked like a sea for as far as the eye could reach."

He noted that before he came to America, he had not imagined that the Valley was so flat. When he had arrived at his sister's house in Ada in 1881, "I asked people where the Red River Valley was and they told me it was right here! You see, I had Norway in mind, and the beautiful valley we had left behind."

Arne and Anna had acquired 160 acres close to the Wild Rice River in 1881. However, the flood just two years later discouraged them so much that they sold the land and moved that fall to a new claim in Thirteen Towns. Arne wrote that although the land near McIntosh was very good, "best of all it was on dry ground."

They farmed it for 29 years before they retired and moved to McIntosh.

The 1883 flood that forced Arnie and Anne to move was the eighth worst flood in the last hundred years. The worst recorded Red River flood was in 1896; the second worst-recorded flood was in 1979. Many people here remember the 1979 flood because Lincoln High School students were excused from school to go over to East Grand Forks to help sandbag in order to save the city.

The ten worst floods, all of which occurred in the spring, point up the need for prevention tactics. Because we live on the bottom of the ancient glacial Lake Agassiz, flood water can spread quickly over a large area. Another problem is that our rivers flow north so the melting snow and ice are blocked by ice.

With the news of unexpected flooding of homes in the Mississippi and Missouri River Valleys, it is reassuring to know that flood prevention is underway for the Red Lake River Watershed. The recently constructed structures for impoundment at Elm Lake and on the Moose River ease the threat of flooding. More projects are planned. Dams on Red Lake and on the Red Lake River in Thief River Falls help control the flow of water.

TRF City Clerk notifies council of intent to retire

At a Thief River Falls city council meeting Tuesday evening, City Clerk-Treasurer Jerry Wigness notified the council of his intent to retire by January 30, 1994.

Wigness has been employed by the city for nearly 22 years and he intends to take advantage of early retirement legislation. His letter to the council informs them that he is eligible to retire under the Rule of 90 and it is his intent to leave his position no later than January 30, 1994.

"These past 21 years and 8 months," he states, "have been most challenging and I want to thank you, as well as all former elected officials for the support you have given me over the years. This was not an easy decision for me to make, but the timing appears to be right, and it is important to me to go out under what I believe to be good circumstances.

"I have had the pleasure and good fortune of working with many excellent and productive City staff as well as several concerned and dedicated elected officials for which I am very grateful.

"My resignation is not intended to disrupt the re-organization plans that have been approved by the Council. I think that is long overdue and I strongly encourage you to proceed with re-structuring. My plans are to continue my part-time work as Secretary-treasurer for the Northern Municipal Power Agency.

"Overall, I have enjoyed my work with the City and if I can be of assistance in any way, please feel free to contact me."

Jerry Wigness

Tuesday night, the council also reviewed the budget for 1994, and established hearing dates for assessments on the Highway 32 project and 1993 sidewalk and utility improvement project. The assessment hearing for the Highway 32 project, which was completed last year, will be held 7:30 p.m. October 5 at the Heritage Community Center. The assessment hearing for the 1993 sidewalk and utility improvement project will be held 7 p.m. October 12 at the Heritage Community Center.

Committees and departments will be struggling in the weeks to come to come to grips with a projected budget deficit of over $251,000. The issue of the deficit takes on more importance in the next week as the council is required by law to certify the levy. By law, the levy must be certified by September 15. The council seems

Motivational speaker at Lincoln sessions

Bill Sanders of Kalamazoo, MI, will be in Thief River Falls Thursday, September 16, to speak to students and the interested public about a number of topics of concern to young people today.

The public session at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium is intended for parents of students and all other persons over 12 years of age. There is no admission charge.

Attendance at the evening session is required of everyone who participates in any co-curricular activity or serves in student government at Lincoln, according to Bill Stock of the Lincoln guidance and counseling staff. For those unable to attend due to illness or scheduling conflicts, the presentation will be videotaped and make-up sessions held the following week.

In addition to the evening session, Sanders will address an all-school assembly Thursday at 9:30 a.m. in the school auditorium, centering on how to "Show the World Your Greatness."

From 11 a.m. to 3 p.m he will meet in a leadership workshop with 100 student leaders selected from Lincoln classes at the Elks club rooms. The workshop is co-sponsored by Lincoln high school and Elks Lodge 1308.

Sanders has been speaking to students, parents and teachers since 1978 and made more than 400 presentations to more than 150,000 students, parents and teachers annually for the past seven years. He has authored eight books including "Tough Turf" and "Almost Everything Teens Want Parents to Know." He also leaves his address and answers every letter he receives from students.

Bill Sanders will speak Thursday to sessions of Lincoln students and that evening to parents in the LHS auditorium.

At the student assemblies Sanders discusses how to build a healthy self-image, how to resist negative peer pressure, how to be a true friend, creative ways to say "no" to alcohol, drugs and premarital sex, what makes a person "cool," the fallacy of "safe sex" and that alcohol is still against the law.

At the parent/teen community session he will share while teens need parents to love each other, building communication within the family, total unconditional acceptance and love, how to be good examples, having the courage to say "no," building a family on the right foundation, how to change your community, bringing hope to a discouraged world and real answers to tough questions.

Sanders is a graduate of Western Michigan University with a BS degree in business management and has successfully been in business for himself since he was 17 years old. His programs are fast-moving, laughter-filled and designed to make people in the community think and act differently.

Stacks of goodies were piled on the vendor booth for Cub Scout Pack 59 of Thief River Falls during Everybody's Market in Thief River Falls Saturday. There were over 68 vendors participating in the annual Fall event.

New members join Northland faculty

Gajendranathan Ramanathan from Sri Lanka and Solomon Osayande from Nigeria were both educated in the United States

Gajen Ramanathan

For 10 years he had been waiting to get his "green card," the work permit accorded by the U.S. government to resident aliens. And once he attained that status, he accepted a teaching position at Northland Community College in Thief River Falls.

Gajendranathan Ramanathan is a native of Sri Lanka, has been a resident of the United States since 1982, and is one of eight members of his family—including two brothers and several cousins—to earn a total of 11 degrees from the University of Toledo in Toledo, OH.

If students want to use his full name they are welcome to try, but he is willing to accept use of the shortened first name Gajen, which is pronounced with the accent on the second syllable......gaJANE.

Accounting and business will be his field of instruction at Northland and he will also be advisor to the Northland Business Club for students in the business department.

Gajen came to the United States with the help of his older brother who was a hematologist and oncologist. He has since left active practice in those fields and now works for a major insurance

Solomon Osayande

Human services will be the instructional field at Northland Community College for Solomon Osayande, originally from Benin—a city of more than one million inhabitants—in the African country of Nigeria.

Solomon came to the United States in 1976 and has never had the opportunity to return to visit his home country. He attended Brigham Young University (BYU) in Provo, UT, graduating in 1982 with degrees in biology (botany) and psychology. Prior to coming to the United States he played soccer for a university team in Nigeria. He said he has come to greatly enjoy American football but would be interested in working with a youth soccer program in this area.

After his graduation from Brigham Young, he took a position as director of rehabilitation for Goodwill Industries of Lubbock, TX, and served in that capacity for five years. He then served for two years as executive director of the Dine Center for Human Development, a university-affiliated, federal government program at Navajo Community College on the Navajo reservation at Tsaile, AZ. Goal of that program was to provide services to native Americans on Navajo

ACTIVITIES

Homemade "Silly Putty"

School has started, the weather is beginning to get a little colder, and to many home that means that children will begin spending more time indoors. Silly putty is a fun, inexpensive concoction to play with for children and adults. You will need glue and liquid starch. The glue should be the type that is used for many children's art projects. It must be liquid. The liquid starch comes in a large bottle and is liquid not spray. Mix two cups of glue to one cup of liquid starch. Sometimes you may have to add a tiny bit more starch or glue depending on the humidity.

The silly putty will keep for many days if it is stored in an airtight container. When playing with it, be sure not to let it get on the floor or on other fabric. It does stick and is hard to wash out. You can make the silly putty different colors by simply adding food coloring.

Children and Stress

The end of summer signals the beginning of fall and new activities. Older children pack up their backpacks and head for school. Younger children may see changes in their day care situation or activities. While most of these changes will be positive in nature, they can also be stressful for parents and children.

Changes can be stressful for children and children under stress are more likely to misbehave. Here are some tips for helping children to cope more effectively with change.

➥ Talk with your child about what changes are going to take place. Try to anticipate all that will or could take place. Who will he/she see there, what will they do, etc.

➥ Talk about the feelings your child may experience, for example, he/she may miss children who no longer attend the same day care. He/she may be scared and nervous about going to a new activity (Sunday school, ECFE, day care).

➥ Even with all this preparation, remember your child may still misbehave or act out for several days. This is a normal reaction to stress for young children. This does not mean however that you allow the misbehavior "because your child is experiencing stress." But as a parent, your attitude toward the misbehavior should be different when you know it is stress related. Be supportive of your child during this adjustment period.

ACTIVITIES

Homemade "Silly Putty"

School has started, the weather is beginning to get a little colder, and to many home that means that children will begin spending more time indoors. Silly putty is a fun, inexpensive concoction to play with for children and adults. You will need glue and liquid starch. The glue should be the type that is used for many children's art projects. It must be liquid. The liquid starch comes in a large bottle and is liquid not spray. Mix two cups of glue to one cup of liquid starch. Sometimes you may have to add a tiny bit more starch or glue depending on the humidity.

The silly putty will keep for many days if it is stored in an airtight container. When playing with it, be sure not to let it get on the floor or on other fabric. It does stick and is hard to wash out. You can make the silly putty different colors by simply adding food coloring.

Children and Stress

The end of summer signals the beginning of fall and new activities. Older children pack up their backpacks and head for school. Younger children may see changes in their day care situation or activities. While most of these changes will be positive in nature, they can also be stressful for parents and children.

Changes can be stressful for children and children under stress are more likely to misbehave. Here are some tips for helping children to cope more effectively with change.

➥ Talk with your child about what changes are going to take place. Try to anticipate all that will or could take place. Who will he/she see there, what will they do, etc.

➥ Talk about the feelings your child may experience, for example, he/she may miss children who no longer attend the same day care. He/she may be scared and nervous about going to a new activity (Sunday school, ECFE, day care).

➥ Even with all this preparation, remember your child may still misbehave or act out for several days. This is a normal reaction to stress for young children. This does not mean however that you allow the misbehavior "because your child is experiencing stress." But as a parent, your attitude toward the misbehavior should be different when you know it is stress related. Be supportive of your child during this adjustment period.

Dear Readers,

Though pain can bring families together, statistics suggest that grief can also intensify all other emotions. Just when support is so important, it can also be hard to give. Understand that each person will grieve differently. Take time to talk to each other, don't withdraw. Reach outside for support, help is often a phone call away.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

Larry Belmont

Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation district at Grygla is working on submitting a grant request for a pilot project of planting hazelnuts in windbreaks in the district.

The district is looking at a hybrid of the European filbert with the native Minnesota hazel which is resistant to eastern filbert blight, grows in the Minnesota climate and produces nuts regularly.

The idea is to plant a tree in windbreaks that could provide income potential. Records in a pilot project would have to be kept on survival, growth, maintenance, pest control, productivity and marketing.

The district staff is interested in finding anyone in the district who would be interested in planting a row of hazelnuts. Information is available by contacting the district office at 294-6144 as soon as possible.

Church plans seminar on sexual pressures faced by teens

Starting September 19 from 6 to 8 p.m. St. John Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls will sponsor a three-session video seminar for parents of teenagers and preteens called "How to Help Your Child Say 'No' to Sexual Pressure."

Statistics show that more than 50 per cent of American teenagers between 15 and 19 have sexual relations. Teenage pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases are vital concerns with abortion or even suicide as possible consequences. Parents often feel that they are powerless to intervene, but there are ways parents can help to prevent premature sexual involvement.

"How to Help Your Child Say 'No' to Sexual Pressure, will be held at St. John Lutheran church. The three-session video seminar is sponsored by the Board of Christian Education at the church. The video features Josh McDowell, a well-known Christian speaker to high school and college young people. Topics covered include: why young people become sexually active, how to help them stay out of potential pressure situations, building self-esteem and the ability to say no, and how to reinforce positive influences. It also will provide valuable information and practical help in many other areas. For more information about the course, call 681-4488.

Dear Readers,

Though pain can bring families together, statistics suggest that grief can also intensify all other emotions. Just when support is so important, it can also be hard to give. Understand that each person will grieve differently. Take time to talk to each other, don't withdraw. Reach outside for support, help is often a phone call away.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

Larry Belmont

SWCD at Grygla plans project

Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation district at Grygla is working on submitting a grant request for a pilot project of planting hazelnuts in windbreaks in the district.

The district is looking at a hybrid of the European filbert with the native Minnesota hazel which is resistant to eastern filbert blight, grows in the Minnesota climate and produces nuts regularly.

The idea is to plant a tree in windbreaks that could provide income potential. Records in a pilot project would have to be kept on survival, growth, maintenance, pest control, productivity and marketing.

The district staff is interested in finding anyone in the district who would be interested in planting a row of hazelnuts. Information is available by contacting the district office at 294-6144 as soon as possible.

Church plans seminar on sexual pressures faced by teens

Starting September 19 from 6 to 8 p.m. St. John Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls will sponsor a three-session video seminar for parents of teenagers and preteens called "How to Help Your Child Say 'No' to Sexual Pressure."

Statistics show that more than 50 per cent of American teenagers between 15 and 19 have sexual relations. Teenage pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases are vital concerns with abortion or even suicide as possible consequences. Parents often feel that they are powerless to intervene, but there are ways parents can help to prevent premature sexual involvement.

"How to Help Your Child Say 'No' to Sexual Pressure, will be held at St. John Lutheran church. The three-session video seminar is sponsored by the Board of Christian Education at the church. The video features Josh McDowell, a well-known Christian speaker to high school and college young people. Topics covered include: why young people become sexually active, how to help them stay out of potential pressure situations, building self-esteem and the ability to say no, and how to reinforce positive influences. It also will provide valuable information and practical help in many other areas. For more information about the course, call 681-4488.

Dear Readers,

Though pain can bring families together, statistics suggest that grief can also intensify all other emotions. Just when support is so important, it can also be hard to give. Understand that each person will grieve differently. Take time to talk to each other, don't withdraw. Reach outside for support, help is often a phone call away.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

MREA funded for study of tax policy decisions

Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund has awarded a $1,000 grant to the Minnesota Rural Education Association (MREA) to help area residents understand how legislative decisions will affect their taxes.

MREA will work with the Coalition for Greater Minnesota Cities to create a data base which integrates county, city and school district funding formulas. This data base analyzes how tax policy decisions made for one entity impacts the others.

"The potential impact of upcoming changes to the property tax system and educational financing in Minnesota could have profound, long-term consequences for rural residents, especially those living in the more sparsely populated areas of our state," according to Jean Downing of the Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund. "The Education Association's development of an integrated property tax model should help to ensure an informed public policy debate on these critical issues."

To create the Integrated Ag Property Data Base, the MREA combined its school district information with the CGMC's city tax formulas. The state provided the county information.

"It might seem surprising," commented MREA's Executive Director, Vernae Hasbargen, "but even the State of Minnesota does not have an integrated data base for these three entities. So education funding decisions are made separately from local government or tax decisions, often with unintentional consequences."

The data base will be kept at both the MREA offices in Fergus Falls and at the St. Paul offices of Flaherty & Koebele, P.A., policy analysts for the CGMC. Its information will be used to educate rural property taxpayers and elected officials.
